FOR FILM CONSERVATION

PEERLESS

FILM TREATMENT

Always needed...
Vital now

PEERLESS —treated prints are:

moisture-stabilized—
not "green" or brittle

toughened—
to resist scratches and wear

to ease projection

THE MODERNIZATION OF THEATER PLANNING

By JOHN and DREW EBERSON

Partners in the Architectural Firm of John and Drew Ebersson

THE HALT IN THEATER BUILDING by government order in the interest of national defense serves more than merely a patriotic purpose. To the exhibition business it offers a blessing in the guise of hardship because it provides the theater architect with a period of respite during which he can do some thinking on sorely needed changes in theater architecture and decoration and prepare for a new era in the design of film showhouses that is sure to burst upon us when all bars to construction are lifted.

The coming of that new era is an inevitability because, in common with us, many architects who specialize in theater planning sacrifice in good taste. It must be stressed that loss of good taste would be intolerable under any circumstance. Vulgarization of theater architecture and decoration must be avoided at any cost.

What we are after is elegant simplicity—beauty unadorned, shall we say. However, we must guard against the application of simplicity to the point where it produces monotony. The elimination of all unnecessary ornamentation is a prime requisite. Of late years the film theater has become more or less standardized. Most to be regretted is that it has grown over-adorned. Following a period of excessive embellishment of theaters there arises convincing evidence of the willingness of the public to forget custom and view the modern trend in theater planning with satisfaction.

The film theater of the future will combine convenience with dignified beauty. From now on the architect must focus his eye on what really is required in the theater and must regard ornamentation as something extraneous and as a costly luxury the loss of which will never be missed, still less regretted.

The designer of the motion-picture theater of tomorrow must turn his back on period architecture and decoration. He must break completely with the past. The day of traditional forms in theater architecture and adornment is over. Contemporary architectural design and embellishment such as we have in mind must be founded on the principle of utility and serve a functional purpose.

A strong argument for the abandonment of the traditional in theater design and decoration in favor of the purely contemporary is that the simplicity which is a characteristic of the latter makes for economy—by all odds an important consideration in these days of ever-mounting costs.

For all its individuality the modern motion-picture theater such as we describe does not require an extravagant expenditure of money to bring it into being. Cheering news and decoration are convinced that the present showhouse is out of date both in arrangement and in design. They feel it is high time theater planning were modernized to meet the needs of this day and age not only to the larger pleasure of the public but to the greater financial benefit of the exhibitor.

Now more than ever there is need for theater design and decoration that are a reflection of the times. We say "now more than ever" because theater men never have been so desperate for means to bolster attendance. A theater offering new excitement for our esthetic senses as well as the latest in physical comforts is certain to be more extensively patronized.

By new design we do not mean a flight into the world of exaggeration and surrender to the bizarre and the eccentric. Resort to exhibitionism is as much to be deplored as slavish adherence to the older forms of architectural design and embellishment.

We believe that the new design will be one rich in vigor and promise with no vital

ALTEC SERVICE gives an exhibitor greater safety — greater value — greater satisfaction

1. National Organization

The Altec organization, being nation-wide, can organize the distribution of manpower so that your theatre is protected every day. More than 200 Altec inspectors are scheduled to give complete coverage to every Altec Service theatre.

2. No Equipment to Sell

Altec Service is exclusively a service organization. We are in business for one purpose only—to provide sound service so complete and technically advanced that your sound system will operate at its peak performance all of the time. Altec is not a manufacturer of complete sound systems and therefore is unbiased and impartial in any recommendation it makes for the improvement of sound in your theatre. This is of vital importance to you in the face of necessary present-day economies.

3. Good Service, Plus

When you contract for Altec Service you get the regular services of an Altec-trained specialist. But you get more. You get the day-in-day-out services of an entire corps of research and development engineers, who work at Altec headquarters in New York and Hollywood.

Science never stands still. At all times, new inventions, new techniques, new modifications of existing techniques, are being developed, to improve both recording and reproduction of sound motion pictures.

All of these new developments are under constant study by the Altec research engineers.

4. Technical Information and Advice Available

Your Altec inspector gets weekly bulletins from headquarters announcing each new development that affects your theatre. Where you can take advantage of the improved box office value of improved sound your Altec inspector will advise you.

The Altec research and development engineers work closely with the engineers of the Academy of Arts and Sciences, and with the Society of Motion Picture Engineers (SMPE). These organizations are working constantly toward the improvement of standards of sound reproduction as they affect theatres, new testing techniques, new measurement methods for the scientific analysis of theatre problems and their solution. The Altec headquarters engineering staff immediately relays to your Altec Service inspector these findings, the new methods, the new testing techniques.

5. Close Cooperation With Equipment Manufacturers

Protects the Commercial Application of New Techniques in Equipment Design.

The Altec research and development engineers work closely with the development engineers of the manufacturers of sound systems, to bring to the manufacturer the benefit of nation-wide service experience with theatre sound problems. They, in turn, advise Altec of any new improvements.

6. Altec-Designed Test Equipment for Theatre Use

The Altec Service research and development engineers have developed and are constantly improving test films, and test equipment, etc., which are an essential part of the kit which the Altec inspector carries with him when he comes to your theatre. These essential test meters, films, measurement apparatus, and tools—so vital in the servicing of your theatre—are scientific equipment, much of which is exclusive with Altec Service.

7. Altec Repair and Replacement Agreement

You can budget your maintenance cost for sound and projection equipment at a minimum weekly charge by means of an Altec Service and Parts Agreement. Altec Service maintains warehouses and stock points in all parts of the country, and in each of these stock points a constantly replenished back-log of all parts that are most and frequently needed in the booth of your theatre is maintained.

The parts stocked in the 36 Altec points are all pretested for optimum performance, and are "life-tested". These important life-tests are made in Altec Service testing laboratories; all parts, chosen impartially from the products of all manufacturers on the basis of efficiency only, are thus constantly being improved by continuous Altec laboratory testing.

With the cost of parts constantly rising you can effect a saving by budgeting your costs now.

8. Constant Supervision Insures the Best in Service

The headquarters engineering staff of Altec Service receives from each of its inspectors, after every call he makes, a complete, technical report. This insures a constant headquarters supervision of the efficiency of the Altec inspector who visits your theatre. His reports are analyzed by the Research and Development engineers; facts discovered in improving sound in one theatre are immediately applied to all Altec-serviced theatres. All technically useful information is immediately relayed to every Altec inspector. Your theatre benefits by this continuous supervisory process by the Altec research engineers, and a constant check is made to see that the service function of your Altec inspector is always at its best.

DIVISION AND BRANCH OFFICES

Activities of Altec Service are directed from four division offices, located in New York, Cincinnati, Chicago, and Los Angeles, as well as from branch offices and stock points in Philadelphia, Pa.; Atlanta, Ga.; Charlotte, N. C.; Memphis, Tenn.; Miami, Fla.; New Orleans, La.; Boston, Mass.; Hamden, Conn.; Kansas City, Mo.; Detroit, Mich.; Minneapolis, Minn.; St. Louis, Mo.; Pittsburgh, Penna.; Cleveland, Ohio; Dallas and Houston, Texas; Fresno, Calif.; Phoenix, Ariz.; San Francisco, Calif.; Tucson, Ariz.; Salt Lake City, Utah; Billings, Mont.; Denver, Colo.; Seattle, Wash.; Portland, Oregon; Brooklyn, N. to the film showman is that this renaissance in theater design and conception is finding its expression in materials that are either basically less costly or else readily obtainable in the mass-production market.

These materials, among which are some new ones that are just making their appearance on the market, are made to order for the architect with even a minimum of imagination. If they, new or otherwise, are properly employed and styled they are capable of creating an effect of simple gracefulness that provides a treat for the eyes and a potent lure for patronage. They are of a type that lend themselves to the promotion of simplicity in design and decorative treatment.

The development of new materials, not to mention new construction methods, will require the modern architect to function as an engineer as well.

Further helping to keep down the costs of new theaters or of the modernization of existing ones will be the ingenuity and variety with which many of the simple basic materials already in use or newly arrived on the market can be fashioned, applied or decorated, not to speak of the ease with which they make it possible to achieve the effect of fantasy that can do so much to make a theater intriguing and inviting to the public.

Since the interior decoration of a film theater is something that cannot well be dissociated from the architectural scheme of the house it is natural for the architect to be imbued with the ambition to design all fittings of the auditorium and lounges himself.

In decoration as in architectural design extreme simplicity is advocated. That means color-washed walls, carpets and upholstery fabrics of solid color and the absence of draperies, lighting fixtures and cove lights. The newest theory is that design and color must be in harmony. While certain impacts of brilliancy are permissible, the effect as a whole must be one of warmth and friendliness. All colors in the auditorium must be seen and judged under controlled lighting. The total impression has to be attained with subtlety. It should be as though it all were the work of a gentle hand. We can conceive of no better way of achieving an atmosphere conducive to restfulness and relaxation.

Color schemes and combinations more brilliant and more daring than those reserved for the auditorium are called for in the decoration of lobbies, foyers, lounges and retiring rooms under the new order of things in theater planning. The idea is to establish a mood to delight and stimulate the visual sense.

Also a new touch will be lounges and retiring rooms equipped mostly with built-in furniture. All traditional ideas on the equipment of these areas of the film theater will be cast overboard.

In line with the trend of the times, exhibitors would be wise to remove the clinging cobwebs in their theaters. To remodel, refurnish and redecorate their houses would bring them in step with the changing tastes in theater design and decoration. Let their modernization programs be planned now to be held in readiness for immediate execution upon the lifting of restrictions.

When the theater man once more will be able freely to build or modernize his property let him be certain to take careful note of the road along which theater architecture and adornment are moving. If he is wise, the contemporary rather than the traditional will be his choice. In that choice will lie one of the means to greater patronage for his theater.

1951 SURVEY OF NEW THEATER EQUIPMENT

By LOUIS PELEGRINE

Equipment Editor, The Film Daily

THE DEVELOPMENT of last year that had the greatest impact on the theater equipment industry was the National Production Authority's orders prohibiting the construction of new theaters and limiting expenditures for renovation work to $5,000.

The NPA's action served to slow down the drive for theater modernization that had picked up steam earlier in the year, resulting in a reduction in the amount of equipment that could be sold to exhibitors to make their houses more inviting to the public. This came as a distinct disappointment to theater men who were placing their hopes in the modernization of their properties as one possible means of increasing patronage. Because of the limited amount they could spend, many exhibitors who wished to improve their theaters were constrained to confine their efforts to the bare necessities.

Mr. Herbert Underkofler
American Seating Company
16th & Hamilton
Philadelphia, Pa.

Dear Herbert:

The recent completion of the seating of the Viers Mill Theatre has again brought to mind how well you and your company have attended to our seating requirements, starting with our first installation of your seats at the Milo Theatre in 1935. Those first seats do not look as bright and shiny as the ones you have just installed, but for 15 years they have withstood the punishment of daily use, and are still in the best of condition and good for many, many more years. Furthermore, every chair in our circuit is an American Seating Company seat.

The fact that we get these long-wearing qualities as well as neat appearance and unusual comfort has completely sold us on your chairs.

Another important factor from our point of view which may be of interest to you is that of maintenance. There simply has been no maintenance cost to us except for an occasional simple replacement of upholstery. The seats are mechanically perfect.

All in all, I want to thank you for coming up with the right answers to all our seating problems.

Very truly yours, theater equipment were the NPA orders restricting the civilian use of vital metals and other materials deemed essential for the nation's defense program. The defense controls and cutbacks were expected to have a bearing on the availability of theater equipment and supplies.

In an attempt to ease the situation the NPA appointed a "task group" to study problems of conserving critical materials and finding substitutes for such of those materials as are employed in the manufacture of motion picture equipment. The NPA named another group to present recommendations on controls covering 35mm equipment similar to those issued during World War II. There were six equipment industry representatives on each committee.

Equipment Made Subject To Number One Priority

Notice was served on the industry that orders for motion picture equipment would be subject to a No. 1 priority vested in the State Department, which would be entitled to share with the defense establishment first call on available material and equipment in production. It was made clear that the State Department would be in the field for an increasing amount of equipment.

Many equipment firms diverted some of their energies to turning out government orders. In some instances these orders put such a strain on production facilities that the manufacture of equipment for the civilian market had to be reduced.

Certain events that transpired during the year had an importance influence on the equipment market and the activities of certain manufacturers. Two notable instances were the drastic water shortages that hit so many areas of the nation last year and the pyramiding costs of raw materials used in the making of carpeting.

The need to conserve water in the operation of theater air conditioning systems boomed the demand for evaporative condensers and cooling towers. Producers of air conditioning equipment concentrated more on the manufacture of water-saving devices, and many theaters altered their systems to aid conservation measures.

High Carpet Wool Costs Spur Synthetics Output

The raw-wool situation really got tough when the Chinese sources of supply were cut off by the communist conquest of China. The costs of carpet wool, which is imported, got so out of hand that the carpet makers were compelled to raise prices of the finished product frequently during the year. In desperation they stepped up their activity in the production of man-made fibers. Today the carpet companies have big plans for the synthetics. These plans have not been altered by the fact that in March they were granted a 15 percent price boost, for they know that the costs of raw wool, on which there are no controls, will keep mounting.

Thrown upon the market in 1950 for the use of theaters was an extremely varied array of new equipment designed to improve the quality of theater operation and beckon more people to the box offices of the nation. How extensive was the amount of new and improved equipment and supplies made available to the theater men in 1950 was brought home at the TESMA-TEDA trade show in Chicago. The show was the biggest thing of its kind ever to be staged by the industry, 125 booths being required adequately to display the wares of 99 exhibitors offering equipment and supplies of every conceivable sort. Compare this with 112 booths and 89 exhibitors the year before.

Move to Merge TESMA-TEDA, TOA Conventions Abandoned

Action to combine the TESMA-TEDA and Theater Owners of America conventions this year was initiated in 1950 at the suggestion of TESMA and TEDA in the hope of enabling the largest conceivable number of theater men to view what is available to them from the equipment manufacturers of the nation. The idea was set aside when it was felt that the NPA orders restricting the use of essential materials for civilian purposes would make it difficult for the industry to assemble a proper display of equipment. Also suggested was the possibility of TESMA-TEDA's holding a joint convention with Allied States. This never got beyond the suggestion stage. The TESMA-TEDA convention will be held this year, but without a trade show as an added attraction.

There was mounting interest in 1950 in theater television equipment. Available to showmen for the first time was a system created by General Precision Laboratory. Given the name Videofilm, the system, using 16 mm film, permits the theater to retain full programming control. The picture hits the screen within 60 seconds. The system had its world debut in a theater at the Fulton in Pittsburgh, a Shea house, in March of this year. RCA's theater TV system, which was introduced the year before, was put to the test in a number of houses during the year.

Prefabricated Drive-in Theater Comes into Being

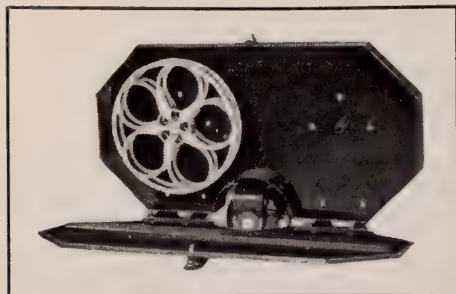

Among the novelties of 1950 was the prefabricated drive-in theater, which provided a means of erecting outdoor houses more easily and economically. Low building and maintenance costs were cited in its favor. Most active in the prefabricated drive-in field was the Ballantyne Co. of Omaha. The houses offered by the firm were all of wood.

A threat to set up a buying combine to by-pass theater supply dealers was raised in independent theater circles in protest against the mounting costs of theater equipment. The flame was lit by President Trueman T. Rembusch of Allied States. The equipment people said in their defense that the rise in prices was a matter beyond their control and was not due to any profiteering on their part. Up to press time nothing had come of the threat.

Figures made public by the Department of Commerce showed that the value of exports of U. S. motion picture films and equipment in 1950 was only slightly less than the 1949 total. The total last year came to $24,155,176. In 1949 it was

More Cameras, Projectors Shipped Abroad Last Year

Last year 15,327 motion picture cameras valued at $1,338,938 were sent out of the country. The total was broken down into 90 35mm cameras, 5,324 16mm and 9,913 8mm. The year before 11,016 cameras valued at $1,170,115 were exported.

Foreign markets in 1950 absorbed 21,881 projectors valued at $3,611,533. Here's the breakdown: 1,900 35mm projectors, 3,796 silent 16mm projectors, 8,609 16mm sound projectors and 7,575 8mm projectors. A total of 21,375 projectors valued at $3,829,544 went abroad in 1949.

Exports of other motion picture equipment, including sound equipment, arc lamps, screens and projector parts, accounted for $4,649,595 of the 1950 total. In 1949 they amounted to $4,754,012.

The following reports on the activities of representative companies in the business, among which are listed the nation's outstanding equipment producers, will convey some idea of the accomplishments of the equipment industry in 1950, with indications in some instances of what might be expected for 1951.

PROJECTION EQUIPMENT

New Production Record Is Set by DeVry Corp.

A BANNER YEAR was celebrated by the DeVry Corp. in 1950. The number of equipments produced for commercial use, both for domestic and foreign markets, soared to a new record-breaking level. In addition, the professional 16mm sound projectors the firm developed for the armed services were delivered at an accelerated rate with each passing month. DeVry's "Koolite," an adjunctive air blast cooling unit for attachment to DeVry "12000 Series" theater projectors proved a boon to drive-in operators, permitting safe suprex high-intensity arc operation without loss in image quality or damage to the film. Backlog orders on hand at the close of 1950 assured peak production of DeVry projectors and amplifiers throughout 1951.

A good deal of DeVry's efforts in 1951 will be devoted to the production of sound projectors for the armed forces under contracts in excess of $5,000,000 awarded the company early this year. The projectors will be used in conjunction with the long-range armed-forces unification program started in 1945 as a peacetime project. Known as JAN (Joint-Army-Navy), they will be built to the rigid standards and specifications of the armed services. They will supplant all other sound equipment now in use by the Army and Navy.

Int'l Projector Pushes Simplex X-L Production

ACTIVITIES of the International Projector Corp. of Bloomfield, N. J., were concentrated largely on production of its new 35mm projector, the Simplex X-L, which was introduced early in 1950 after five years of designing and tooling up, plus an exhaustive series of field tests in ace circuit houses over a period of 16 months.

The projector is held to incorporate several radical departures in design and operation and is credited with top-flight efficiency, complete reliability, economy of operation and long life.

On the operating side of the projector head there is a large glass panel which, together with the illuminated film compartment, enables the operator to see the entire mechanism while it is running. The vital aperture area also is exposed to view by means of an enlarged sightbox. The Simplex X-L possesses a lens mount which can accommodate any projection lens up to and including four inches in diameter and with a speed of f 1.6. Quick, precise focusing of the lens is simplified greatly by means of a micromatic "Screen-scope," a built-in unit utilizing an eight-power lens with prism.

The machine has a simplified lubrication system, called the "Spray-O-Matic," assertedly one of the most efficient ever devised for a projector. Its conical shutter is said to effect the maximum transmission and the sharpest defined cut-off of light yet achieved in any projector, with fewer parts, less gearing and quieter operation. Sprockets contain 24 teeth, eight more than the conventional type, and they operate at only 240 r.p.m. Reduced mechanical load, frame lock indicator, extra-long tension shoes and film magazines a quarter inch deeper on each side of the reel are some of the other advantages claimed for the projector.

Projector of Advanced Design Offered by RCA

THE THEATER EQUIPMENT section of the RCA engineering products department made available the new 35mm RCA 100 projector of advanced design characterized by Karl Brenkert, president of the Brenkert Light Projection Co., as the "finest" ever produced by the RCA subsidiary. The new projector, superseding the BX80 in the RCA line, embodies all the main features of the BX80, plus many additional features designed to improve performance and facilitate operation. The machine, which, according to Brenkert, retains the established Brenkert features of rock-steady projection, highly efficient delivery of light to the screen and low cost of maintenance, is credited with presenting many innovations.

Century Projector Corp. Claims Many Improvements

CENTURY PROJECTOR CORP. in 1950 was credited with the development of a new W5-200 exciter lamp power supply for greater safety factors and quieter sound reproduction, a new W5-19 power amplifier having 200 watts of undistorted audio power for drive-ins primarily, improved water-cooled apertures for reduced film distortion, and a new CI-T-220 recirculating water unit for use with water-cooled projector apertures and arc lamps to eliminate the need of tap water and waste disposal and to provide for anti-freeze treatment of water if required.

New designs were incorporated into the lamp-house carriages of the Model C pedestals to provide more accurate centering of arc lamps and projectors as well as pedestal adapters for drive-in theaters. New lens mounts for Model C and Model CC projector mechanisms for the new four-inch diameter high-speed lenses with adapters for Series II lenses were adopted as standard equipment. The use of Century projectors exclusively on the Cinerama process of multiple-screen projection for "third dimension" effect increased the development activity of special projector mechanisms and sound reproducers. The coding of 52 complete new sound systems with power ratings from 15 to 400 watts, single and dual channel for indoor and outdoor theaters, was another Century achievement.

DeLuxe Projector Mechanism Is Perfected by Wenzel

WENZEL PROJECTOR CO., perfected its deLuxe model projector mechanism, the PRO-50, and also its new WSH-3 sound head. The improved PRO-62 enclosed automatic rewind was also completed. A new Wenzel "Bull Dog" has also been perfected and placed on the market. This does away with the use of reel keys, will accommodate either wire weld or aluminum reels of 2000-foot capacity by use of studs or will, with its self-contained key, also handle 1000-foot exchange reels. For 1951 Wenzel has some new items in process of development and some others on the designing board.

EK Presents New 16mm Heavy-Duty Projector

A NEW HEAVY-DUTY 16mm projector, designed from the base up for auditorium and large group purposes, was presented in 1950 by Eastman Kodak. The unit, delivering considerably more screen illumination than previous 16mm. equipment, was the result of many years of intensive research and development work aimed at producing a unit capable of standing up and delivering consistently high-quality motion pictures under the exacting requirements of daily use. Although reasonably portable, the projector is intended for permanent installation. If it is necessary to move it, however, the projector can be easily disassembled into three parts, each of which is provided with handholds. To attain a new level of durability and quietness, the mechanism of the new projector is divided into two mechanically independent but interlocked assemblies: the intermittent assembly and the shutter-sprocket system. These are driven by separate synchronous motors.

Individual motors also drive the blower, take-up and rewind. The entire projector is designed on a mechanical unit basis for greater efficiency and ease in serviceability. Thus, the lamphouse is one unit structure; the intermittent system another, etc. Any of the 10 major components of the projector may, as a result, be easily removed for service. Following standard 35mm practice, an intermittent sprocket is used instead of a claw-type, pull-down mechanism.

Last year also marked the presentation by Eastman of its first lightweight 16mm sound projector. Termed a trim, convenient and versatile unit, the projector was designed to provide finest quality pictures and sound reproduction, plus ease of setup, operation and moderate price. Named the Kodascope Pageant, it operates without converter or extra equipment of any kind on either alternating or direct current. Extremely compact, it weighs less than 33 pounds complete. Both the speaker and the projector itself are built into the carrying case for greater ease in handling and use. The speaker is part of the case cover and can be used up to 35 feet from the projector with the cord supplied. The projector is in a tan metallic wrinkle finish. The motor is governor-controlled to provide a constant speed and full lamphouse ventilation at all times. Sound or silent speed may be obtained by simply shifting a lever which positions the drive belt on a stepped pulley. The machine is extremely quiet and smooth running. This has been achieved through the use of a minimum of moving parts.

Victor Animatograph Adds 3 16mm Sound Projectors

THE YEAR 1950 marked the 40th anniversary of continuous operation for Victor Animatograph Corp. of Davenport, Ia., one of the pioneers in the 16mm motion picture equipment industry. High spot of the year was the simultaneous introduction of three new 16mm sound projectors featuring new attainments in amplifier performance, picture brilliance, operation and beauty. The projectors, designated as the "Sovereign" (Model 60-25), the "Escort" (Model 60-10) and the "Lite-Weight, Sr." (Model 56-4), offer many of the Victor projector features in addition to the new innovations. Among these are the exclusive safety film trips, 180 degree swing-out lens mount and instant tilt. All three of the new projectors feature Victor's new two-tone, sage green wrinkle finish.

Year Is Termed One of Biggest in B&H History

LAST YEAR proved to be one of the greatest in the history of the Bell & Howell Co. for the sale of 16mm sound motion-picture projectors. This is taken by the firm to indicate "greater and more extensive use of 16mm films for industrial management, employee relations, employee entertainment as well as for the education of our youth in the schools and colleges of the country." The increased sale of 16mm projection equipment is also attributed to the more extensive use of 16mm films in the training of our armed forces. For this purpose, Bell & Howell had available last year projectors for audiences as great as 3,000 or 4,000 and in some cases as high as 5,000.

Great Progress in 1950 Reported by Ampro Corp.

THE YEAR WAS ONE of great progress for Ampro Corp. Mass production and distribution of the Ampro Stylist, light weight 16mm sound projector for classroom and small audience use, was achieved. Ampro also introduced to the trade the latest model in its series of post World War II deluxe projectors — the Premier-30, which incorporates many advance electronic design features which combine to create "Dyna-Tone" sound described as "unquestionably the finest commercial 16mm sound reproduction on the market today." In 1950 Ampro also announced its new 8mm magazine camera equipped with the "Accurator" view finder and the Model 731 magnetic tape recorder, claimed to be proving "the best selling low-priced tape recorder in the world."

In 1951 Ampro announced to the trade its new 8mm projector — the Futurist which incorporates several unique operating features appealing to the discriminating amateur user. Ampro will also start deliveries on a large quantity of 16mm sound projectors of a special design to meet very rigid specifications established by the military branches of the U. S. government.

THEATER TV EQUIPMENT

GPL Introduces Videofilm System Using 16mm Stock

GENERAL PRECISION LABORATORY, Pleasantville, N. Y., during 1950 introduced the Videofilm television system which uses 16mm film and is distributed through National Theater Supply Co. The three-unit Video-film system receives, records, develops and projects theater television features within 60 seconds after their reception. The unit also permits repeated, edited and controlled showings of theater television. General Precision also introduced an image orthicon camera chain and other units of a complete new line of television equipment for future use in exclusive theater telecasts. Sales results at the end of the year showed GPL equipment installed in all major television networks and great interest in the Videofilm system by all major theater circuits.

Blair Foulds, GPL sales manager, has stated that all GPL equipment can be delivered within 60 days, and he does not expect 1951 production to be held up by any equipment material shortage.

2 Newly Designed LaVezzi Units Grow in Popularity

LAVEZZI MACHINE WORKS has strived during the past 42 years to improve the efficiency of the motion picture projector through the manufacture of parts of the highest quality and through design of improved parts and sub-assemblies. Two of these newly designed units became very popular during 1950. The first was a new removable film trap door with longer pads, even tension through conical, easily adjusted springs, and simple installation. The second was a new assembly of main drive and intermediate gears which revolve on hardened studs. Use of these stationary studs completely eliminates oil leakage from these two points and the wider faced main drive and hardened intermediate gear are more than 50 percent stronger, the firm asserts. A new intermittent and intermittent repair kit utilizing a heavier 5/16" star shaft and sprocket locked in place through the use of a screw and nut, eliminating the troublesome taper pins, are being made available this year.

Heyer-Shultz Enters into Distribution Deal With RCA

HEYER-SHULTZ, INC., of Cedar Grove, N. J., introduced its new film track pin hole plate for use in the optical alignment of projection equipment. During the year the firm entered into a deal for the distribution of its products through RCA in addition to National Theatre Supply. The deal required the development of three new type all-metal reflectors. Another 1950 development was the company's line of five "New Lamp" reflectors for use in lamps calling for sizes from 15½" to 16½" diameter. In January of this year the firm introduced a revised rehabilitation service.

RCA Makes Delivery of Its First Commercial Model

LAST YEAR WITNESSED delivery of the first commercial model of RCA's direct-projection theater TV system to Fabian's Brooklyn-Fox Theater. Soon afterward units of the new Model PT-100 were installed in a number of the nation's leading theaters. The equipment was shown at the annual TESMA-TEDA trade show, at which time it was announced that the PT-100 would thereafter be available from all independent RCA theater supply dealers in all of the nation's television areas.

Television Training Program Instituted by RCA Service

FOR RCA SERVICE CO., 1950 saw rapid development in the commercial application of theater television. During the year home office and field technical specialists of the service company supervised installation of RCA theater television

SEATS

American Develops New Self-Lubricating Hinge

AERICAN SEATING CO. developed a new self-lubricating hinge, which eliminates the need of lubrication during the normal lifetime of the chair, does away with the possibility of patrons' clothing becoming spotted with grease or oil. The hinge has a bronze bearing and is available in all American Bodiform chairs. Another innovation is the riser-attached standard for use in theater balcony installations. The new standard eliminates all floor fastenings, thus facilitating cleaning and sweeping, and reducing maintenance costs. It has been developed as an answer to continuous requests from motion picture theater owners, according to the firm. American Seating is also offering smartly designed new aisle standards on several of its chairs. The company is preparing for heavy demand for seating, particularly replacement seating in theaters whose chairs have outlived their usefulness.

Sales of Kroehler Well Ahead of Previous Years

AFTER 14 YEARS of pioneering and manufacturing a retractable theater chair, the Kroehler Manufacturing Co. ended 1950 with theater chair sales well in advance of previous years. Its Canadian plant at Stratford continued to be a main source of supply providing seating for the theater boom experienced by our Northern neighbor. After a year of research, experimentation and exhaustive tests, an entirely new chair under-construction was developed. This new construction survived the severest compression and oscillation tests withstanding twice the load of previous models, according to the company. Other improvement included a new light box and overlay adjustable to give a high light in balcony situations and a low light on main floor installations. In spite of the fact that Kroehler has concentrated on theater seating, its product has been installed in many of the finer churches, temples and school auditoriums across the country. Kroehler added two new factories in 1950 — one located in Charlotte, and another in Pittsburg, Calif. The present push-back chair is available in three basic styles and embodies the convenience and comfort made possible by the know-how of the world's largest furniture manufacturer backed by 58 years of experience.

Five Advantages Combined In Int'l's Model 2000

have been found most popular with exhibitors was placed on the market by the International Seating Co. for distribution through RCA. The new chair, designated as International Model 2000, provides for the first time in one chair five comfort, convenience and economy advantages. They comprise a long, double-curved back affording greater comfort and support and protecting the back of the seat cushion from scuffing by the shoes of patrons seated behind; extra-width seat cushions with full coil-spring edge construction, amply padded and removable from the metal seat pan for reupholstering; an inch-deep enameled metal rim around the back of the chair to protect upholstery fabrics from wear and soiling caused by handling; rod-type hinge action, quiet in operation and requiring no oiling or other maintenance, and smart aisle panel styling with Neo-Classic design motif.

Trend to Better Seating Reflected in Griggs Sales

THE TREND toward better quality seating was reflected in the product ordered from the Griggs Equipment Co. of Belton, Tex. Exhibitors, well aware of the value of comfortable seating as a patronage booster, selected the finer types of Griggs chairs — those with self-rising seats and solid foam-rubber seats and backs. During 1950 great progress was made in the sale of Griggs' Super Star (Model 30). An innovation was the introduction of solid foam-rubber cushions in Starliner and Super Star models. During 1950 the beautiful new Starliner chair was introduced, making available to exhibitors a deluxe streamlined chair. All these developments gave Griggs the best year in its history.

The Griggs factory was expanded during 1950 to increase theater chair output and improve quality. Where a theater was being remodeled or reset, Griggs worked with the decorators in turning out a seat that either matched or blended with the interior color scheme of the auditorium.

Century Will Strengthen Seat Rehabilitation Program

CENTURY SEATING CO., which is credited with rehabilitating a quarter million units of theater chairs during World War II, announces that it "will endeavor, in the trying period ahead, to do all in its power to eliminate the hazards which crop up in public seating by means of a sound, honest, conscientious method of seating rehabilitation."

SOUND EQUIPMENT

Ballantyne Augments Royal Soundmaster RX Series

BALLANTYNE CO. last year offered two new

Royal Soundmaster RX series drive-in theater amplifier system. One is the RX-11 complete amplifier system for single channel for drive-ins with capacities up to 400 cars. It comprises one RX-220 pre-amplifier (with one RX-22 tube complement), one RX-2327 "AC" exciter supply and booth monitor, one RX-224 power amplifier (with one RX-226 tube complement) and one RX-228-B wiring channel. The other is the RX-12 complete amplifier system for dual channel use where the capacity is up to 800 cars. It is made up of one RX-220 pre-amplifier (with one RX-22 tube complement), one RX-2327 "AC" exciter supply and booth monitor, two RX-224 power amplifier (with two RX-226 tube complements), one RX-228-B wiring channel and one RX-229 dual amplifier selector switch. Optional in both instances is an RX-228-A ramp control panel. The MX and RX series units are interchangeable.

Multiple Drive-in Amplifier Systems from Motiograph

AMONG DEVELOPMENTS credited to Motiograph last year were multiple amplifier sound systems for drive-in theaters which, according to Fred C. Matthews, vice-president, "make possible better sound and emergency facilities at lower cost." The firm also placed on the market a new junction box for drive-in theater in-car speakers. The item was held to reduce "materially" the cost of in-car speaker equipment, wiring and ramp switching equipment.

New Magnetic Recorder Designed by J. A. Maurer

J. A. MAURER, INC., during 1950 virtually completed the design of a magnetic recorder utilizing either 16mm perforated magnetic film or 17.5mm (split 35mm) magnetic film. This year will see this unit available on the commercial market provided, of course, that the national defense situation permits its manufacture. The same restrictions on manufacture may apply to new and improved models of the 16mm film phonograph and the new Model "F" 16mm sound-on-film recording system. All are scheduled for 1951 production. The new recording system represents the fruit of more than two years' research.

Much Activity by Int'l on Simplex X-L Sound System

INTERNATIONAL PROJECTOR CORP. engaged in much activity on its new Simplex X-L sound system. Reliability, efficiency and ease of maintenance were asserted to have been the guiding principles in the design, development and manufacture of the equipment. The system employs alternative power amplifiers, one rated at 20 watts and the other at 60. Both amplifiers use a novel direct coupled drive circuit, over-all negative feedback and a 500-ohm low impedance input circuit. The input circuit is said not to be prone to electrical pickup and other interference problems. The system possesses features which permit it to maintain a constant sound level under conditions of varying supply voltage and insure long trouble-free operation without the need for replacing parts, such as rectifier tubes, according to the firm. It is equipped with what is described as a novel sound changeover switch. A feature of the soundhead is a double exciter lamp turret assembly which replaces the 4-Star type plug-in lamp unit.

Fairchild Synchronous Tape Recording, Playback System

FAIRCHILD Recording Equipment Corp., gave the film industry in 1950 a new synchronous quarter-inch tape recording and playback system which was adopted at once for TV sound track recording. Automatic framing controls enable simultaneous start and automatic lip-synchronous lock-in of projector and kinescope equipment with the Fairchild quarter-inch tape equipment. A control track generator which conveniently adapts professional magnetic tape machines to synchronous sound track recording was also introduced by Fairchild and widely adopted by film producers. This quarter-inch magnetic recording and playback equipment is known as the Fairchild PicSync system.

The Fairchild production line for 1951 includes a magnetic film recorder, magnetic film dubber and synchronous editors for both magnetic tape and magnetic film to enable complete sound track production and editing for films of all types and lengths.

Westrex Finds Greater Foreign Demand for Equipment

WESTREX CORP.'s shipments during 1950 reflected a widespread demand for increased quantities of theater and studio equipment throughout the world. Additional lines were taken on during the year to augment the range of quality materials offered by Westrex and its subsidiaries. There was a definite trend in 1950 toward the installation of complete new sound and projection equipment as exhibitors in the foreign field realized the growing importance to patrons of top quality performance. A large number of theater owners purchased modern sound equipment, new projectors and more efficient arc lamps. Others modernized their sound systems with the latest types of Western Electric backstage loud-speaker systems. The company reports a growing quantity of orders for its recently developed 100-watt amplifier system. The need for more light on theater screens increased the demand for larger arc lamps with water-cooled carbons and for projectors with water-cooled apertures.

Westrex developed and made available to the export field in 1950 its L8 loudspeaker system. This backstage equipment was tailored by Westrex to meet the demands of small theaters and features the same Western Electric speakers, high frequency horn and network used in the largest and finest systems. It achieves economy without sacrificing the high quality standards set for Western Electric speaker systems by employing a more compact low-frequency horn and baffle combination. Westrex noted during the year an increased interest in drive-in theater equipment in all parts of the world.

Interest in magnetic recording crystalized into action in many studios last year following the introduction of the Westrex Series 1000 Master magnetic film recording system. Westrex magnetic systems are designed for fixed studio or portable local application and they use, with slight adaptation, 35mm, 17½mm or 16mm magnetic film. Each complete system includes two dynamic microphones, a microphone floor stand, a two-input position mixer and transmission unit, a magnetic recorder, a power control unit, a complete set of spare glassware and fuses, and all inter-connecting cables for operation from a single phase, 50 or 60 cycle, 115-volt power source.

Altec Expands Production Facilities on West Coast

ALTEC LANSING CORP. opened a new plant in Beverly Hills, Calif., to supplement the production facilities in Los Angeles and New York. Over 30,000 square feet are devoted to the assembly and testing of loudspeakers and amplifiers and to the complete fabrication of microphones. New testing facilities include several floating "dead" rooms, a plane-wave tube and many racks of testing apparatus. The plant in Los Angeles was given over to the manufacture of Peerless division transformers and to the machine and metals departments for the fabrication of chassis and other components. Engineering facilities in the new plant and offices were greatly improved, providing what is said to be one of the most up-to-date research and testing labs in the United States for the development of audio and electronic devices for use by civilians and the armed forces.

Interchangeable Speaker Case Created by Autocrat

AUTOCRAT SPEAKERS in 1950 were sold again by Century dealers throughout the United States. The entire Autocrat output has gone solely to Century Projector Corp. Production and sales were well ahead of 1949. Autocrat the past year developed a newly-designed speaker case and hook (die cast) to fit and interchange with other leading makes of speakers so that the replacement field could be handled by Century dealers. The firm has several thousand speakers on hand, but says that new Government limitations and freezes "almost eliminate any possibility for even half-way production." Its plant is in the process of conversion to full war work. Autocrat plans to continue its service at least to Century and its dealers, even after its production supplies have been exhausted, so that its dealer set-up "will be there waiting and ready once the duration, whatever that is, is over."

More in Foreign Field Acquire Reeves Equipment

FEATURE FILM PRODUCTIONS in Teheran, Lisbon and Havana acquired complete picture and recording facilities from the Reevesound Co. and Reeves Equipment Corp. during 1950. Portugal's Cesar de Sá and Cuba's Productores Filmica Cubana have added their names to the long list of studios giving screen credit to Reevesound around the world. The Iranian government is currently engaged in a large defense and educational film program, entirely Reeves equipped. Additional equipment was shipped to Estudio Bolivar in Caracas, Venezuela, to accelerate its feature and newsreel program.

New Reeves Magicorder owners in America during 1950 include Soundmasters, Inc., Eastman Kodak Co., Patheoscope, Inc., Affiliated Films, Conlon Productions and the Sound Film Studios, Inc., Detroit. Latest 1951 Magicorder producers are Audio Productions, Lillis and Murphy and Pepsi-Cola. Manufacturing facilities have been enlarged for 1951.

AIR CONDITIONING

U. S. Air Bolsters Line Of Package Cooling Units

TO MEET the growing need of the modern theater for greater flexibility in cooling loads for prompt change-over to winter heating and for essential savings of water in condensing refrigerants, United States Air Conditioning Corp. of Minneapolis has refined and strengthened its line of package refrigeration units.

The firm's refrigerated Kooler-aire is a completely integrated unit that combines cooling section, compressor and evaporative condenser in a pre-engineered package, ready for simple, accurate installation. The evaporative condenser section effects water savings up to 95 per cent of the amount employed in the condensing operation. As the ordinances against water consumption multiply, the evaporative condenser not only saves exhibitors money in water and sewage costs, but in many instances makes it possible to comply with local ordinances and provide needed cooling. Kooler-aire can be equipped with heating coils to make this single unit do double duty as a cooling and heating unit. Built in sizes from three to 40 tons, the units can be installed in multiple patterns, so that all or a few may be operated to meet cooling requirements. U. S. Air's upright air conditioners are made in 2, 3, 5, 7½ and 10 ton sizes for multiple applications in smaller houses, or for cooling limited spaces such as lobbies and offices. The company also is offering an improved type of long-lived cooling tower where such application is desired.

Record Sales of Typhoon Packaged Air Conditioning

SALES OF TYPHOON packaged air conditioning to theaters reached a new high in 1950, according to James F. Dailey, president of the company. One of the major factors involved in Typhoon's record year was a deal with the theater supply division of RCA under which the latter took over Typhoon sales nationally. Another reason given for the success of Typhoon in theater sales was the growing acceptance of the new 15 and 20 ton sizes. These larger units have now been employed by a number of theaters where a greater number of smaller units was not practicable, and their performance is said by the firm to have come up to all expectations. The fact that theaters are turning more and more to packaged units in place of central-station systems is reported to be in part the result of Typhoon's development of the "zone control" theory. When exhibitors complained that unequal distribution of audiences tended to upset the atmospheric conditions regulated by centrally located thermostats, Typhoon evolved the idea of placing packaged units right in the conditioned area, each with its own thermostat. Being regulated by the temperature of the return air from the same "zone" which it serves, each unit will, therefore, provide just enough cooling to take care of the actual requirements.

The sale of Typhoon evaporative condensers also increased greatly during 1950 as more and more users accepted the commonsense argument that these water-savers will pay for themselves in a matter of a few years through decreased water-consumption expenses.

Indications are that the 1951 air conditioning selling season will be much earlier than normal, the company states. Sales so far this year are said to be well above even last year's record high, and in general the picture as of the end of February resembled the sales situation ordinarily existing in May or June, even without the sizeable government orders which have swelled Typhoon's output.

Full 1951 Theater Line Announced by Carrier Corp.

A FULL LINE of air conditioning equipment designed for use in theaters is announced by Carrier Corp. for 1951 manufacture and distribution within the present limitations of the defense program. The 1951 product list includes five models of self-contained air conditioning units ranging from three to 15 h.p., an improved cooling tower for use with self-contained units in recirculating condenser water, central station Weathermakers up to 75 tons capacity for larger air conditioning installations, and a complete line of reciprocating, absorption, and centrifugal refrigeration equipment. Savings in scarce materials have been achieved through eliminating certain models using a high proportion of critical metals and through increasing capacities in several other lines. Carrier officials expect that this will make possible 1951 production of a substantial volume of both self-contained and central station equipment.

Centrifugal Refrigeration Unit Produced by Trane

A NEW REFRIGERATION unit called the CenTraVac is listed as the most important development of interest to theater men that was made in 1950 by the Trane Co. of La Crosse, Wis. This is a centrifugal machine available in tonnages up from 50 which delivers chilled water to air conditioning units. The centrifugal water chilling unit is of particular interest to theater operators because it is compact, vibration-free and quiet in operation. Additionally, it is practically a self-contained push-button device, hermetically sealed, requiring no special care or attention.

SCREENS

Full Steam for Shearer To Fill Cycloramic Orders

B. F. SHEARER CO., West Coast equipment house, increased its production capacity to take care of a heavy backlog of orders for the Starke "Cycloramic" screen manufactured by the firm. The company was reported working around the clock in an effort to keep pace with the demand for the screen from exhibitors in all sections of the country.

Trans-Color Puts Convex Screen into Manufacture

TRANS-COLOR SCREEN CO. of Kings Mountain, N. C., in 1950 started manufacturing a convex screen created by Otto Hehn, the man who invented Glascreen. The Trans-Color screen is credited with giving an illusion of third dimension through the application of scientific principles. Other claims made for it are that it polarizes light, improves the quality of sound and color, virtually eliminates distortion and eye strain and provides a vision field of 80 degrees that insures a good view of the action on the screen from any seat in the house without glare or hot spots. According to Hehn, "keystoning" is done away with where the picture is projected downward, as from the balcony. This, he says, has the effect of creating a larger screen image. A perfectly square picture is achieved. Supporting and masking frames are of duraluminum, making the screen easy to handle and to install. The screen surface is a silver-coated white material, a product of the Williams Screen Co. of Akron, O. It is tear-proof and weather-proof and can be used in outdoor as well as indoor houses. It's perforated.

Norpat Sales, Inc., of New York City, of which M. D. "Doc" Faige is head, has been appointed as general agents for the distribution of the Trans-Color screen.

Radiant Makes Contributions To Better Film Projection

SEVERAL CONTRIBUTIONS to better projection of films and slides were made last year by the Radiant Manufacturing Corp. of Chicago. The most important development was the use of Radiant's new Vyna-Flect glass-beaded screen surface on its Model "DLS" Screenmaster and Model "EC" wall and ceiling type projecting screens as standard equipment. This fabric is washable, mildew-proof and flame-proof and does not turn yellow. The firm introduced its Sky-Lift, a single tripod holder for large wall and ceiling type screens, permitting these large size units to be used either as a platform screen or floor screen where it is impractical or impossible to support the unit from the wall or ceiling. Years of research into aluminized silver fabrics for three-dimensional projection brought about the addition of the Radiant Stereomaster portable tripod screen, which is made in two sizes, 40"x40" and 50"x50", and is seamless. The Automatic, electrically operated projection screen with sizes from 6'x8' to 9'x12', was improved considerably. Radiant will continue to feature its Per-Fold matte white perforated theater screen.

This year will see the continuation of Radiant's complete line of portable tripod wall and wall and ceiling screens. The year will record the delivery of the "XL" Picturemaster, a beautifully styled, durably constructed portable tripod screen in sizes ranging from 63"x84" to 72"x96". Despite material shortages every effort will be made to keep the factory producing at the maximum possible level to insure availability of Radiant Screens for important film markets throughout the country.

Sales Volume of Raytone Shows Increase Over 1949

IN 1950 the Raytone Screen Corp.'s volume of sales increased over 1949. The firm's principal activity during the year was in theater sound screens utilizing a vinyl plastic coating considered by the company superior to other matte white surfaces. Other products marketed during the year were Raytone carbon savers, drive-in screen paint, cleaning light stands, theater lighting fixtures, downlights, directory signs and box office price signs.

New Raytone products for 1951 include a device called the "Speaker-lok" and a new all-vinyl screen called "Pantex." The "Speaker-lok" prevents theft of drive-in speakers by locking one front car wheel until the speaker is returned to its position. The "Pantex" screen has all the desirable characteristics of other Raytone screens plus greater resistance to tearing, fruit acids and alkalies and is indefinitely pliable, can be shipped folded and is somewhat lower in cost. Other new products are planned for 1951.

Williams Claims Biggest Sales Volume in History

WILLIAMS SCREEN CO. claims to have sold more screens during 1950 than any previous year. Early in the year it began supplying screens through the Ballantyne Co. and thereby developed a nation-wide distribution. It also continued selling screens direct. The firm is entering its fourth year of manufacturing seamless, all-plastic screens. Either white or silver reflective finishes are available. Williams still has screen refinishing crews operating in many states to resurface white and silver screen as a special service.

Market for Glascreen Is Reported Expanded Abroad

THE MARKET for Glascreen, produced by Nu-Screen Corp. of New York, last year was extended to Lebanon, India, South Africa and other far-off places. The market is being still further expanded this year to include Australia and Japan. The company says it "has been working overtime" to take care of its backlog of order. from theaters in this country and abroad. Foreseeing that the defense needs of the nation were going to curtail essential materials, among them fiberglass, of which Glascreen is made, the Nu-Screen Corp. provided for sufficient inventories to take care of all its customers, and the firm feels assured that its present stocks "can take care of the current demand for Glascreen for some time to come."

Use of Firestone's Velon Extended to Screen Making

THE USE OF VELON, a plastic made by the Firestone Plastics Co., was extended to the production of motion picture screens. The product went into the manufacture of the RCA-distributed Snowwhite vinyl screen, said to be the first entirely of plastic made available to theaters. Special advantages of the Velon screen are that it is resistant to creasing, mildew and flame, impervious to soap and water and economical in cost. Velon plastic is a calendered vinyl in 12 gauge, and was specially fabricated by Firestone to RCA specifications. It contains chemical components to resist stains and chemical change and is pigmented throughout to give it a bright white surface, providing a most satisfactory reflection value. It is embossed to insure high diffusion of reflected light at all viewing angles, which results in a bright picture for patrons in any part of the theater. Particularly clean perforations are possible with the all-plastic material.

CARPETING

Alexander Smith Produces Blended Line for Theaters

PAUL GARST, national contract manager for Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company and C. H. Masland & Sons, considers 1950 as outstanding in theater carpet installations and predicts that 1951 will be of even greater importance. Early in 1951 Alexander Smith introduced its New Crestwood carpeting, which is a blend of man-made fibers and wool. The addition of Avisco "15," the new carpet fiber developed by American Viscose, has increased the wear and enhanced the beauty and style of carpets especially designed for public places. The New Crestwood line was developed after years of research, and, according to A. G. Ashcroft, director of research for Alexander Smith, the carpet is superior in every essential use, service characteristics and quality per dollar to the firm's former theater carpets. A variety of patterns, designs and colors have been created for the New Crestwood line by Felix Staedeli, stylist for the company. They include a traditional type design in red and gold, two tracery leaf patterns in green or red, and an Empire period scroll in golden tan on red damask ground.

Among the prominent theaters carpeted by Alexander Smith and C. H. Masland in 1950 were the Nubel, Belleflower, Calif.; Sutton, New York City; Gateway, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Carib, Miami Beach; United Artists, Detroit.

Distribution of Leedom Theater Carpet by RCA

A NEW LINE of Wilton carpets, especially selected for their suitability for theaters and custom-loomed for the firm under a merchandising arrangement with the Thomas L. Leedom Co. of Bristol, Pa., was added last year to the list of products distributed by RCA. The new line is known as RCA theater carpet and is offered in three grades, designed as "Headliner," "Top Performer" and "The Showman."

Cognizance of Newest Trends Taken by Bigelow

BIGELOW-SANFORD CARPET CO. announces that its 1951 line of carpets will again be most comprehensive. Styled to take care of everyday traffic conditions and decorative schemes of both small and large theaters, the line covers the newest decorating trends as well as traditional types of design and coloring. Bigelow maintains a staff of consultants to aid theater owners in the selection of special design and color effect. The Bigelow line for 1951 ranges from the durable and luxurious Kensington carpet in the moderate-price range to the Hartford-Saxony grades known the world over for their beauty and indestructibility. Planned production schedules for 1951 are only slightly below last year, despite shortages of raw materials.

Lees Begins Manufacture Of 100% Rayon Carpets

TO MEET THE PROBLEM of runaway prices of raw wool, for its supply of which the carpet industry is dependent upon foreign sources, James Lees and Sons Co. in 1950 began the manufacture of carpets of 100 per cent cellulose acetate rayon, which is said to possess all the characteristics of wool besides being resistant to moths.

Leedom Developing Blended Carpets for Theater Field

DWIGHT L. LAWTON, president of the Thomas L. Leedom Co., carpet manufacturer, reports that his company's experience in the theater field was "very good" last year, with the trend running to "large effects and more colorful than ever before." Leedom is developing one or two numbers of wool and rayon for the theater field. Lawton says that the rayon-wool blends "are here to stay and will gradually cut in very badly into the wool business." As far as style is concerned, the firm is going after gayer and more colorful patterns and larger effects. To Lawton 1951 "looks like a good year if we can produce the carpets." He asserts that "there will certainly be a lot of wool-rayon blends used" and thinks that "the trade as a whole will still stick to good quality merchandise."

Mohawk Upping Production Of Wool-Rayon Mixtures

LAST YEAR saw the large-scale introduction by Mohawk Carpet Mills of a blend of wool-and-carpet rayon yarn in the majority of running line and contract fabrics. As expected, there was some initial suspicion directed at these blended carpets by both dealers and consumers, but subsequent tests and information, plus the great desirability of the new carpets, virtually eliminated any remaining doubts.

Mohawk announced plans to expand its production of blended carpets even further in 1951. New color and design effects, wearing qualities superior to all-wool carpets of similar construction, a modern, attractive luster, and the many general, all-round attributes of these carpets have convinced buyers that blended carpets are here to stay, according to the company.

More Conservative Trend Is Found by Karagheusian

LEADING THEATER OWNERS continued to purchase Gulistan contract carpeting in the large scale designs and bright, rich colors made by A. & M. Karagheusian, Inc. Bold motifs using large flowers, leaves and birds remained popular, and indications are that these distinctive patterns will continue in heavy demand in 1951, according to the company. It has become apparent in recent months, however, that a new trend is developing in theater carpeting toward less color, simple designs and more texturous fabrics, the firm says. This is especially so where architects and decorators are called in to do a complete re-decorating job. Tackling the house as a whole, they are able to tie in their own decorating ideas. In many cases they are reported leaning toward more home-like, intimate atmospheres that give a feeling of quiet and restfulness.

Gulistan contract carpets will feature many new weaves, patterns and colors during 1951. Though signs seem to point to greater simplicity, many theaters, because of their patronage and location, will continue to find the large-scale, brighter colored patterns more suitable to their needs, Karagehusian asserts.

LIGHTING EQUIPMENT

Ross Increases Stock of Equipment for Pix, Video

STILL BETTER facilities for the production of films, whether for theatrical showing or for video, were made available in the East when Charles Ross, Inc., of New York added further to its extensive stock of equipment. President Charles Ross said the decision to expand the firm's equipment catalogue was based on the fact that the firm saw a good season ahead. The new equipment placed the company in "a much better position to handle indoor and outdoor jobs," according to Ross. Expansion of the firm's line-up of lighting and grip equipment and generators was carried over into 1951.

Additional equipment acquired by the Ross outfit, which is one of the nation's biggest producer and distributor of lighting equipment in the field of show business, includes generator trucks for field work and new and improved type of equipment for TV studios made by the Mole-Richardson Co. of Hollywood, for which the Ross firm is sole Eastern agent.

Spotlight for Small Houses Made Available by Strong

A NEW INCANDESCENT spotlight called the Troupette has been developed by the Strong Electric Corp. especially for use in small theatres, night clubs, schools, TV studios, industrial shows and conventions where physical dimensions and price are factors and where the tremendous volume of light of an arc lamp is not necessary. A highly efficient optical system enables the Troupette to project far more light than is possible with any conventional incandescent spotlight. This increased brilliancy is made possible by a variable focal length objective lens system, a 5¼-inch silvered glass reflector and Fresnel lens used with a standard 115-volt, 1000-watt prefocused projection type bulb. As contrasted to the conventional incandescent spotlight, with which the spot size is varied solely by iris, to result in substantial light loss, the Troupette utilizes all of the light through most of the spot size range. The brilliance of head spots is as much as six and a half times that possible with conventional lamps. The variable focal length objective lens system affords the advantage of retaining the same sharply defined edge of any size spot, from head to flood, without refocusing. The Troupette projects a minimum spot diameter of one one-hundredth of the length of throw and a maximum of one-third the length of throw. It is provided with a horizontal masking control, which can be angled at 45 degrees in each direction, and a fast-operating color boomerang which accommodates six slides. Horizontal sweep of the spot is possible throughout 360 degrees. All operations of the lamp are extremely simple. Since the 1000-watt bulb pulls only 10 amperes, the Troupette can be plugged into any 110-volt convenience outlet, without requiring any special wiring.

Spongex Market Widened Through Deal With RCA

THE MARKET for Spongex carpet cushion manufactured by the Sponge Rubber Products Co. of Shelton, Conn., was widened when the product was made available to exhibitors through independent RCA theater supply dealers. The improved Spongex is held capable of increasing the life of carpet substantially providing a new measure of luxury and comfort. The quarter-inch and three-eighths-inch weights are recommended for general theater use. In order to meet the requirements of special applications, however, RCA theater supply dealers will be in a position to supply a wide range of weights.

Spotlight for Film Houses Brought Out by Genarco

THE METRO-LITE Vaudeville Model ME-5, a spotlight specially designed for film houses, was placed in manufacture last year by Genarco, Inc., of Long Island City, N. Y. Less powerful than the Metro-Lite ME-4, which is intended primarily for use in arenas and extremely large auditoriums, the ME-5 is the firm's new spotlight model for 1951. The ME-5 is suitable for theaters where the throw ranges from 75 to 250 feet. The ME-4 is capable of a maximum throw of 400 feet. The Metro-Lite Vaudeville is operated in the booth with the same rectifier or generator used for the projection lamp. No extra operator is required. Like its big brother, it is credited with a versatility that permits the casting of a spot small enough to light only the face of a performer and large enough to flood the entire stage. The same high degree of brilliancy of illumination is claimed for the ME-5 and the ME-4.

Rollocolor Provides New Theater Lighting System

A NEW SYSTEM of stage and decorative lighting for theaters was made available last year by the Color Lighting Corp. of New York under the name Rollocolor. This is a method of lighting controlled by means of a small compact unit. By the mere rotation of a dial the four colored light sources—red, blue, green and white—can be controlled to produce more than 500 different colors and predetermined light effects. Any one of the 500 color effects can be produced and reproduced at desired intensity and for various time cycles. The control can be set to operate automatically through the entire color range or to produce predetermined colors. The Rollocolor control unit in size and appearance is similar to a small portable radio. The controls are said to be as simple to operate. Rollocolor is suggested as a novel, effective and dramatic means of lighting marquees, lobbies, walls and other parts of theaters as well as the stage.

DRIVE-IN CONSTRUCTION

Prefabricated Drive-in Package from Ballantyne

THE LATEST MOVE by the Ballantyne Co. to make available low-cost outdoor theaters in complete packaged units was the announcement of a new prefabricated drive-in package. Cited in favor of this new prefab theater were low initial cost, low maintenance cost, exceptionally fine construction, and rustic beauty. All units, the screen tower, marquee, box office, concession stand, fencing, and even the ramp markers, speaker posts, and moonlight tower, were constructed of Northern Michigan white cedar logs and saplings. This type of timber was used because of its unusual weather-resistant qualities and because it requires little maintenance.

The drive-in was so designed that practically all units were constructed with large prefabricated sections of logs. Erection of the prefab drive-in was quick and easy with resultant saving in construction costs. Complete detailed blueprints and erection instructions were furnished with each job. These 15 units comprised the drive-in; screen tower, single or double face screen tower wings, marquee with tower, ticket office, concession stand, six different type fences, moonlight tower, ramp markers, speaker posts, and entrance-exit signs. The screen tower is 55 feet high and 50 wide, made up in large, easily-applied sections.

LAMPS

Motiograph Devises Lamp Giving Greater Illumination

MOTIOGRAPH, INC. made available in 1950 the first high-intensity reflector-type arc lamp with a rotating positive carbon mechanism to burn the new 10mm positive carbons. Tests showed that these lamps, operating at 100 amperes, gave greater screen illumination than condenser type arc lamps operating at 180 amperes.

Hydro-Arc Lamp Placed On Market by Ashcraft

C. S. ASHCRAFT Manufacturing Co. placed in production a new high powered, non-rotating carbon projection lamp called the Ashcraft Hydro-Arc. Among some of the highlights of the new lamp are a larger lamp house and reflector. The Hydro-Arc is designed for the rapid dissipation of heat from the four kilowatt arc whereas the older types of lamp were equipped to handle only the heat from a 2.3 kilowatt arc. The new reflector is 15 inches against the older one of 14 inches diameter which no longer is considered practical. Other features of the Ashcraft Hydro-

Arc include its higher optical speed, increased reflector protection, water cooling of carbons and contacts, more precise arc regulations, complete external control and maximum carbon length and its versatility.

GE Invents Bulb That Makes Theater Smell Nicer

GENERAL ELECTRIC created a small lamp bulb capable of making a theater a more inviting place. The device is credited with the ability of reproducing indoors on a small scale the fresh, clean smell that prevails outdoor during an electrical storm. The four-watt lamp, less than an inch and a half in diameter, produces ozone which has a deodorizing effect. The ozone generated by a single bulb is said to suffice to mask odors in an area of up to 1,000 cubic feet. Assertedly the lamp also has a mild germicidal effect. General Electric also came up with an experimental sun-heat coin machine that could be used in theater lounges. The machine has a timer and a tape for measuring the proper exposure distance from the lamps.

CARBONS

National Out With Carbon Productive of More Light

NATIONAL CARBON in 1950 marketed a new 10mm x 20" high-intensity projector carbon for use in the new angular trim rotating type high-intensity reflecting arc lamps. This carbon has been designed for operation up to 100 amperes. Laboratory tests show that at this current the 10mm carbon will give about five to seven percent more light and a definitely better side to center distribution than the 9mm x 20" carbon at 85 amperes. Because of the larger size of light source, the coverage on the aperture plate will be better and the latitude of operation will be improved. This carbon is operated with the standard 11/32" x 9" "Orotip" negative carbon.

National also announced the re-introduction of the "Victory" carbons, on which the thickness of the copper coating is reduced on two of the most popular projector carbon trims—the 8mm "Suprex" positive with 7mm "Orotip" "C" negative and the 7mm "Suprex" positive with 6mm "Orotip" "C" negative. This action is similar to the measure taken during World War II and was initiated to assure an adequate supply of carbons concurrent with a reduction in the usage of copper as directed by the government's copper conservation order. "Victory" carbons are identified by white ink showing the trademark and the fiveampere reduction in the maximum current rating. The unit package and the five-unit case are conspicuously labelled with the word "Victory" and indicate the current rating of 65 amperes for the 8mm-7mm trim and 45 amperes for the 7mm-6mm trim.

National Distribution Aims Reached by Lorraine-Carbons

LORRAINE-CARBONS, INC., reports it has achieved the national distribution goal set at the beginning of 1950. For 1951 the company is concerned with maintaining a constant flow of carbons to theaters. The percentage of available carbons of all sizes has been increased considerably for 1951. This increase will help prevent a shortage of projection carbons, according to the firm. Besides increasing product availability in 1951, Lorraine-Carbons says it "will continue to strengthen the effectiveness of its distribution areas and remain constantly vigilant in maintaining unequalled quality that insures top projection with economy."

LENSES

Bausch & Lomb Expands Super Cinephor Series

RECENTLY TWO LENSES were added to the Super Cinephor series to make the Bausch & Lomb line of projection lenses even more complete. The new Super Cinephor "16" is a projection lens for 16mm motion picture projectors. This f/1.6, 2" lens is reputedly the only professional lens made for 16mm projectors today. It gives clear, flat sparkling images over the entire field of view, and it fits all sound projectors with the standard 1 3/16" diameter barrel. In addition, it is available as an f/1.9 lens for Bell & Howell projectors. The lens combinations of the Super Cinephor "16" are permanently sealed in proper alignment in the one-piece, anodized aluminum barrel. Dirt or moisture cannot get in. It is only necessary to keep the exterior surfaces of the front and back lenses clean.

The second addition to the Super Cinephor series is the long focus, f/2.0 Super Cinephor, which is designed to give the long-throw houses and drive-in theaters super-brilliant projection. On any projection equipment which will take a four-inch lens, it is estimated this big fellow will put 44 to 110 percent more light on the screen, with proportionately better images. Focal lengths range from 5 1/4" through 7" for a total of eight lenses. Lens elements, six of them, are securely mounted in proper alignment in a one-piece, anodized aluminum barrel. Quantities are in regular production.

Kollmorgen Capitalizes on Demand for Better Lenses

IN 1950 SALE of the Kollmorgen Optical Corp.'s high quality Snaplite projection lenses reached a new high. Since 1945 the firm noticed an ever-growing demand for better-grade lenses. This demand reached such proportions in 1950 that it has been decided to discontinue the manufacture of the Series I quarter-size Snaplite lenses and to concentrate on producing Series II and Super Snaplite. It was the first complete year in which Kollmorgen's new 4" diameter Super Snaplite, in sizes from 5" to 7" focal length with speed of F/1.9, was distributed. With this new line it was possible to supply the fast Super Snaplite in all focal lengths from 2" to and including 7". Prior to that time it was impossible to supply lenses with the F/1.9 speed above 4 3/4" focal length. However, the projector manufacturers in 1950 made lens holders capable of accommodating lenses with a barrel diameter of 4". It was thus possible to supply Super Snaplites for indoor theaters having long throws and for drive-ins with large screens and long throws. Other factors that contributed to the record were the excellent cooperation of Kollmorgen dealers, the advertising campaign in which was stressed the importance of good projection, and the apparent realization that lenses are really the heart of the projection system.

Because of the ban on new theaters the demand for projection lenses is expected by the firm to taper off. Controls have been imposed on the use of aluminum, which is used exclusively for lens mounts. "We are, however, confident that our Snaplite lenses will be available in reasonable quantities in 1951," says the firm. It warns that "delays in shipment, due to priority orders, can be expected in 1951." Theater owners are advised to "anticipate their requirements as much as possible."

Projection Optics' Plans For New Products Shelved

PRESIDENT Fred E. Aufhauser of Projection Optics Co., Rochester, N. Y., reports that "all of our plans for new products for the motion picture industries have been shelved due to the fact that our company is slowly but surely going all-over to war production" and that "with material shortages as they are, we are unable to fill many present commitments which we have." "We will, however," he adds, "continue to produce our present line of Superlite lenses, which have been improved, and we will continue to improve them as we develop new ideas."

SIGNS

Adler Markets "Sectionad" Changeable Letter Display

ADLER Silhouette Letter Co. is now offering the new low-cost "Sectionad" changeable letter display which combines a strong, rigid, reinforced baked-enamel or porcelain-enamel steel background with its "third dimension" plastic or cast aluminum letters held on Underwriters-approved stainless steel letter bars. Sections build up displays of any convenient height or length for drive-in theaters and their approach boards, commercial displays, etc.

The new 17" "Lok-Lip" safety letters, two-tone "third dimension" plastic, are self-locking on the frames, cannot fall off or blow off, yet are changed easily. All Adler "third dimension" plastic letters are described as tough and strong, with integrally molded supporting means. They come in permanent red, green and blue colors and are used interchangeably with the cast aluminum letters on the same frames. "Third dimension" cast aluminum letters are furnished in all popular sizes from 4" to 37" and in many color combinations.

Wagner Starts Production Of Steel Panel Assembly

WAGNER SIGN SERVICE of Chicago began the production of its steel panel assembly in 1950. With this new item a letter carrying background of either porcelain-enameled steel or baked enamel can be easily and economically erected for use on small drive-in theaters or for directional use away from any theater. These panels are die stamped in large quantities in units of five feet and are therefore the most economical steel backgrounds that can be produced, it is said. Wagner also began the production of the wind-proof slotted letter. With this new slot letters are easily and speedily changed and yet cannot be disturbed by the elements short of a hurricane. As for 1951, the firm's present concern is to obtain sufficient material to fill its orders, and no new devices are contemplated.

Poblocki Compiles Book Of 21 Drive-in Signs

AN ELABORATE Book of 21 drive-in signs was compiled by Poblocki and Sons so that the drive-in theater owner could select a sign according to his taste and pocketbook. This handy book, available upon request, proved of immeasurable value, and signs were made for the smallest to the largest drive-in circuits in the country, ranging from New Jersey to New Mexico. This was one of the outstanding contributions in service to theater men during the past year as it pointed the way to the right kind of sign at the best price for all sizes of drive-in theaters.

CURTAIN CONTROLS

Automatic Curtains Plans To Introduce New Items

BECAUSE of the national emergency, Automatic Devices Co. has curtailed plans for introduction to the trade of several new items. In the meantime emphasis is being placed on the improvement of existing ADC products. The quality of operating cord, one of the most integral parts of any stage curtain track installation, has been given special attention, and the company announces that it is now furnishing with all tracks and controls "the finest sash and bell cord obtainable in the world" at no extra cost to the user.

A new ADC catalog is now available to the trade. It provides information about its products in such a way that a novice can easily learn how to install an ADC track or control with very little difficulty. Also made available are reprints of the ADC brochure included in the 1951 Sweet's File Architectural. Compact and complete, this brochure includes vital information about the company's products and can be easily carried in the pocket. Automatic expects to be able to maintain immediate delivery on all of its equipment.

COIN CHANGERS

"The 52" Newcomer to Line of Coinometer Corp.

COINOMETER CORP. placed on the market a new coin changer known as "The 52." The machine assertedly offers an "improved method of roll-out coin delivery." Time-saving, accuracy, economy, speed and attractiveness are some of the advantages claimed for it. The latest Coinometer, which is distributed by the Ballantyne Co. of Omaha, is guaranteed for three years.

THEATER FRONTS

Poblocki Designs Complete Front for Small Houses

FOR THE BENEFIT of small-town theaters Poblocki and Sons designed a complete front including marquee, sign, poster cases, box office and porcelain front on an erected or FOB Milwaukee basis. This made it possible for the small-town operator to acquire the same kind of a front as the big-town house only on a smaller scale.

TICKET TAKERS

General Register Experiences One of Its Best Periods

GENERAL REGISTER CORP. chalked up one of the best years of its existence. Its work with the theater industry did not involve the marketing or inventing of any new equipment as such. For the first time since the war, however, it did have its equipment line rounded out to a point where it could service theater circuits as well as individual theaters with control systems rather than particular pieces of equipment. Its greatest volume was enjoyed with a system employing an Automatic Register, of either the electric or trigger action model, in the Box Office, and an Automatic doorman control, either in the form of a stub rod box or an Automatic chopper, at the point of collection. The two control points, that is, the point of sale and the point of collection, are properly recorded with the two pieces of equipment so as to furnish the theater operator a permanent record both of his sales and his collections. These records are further divided by time and personnel throughout the entire period of operation.

Plans for 1951, unless they are entirely upset and altered by economic conditions and the defense efforts, call for further improvement and refinement of the equipment used in the firm's basic control as well as the marketing of some new equipment felt necessary as an adjunct to its present line.

SCENIC TREATMENTS

Many New Theaters Get Novelty Scenic Treatment

NOVELTY SCENIC STUDIOS of New York

City decorated new theaters in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Virginia, Mexico, Puerto Rico and Venezuela in 1950. Most of the jobs included wall coverings, draperies, stage curtains, contour curtains, painting and decorating. In addition a large number of existing theaters were modernized and received a complete face lifting from front entrance doors up to and including the stage. The most glamorous and attractive interiors were achieved by the use of simple treatments judiciously applied. Textured materials, both plain and figured, were primarily used. Distinctive and unusual effects were achieved by the use of color values properly balanced between striking highlights and soft subdued tones.

While the outlook for 1951 is viewed as "clouded and uncertain on account of government restrictions and the inroads made by television in certain areas," little doubt is seen that theater properties will be maintained on a high level. "With our vast experience we will be able to produce interesting and worthwhile interiors with limited materials," asserts A. I. Kessler, president.

Knoxville Studios Install Most Modern Equipment

described as the most modern equipment available for the manufacture of stage equipment of every variety. Designing and manufacture of stage rigging, curtains, scenery and decoration are being engaged in by the company on a more expansive basis than ever before. Knoxville Scenic Studios' service includes preparation of blueprints, showing details of gridiron construction, smoke pockets, position and operation of all curtains, cycloramas, side drapes, border lights and light bridges, sound horns, picture screens, revolving stages, stage, console or orchestra lifts. According to Mitchell, the addition of this new equipment will improve the durability of the manufactured goods.

Maharam Fashions Damask To Cover Theater Walls

MAHARAM FABRIC CORP. of New York came through with a new creation, a wall covering for the interior of theaters called Venice Damask. The newcomer to the Maharam line is a satin damask 50 inches wide woven to the firm's specifications in a large chain design. The fabric is said also to lend itself "beautifully" for use in stage draperies. Maharam also styled many new original patterns for stage draperies, screen curtains and side-wall effects. These numbers are available flameproofed. Stocks are carried in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

REELS AND CANS

Taylorreel Widens Activity To Include 16mm Field

A COMPLETE LINE of 16mm. reels and cans in various capacities, including 50, 100, 200, 400, 800, 1000, 1200, 1600 and 2000 feet, was added by the Taylorreel Corp. of Rochester, N. Y.

The reel of 1200-foot capacity actually holds in excess of 1400 feet of film to enable the projectionist or TV operator to run a complete half-hour show without use of additional reels. The firm also makes 8mm, 17½mm and 35mm reels and cans.

PLASTICS

Wood-Grain Reproductions Are Developed by Formica

THEATER OPERATORS and architects have long been aware of the unique combination of beauty and practicality afforded by laminated plastics for foyer doors, paneling, drinking fountain niches and counter surfaces. Cost, however, has sometimes stood in the way. A major step in eliminating this problem was the development, in the past year, of authentic wood-grain reproductions in laminated plastics by the Formica Co., Cincinnati, under the trade name of Picwood, available in a variety of wood grains, including oak, mahogany, walnut, birch, maple and primavera, and in 18 different finishes, ranging from blond and limed to natural tones. Picwood offers all the resistance to abuse of standard Formica color patterns commonly used on soda counters and bar tops, says the company. It also matches colored materials in cost, representing a saving of more than 40 percent over such products as Formica Realwood, which previously offered the only authentic wood grain finishes in the field. Samples are available through Formica sales offices in 32 cities throughout the United States and Canada.

POPCORN EQUIPMENT

Manley Comes Out With Aristocrat Popcorn Machine

MANLEY, INC., in 1950 completed three years of experimentation on, and introduced to the trade, its Aristocrat popcorn machine. It was said to differ radically from anything it had heretofore produced. Among the many features are:

1. Machine can be operated with either 12-ounce or 16-ounce kettle. The change from one size to the other can easily be made by any operator using only a dime or a screw driver.

2. Faster popping and higher dollar yield per hundred pounds of corn.

3. Improved heat control in the seasoning well and an improved pump metering the seasoning directly to the kettle.

Relative to 1951, the firm sees "no immediate shortage of popcorn machines or popcorn." "But the defense program being what it is, we as manufacturers can only state that government demands on our machinery and manpower must come first," says Charles G. Manley, vice-president and sales manager. "All others come after."

Butter Dispenser Joins Cretors Product Line-up

C. CRETORS & CO., pioneer popcorn equipment maker, added a "Hollywood Butter Dispenser" to its line. The device holds four pounds of melted butter at a constant temperature of 130 degrees. A thermostatically controlled heating element and water bath surrounding the inner stainless steel container prevent scorching.

WOODEN ENCLOSURES

Habitant Sales Show Rise Of "Some 40 Per Cent"

HABITANT FENCE, INC., of Bay City, Mich., rang up the biggest year in its history in 1950, with the volume of sales showing a jump of "some 40 per cent." J. H. Farley, sales manager, says that the firm's distributors "sold and serviced a gratifying percentage of the drive-in theaters built in 1950 and also replaced many unsatisfactory enclosures of other types." The fence installed was fabricated exclusively from Northern Michigan white cedar under a system eliminating the customer need for skilled on-the-job labor. In each instance the firm gave specialized service in the fabrication of fencing and other drive-in theater items.

Fence Co. Products for 75 Drive-ins Last Year

SOME 75 DRIVE-INS last year were equipped with fencing, screen towers, ticket offices, speakers posts, concession buildings, moonlight towers and marquees manufactured by the Fence Co. of America, Escanaba, Mich., whose products are distributed by the Ballantyne Co. of Omaha. The firm has developed for 1951 a rustic dining pagoda which adds to the beauty and convenience of the established drive-in theater. These pagodas are made to seat one, two or four people and each has its own individual table and attached speaker. They may be placed at any appropriate location, including in front of the projection building, concession building or first ramp.

CASH BOXES AND TICKET DISPENSERS

ARCUS SIMPLEX Ticket Co. of New York and Arcus Ticket Co. of Chicago began the distribution of a combination portable cash box and ticket dispenser for theater use. Known as "Karry-Cash," the device has a capacity of two rolls of single or coupon tickets. All that is necessary at closing time is to set cover and lock the "Karry-Cash" and return it to the checker. Change and bills do not become mixed in carrying, and spot checking is easily done. The device, its exterior of 16-gauge steel and interior of 20-gauge steel, has welded joints and is easily carried or stored.

TICKETS

Production Increased by International Ticket Co.

INTERNATIONAL TICKET CO. expanded its production last year to take care of an increased demand for tickets of all types. Some new equipment was added in 1950, and still more is to be added this year for the firm's amusement-theater departments as well as other departments making other types of tickets, tags and labels. The company took cognizance of a demand for special tickets for giveaways. It has devised special equipment for the manufacture of special machine-folded stub-rod tickets.

Good Year Enjoyed in 1950 by Globe Ticket Co.

GLOBE TICKET CO. reports enjoying a good year in 1950. Although business was retarded a little by the uncertainty of the admissions tax situation, it picked up as soon as the problem was resolved. Once the tax matter was out of the way, the company resumed production at full steam to supply the demand of the theater industry for tickets, with the Los Angeles plant compelled to operate around the clock. The firm's new branches, notably that in Tacoma, are credited with showing quite an increase in business. The company expects business to hold up well this year.

POSTER CASES

Poblocki Extends Activity In Field of Poster Cases

POBLOCKI AND SONS experienced a complete new development in the poster case field. Portrait type cases with expansive metal trim and curved and colored cases were put into production on an extensive scale. Other cases were made with sliding doors. The firm reports that "exhibitors got away from run-of-the-mill stock size cases and ordered large size cases to take advantage of all the advertising space they had available."

ELECTRIC PLANTS

Defense Orders Strain Onan Civilian Production

D. W. ONAN & SONS of Minneapolis, which makes electric generating plants for theaters for emergency use, increased its production last year. However, it is pointed out, 1951 has brought the firm defense orders for generating equipment of such volume that its capacity for civilian production has been greatly over-extended. The company early this year was quoting more than 90-day delivery time. As the Year Book went to press the probability was seen that "the near future will find civilian production curtailed."

VENDING EQUIPMENT

Poblocki Puts Out Portable Vending Cart for Ozoners

A PORTABLE vending cart for hot and cold foods and beverages, was brought out by Poblocki and Sons especially for the use of drive-in theaters. The cart is described as a big money-maker for the outdoor house. It is dubbed the Snack-Kar.

HEARING AIDS

Telesonic Expands Market For Its Induction System

TELESONIC THEATREPHONE CORP. in 1950 further expanded its induction system of theater hearing aids to include representative houses from Boston to California. For 1951 Telesonic has planned a coordinated campaign to bring the large number of hearing-aid users into the theater field through the production and development of a small induction coil for theater uses to be attached to personal hearing aids. The new Telesonic listening units entirely eliminate the nuisance of plug-in hearing aids and the setting aside of special conspicuous seats for the hard of hearing.

PROCESSING EQUIPMENT

S.O.S. Hikes Production Of Bridgamatic Machine

SO.S. CINEMA SUPPLY CORP. expanded the production of its Bridgamatic, a completely self-contained automatic machine that permits the quick processing of film on an economical basis and is credited with solving the problem of keeping film being processed in motion without the need of continually handling it. Later in the year the company added to the line the Bridgamatic

Jr., said to possess the potentiality of revolutionizing film handling techniques for many TV stations and film producers. The Bridgamatic Jr. is compact, with patented overdrive, air squeegees, built-in drybox, heating elements and neoprene steel-lined two-gallon tanks. Positive film is developed 600 feet per hour and negative 160 feet per hour with but one gallon of solution. A new line of motion picture printers imported from Europe is being introduced by the firm this year.

MISCELLANEOUS

Big Product Increase by Drive-in Theater Mfg. Co.

ITS PRODUCT line-up was increased extensively by the Drive-in Theater Manufacturing Co. of Kansas City in 1950. Additions for use by both indoor and drive-in theaters included a complete line of chrome-face poster frames, several popular sizes of wall cabinets and easel frames, a popular size Banner cabinet, program time schedule holder for desk or wall mounting, plastic ticket space box-office lock, plastic speaker grill for box offices, single-roll ticket holder, Nite-King outdoor fluorescent lights, Little Giant vaporizer pumps, a complete line of wood ladders, porthole blowers, exterior Snow White brick and masonry paint, interior screen paint, exterior Snow White Paint, interior and exterior aluminum paint, liquid Bakelite plastic varnish and interior chrome finish.

Also added to the company's list were the following items for drive-ins only: vending cart for Coca-Cola, hot dogs, hot coffee, candy and other food and refreshments, new concession building speaker, double or single face entrance and exit lights measuring 40 by 15 by six inches and pre-expanded, pre-fabricated quarter-inch tempered pressed wood drive-in screen facing.

Lucite Program Holder from Associated Ticket & Register

A PROGRAM HOLDER made of lucite was one of the new items brought out by Associated Ticket and Register Co. It was offered in two types—hanging and easel. Besides providing a convenience for patrons, the hanging type can be used by manager and doorman for timing the show. The easel type is meant primarily for desk use.

Neumade Adapting Picture Equipment for Video Use

SPECIAL ADAPTATION of standard motion picture equipment for use in television has marked a trend in the Neumade Products Corp. business during the past year, according to Oscar F. Neu, president. Film practices and problems are being brought to the attention of a broadening business field, Neu says, and the market for numerous items of equipment is being expanded. Neumade's expansion plans for the current year include the occupation of additional factory space in Buffalo. A sizeable addition to the original factory there is scheduled for completion before June 1. There will be room for a number of pieces of heavy modern machinery which have already been ordered, according to Neu.

On the Record

SINCE 1933, and again during 1950, it has been our privilege to make a sizeable number of motion pictures for Industry.

One of our productions which is having a continuing success is "PHONEVISION" produced for the Zenith Radio Corporation to show how television can be given a "box-office" in return for better programs. Another is "STOP FIRES — SAVE JOBS" produced with the cooperation of the National Board of Fire Underwriters and the Factory Insurance Association to help reduce the number and cost of industrial fires. Still another is "TEX — THE STORY OF A CHAMPION CALF" produced for the Texas Company and acclaimed for its excellent writing, direction and color. And a series for McGraw-Hill on "PSYCHOLOGY IN EDUCATION" is winning wide acceptance throughout the teaching profession.

Meanwhile, in the field of television we have put a good many "commercials" on film, and would be glad to show you a reel of selected examples.

In appraising the qualifications of a producing organization, no yardstick can take the place of the question, "What have you done?" It is on that basis that we solicit opportunities with prospective clients.

LEGISLATIVE RESTRICTIONS IN FOREIGN FILM MARKETS

By NATHAN D. GOLDEN

Director, Motion Picture-Photographic Products Division, National Production Authority, United States Department of Commerce

DURING THE YEARS immediately after the war, the major concern of United States film companies operating in the foreign market was that of obtaining foreign exchange with which to make remittances of their film earnings. However, in recent years, as the film industries of the major foreign producing countries have developed and expanded, there has been an emphasis placed on legislative activity designed to assist and protect the development of the national film industry.

Actually both of these problems, transfer of foreign exchange and legislative restrictions, are closely related, but of the two the measures to protect the native film industries may have longer lasting effect on United States film distribution in foreign countries. This trend has a twofold effect on the distribution of United States films in foreign markets. Most protective measures tend to restrict the number of United States films that may be imported and exhibited and at the same time encourage production and exhibition of their own films offering more serious competition to United States films.

GOLDEN

Such legislation may take various forms, such as guaranteed playing time for nationally produced films, reduction in taxes when domestic films are shown, direct and indirect subsidy of the industry, import and foreign exchange regulations that limit foreign competition, dubbing restrictions, and other measures that promote or aid the domestic motion picture industry.

The United States film industry throughout 1950 has continued its efforts to solve the problems confronting the foreign distribution of their films. In addition to the economic factors involved, the industry considers it of the utmost importance that United States films, presenting the American way of life and exemplifying the workings of a free democracy, should be kept on the motion picture screens of the world. Film agreements were negotiated with Argentina, Japan, and the United Kingdom during 1950, and throughout the year negotiations have been carried on by the United States film industry with Italy, Germany, France, Spain and other countries—attempting to equitably solve the problems involved in this trend toward aiding the home industry at the expense of the United States films.

There follows a country by country resume of restrictive controls affecting the distribution of United States films throughout the world:

EUROPE

ALBANIA—All motion picture theaters in Albania have been nationalized and the importation, distribution, and exhibition of films is entirely in the hands of the Albanian government which has shown no desire to import any films except those of Soviet production.

AUSTRIA—No quota or contingent measures are in effect in Austria which might reduce or prevent the distribution of United States motion pictures. Import licenses are required. Transfer of foreign exchange for motion pictures is prohibited except in occasional individual cases when limited transfers of foreign exchange may be obtained through the Austrian National Bank. An agreement has been reached between the United States and Soviet element in Austria whereby exhibition of United States films in the Soviet Zone of Austria, hitherto prohibited, will be permitted. The agreement provides that the same number of United States films are to be shown in the Soviet Zone as Soviet films in the United States Zone.

BELGIUM—Belgian authorities have placed virtually no restrictions on the importation of foreign films. There are no quota measures in effect, import licenses are not required, and there are no restrictions placed on the transfer of film earnings.

BULGARIA—All theaters in Bulgaria are nationalized and the importation and distribution of motion pictures is controlled by the state monopoly.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA—The Government of Czechoslovakia has established a State monopoly that controls the production, distribution, and exhibition of motion pictures. No imports may be made without a license; an allocation of foreign exchange automatically follows issuance of the import license. While there are no regulations restricting the distribution of foreign films, measures making it mandatory to show native films are implied in the institution of the monopoly. No new United States films are known to have been released in Czechoslovakia during 1950.

DENMARK—The Board of Supply allocated 4,211,500 kroner to Danish distributors for the purchase or rental of motion pictures from abroad during 1950. This is an increase of 411,500 kroner over the total set aside for this purpose in 1949. Subsidiaries of United States producers have been allocated approximately 50 per cent of the kroner total which will permit them to remit about the same dollar amount as in 1949. Amounts earned above the allocation will be blocked to the credit of the United States producers and may be used only with prior approval of the National Bank of Denmark. There is no commitment on the part of the Government that any portion of the blocked funds may be transferred at some future date. In November 1949, legislation was passed providing financial assistance to Danish film producers. The law provided for 25 per cent of the entertainment tax receipts from exhibition of Danish films to be remitted to the producer of the film. (One Danish krone is worth about 15 cents in U. S. currency.)

FINLAND—There are no quotas limiting the number of films which may be imported into Finland, however, restrictions on the transfer of foreign exchange may tend to reduce the distribution of imported films. Import licenses are required and are granted to distributors who state in each license application that they will not require foreign exchange before the Bank of Finland is ready to grant it.

FRANCE—In France the Joint Franco-American Declaration of September 16, 1948 continues in effect. This agreement limits the number of dubbed features to be imported from the United States to 121, provides that French films must be shown five weeks out of each thirteen, and limits annual remittances of U. S. film earnings to $3,625,000. However, early in 1951 preliminary negotiations were begun on the revision of this agreement and an attempt will be made to increase the number of United States films that may be imported. Also in September 1948, the French Government created a fund for the temporary subsidy of the French film industry. Revenue for this fund is supplied by two taxes, one on theater admissions and the other a meterage tax based on the length of the film. As of July 1, 1950, approximately 2,400,000,000 francs had been put at the disposal of the French film industry from this fund, about 1,500,000,000 francs of which was used for assistance to feature film producers. (350 francs equal U. S. $1.00.)

GERMANY—During the 1949-50 film year the self-imposed quota for United States feature films to be licensed for import into Germany was set at 160. The film program for 1950-51 (beginning September 1950) was still under discussion at the end of 1950. Negotiations were being carried on in an effort to eliminate a fixed quota and to establish a voluntary control on the number of films to be imported which would be agreeable to both the Germans and the United States film industry. As late as the middle of January 1951, no agreement had been reached. The alternative is a Federal Law governing the number of films to be imported. A draft law to this effect was submitted to the German parliament by the German film producers association late in 1950. All revenue earned by United States film companies in Germany is blocked. The Economic Cooperation Administration has agreed to guarantee current expenses of United States film producers for operations in Western Germany and $1,163,539 was approved for this purpose in 1949 and $3,105,930 in 1950. Import licenses are required for the importation of films and are obtained through application to the Federal Ministry of Economics. At the close of 1950 the Federal Committee for Press, Film, and Radio of the German parliament was discussing the draft of a law which would reserve 25 per cent of screen playing time in Western Germany to German films.

GIBRALTAR—All booking of films into Gibraltar is done through London. Applications for dollars are made to the Financial Secretary of the Colony, and dollars can be had for the purchase of United States films only if the British Financial Secretary in England approves. A Gibraltar Ordinance provides that all U. S. dollars acquired must be surrendered to the Government. It is unlikely that permit to import films and export currency from Gibraltar would be granted.

GREECE—On August 25, 1950, the Greek Ministry of National Economy issued a decision regulating imports of U. S. films during the 12-month period from July 1, 1950 through June 30, 1951. The Ministry's decision again allocated $500,000 for film imports, payable quarterly at the rate of $125,000. As in the past, the decision provides that payment for prints, shipping charges, and advertising material would be effected in dollar exchange at the time of importation. The amount of dollar exchange left after payment of these expenses will be used for remitting royalty earnings in proportion to the blocked drachma deposits made with the Bank of Greece for the account of United States producers by their Greek distributors. Import licenses are required and are obtained from the Ministry of National Economy.

HUNGARY—The Motion Picture Export Association is operating in Hungary. Production, distribution, and exhibition of motion pictures have been nationalized and are completely under Government control. A contract which was signed with MPEA in the summer of 1948 was never honored and the films under the contract were never released in Hungary. No new U. S. films are known to have been imported and released in Hungary during the past two years. MPEA reported that in March 1950 the Hungarian Government issued an order requiring it to surrender all motion picture prints of member companies on hand in Hungary to the Ministry of Education.

ICELAND—Imports of motion pictures into Iceland have been curtailed since the beginning of 1948 because of shortage of foreign currencies, especially dollars. Import and currency licenses are required. The currency permit does not guarantee foreign exchange which is dependent upon exchange available and a priority determined by a foreign exchange committee. A law effective January 1, 1949, required the payment of a special license fee on the imports of motion picture films. The fee amounts to 100 per cent of the valuation of the import and currency license, and applies to films from all sources.

IRELAND—The importation of motion pictures into Ireland continues to be handled from the United Kingdom. All United States films that are exhibited are obtained from the British subsidiaries of United States film companies and payment is made in sterling. No quotas or other import regulations are in effect in Ireland that restrict importation and exhibition of United States films.

ITALY—At the close of 1950 there were no import quotas for motion pictures into Italy. Import permits are required. Negotiations were still being carried on, however, in an attempt to arrive at a mutually agreeable voluntary limitation on the number of U. S. films that might be brought into the country. Failure to arrive at a satisfactory agreement may lead to the imposition of Governmental controls on film imports.

The Italian film law, effective January 1, 1950, constituted an important protective measure for the Italian industry. The law requires exhibitors to reserve a minimum of 20 days each quarter for the showing of Italian feature films, establishes a Government contribution to feature film producers equal to 10 per cent of the gross receipts, and provides that exhibitors screening Italian feature films have the right to retain 20 per cent of the taxes payable by law on admissions. Italian exhibitors must include in each program the showing of at least one national short film, either documentary or newsreel. United States film companies have expressed their dissatisfaction with the above provisions and have termed them discriminatory. In addition to the above assistance, under the terms of the Italian law of July 1949, foreign films dubbed into the Italian language may be exhibited in Italy only upon payment of the sum of 2,500,000 lire for each film for a dubbing license. (625 lire equal U. S. $1.00 at legal rate of exchange.) There is no limitation on the number of dubbing licenses which can be purchased. Funds derived from the sale of dubbing licenses are assigned to finance the national film industry. Producers of Italian films receive a transferable license for dubbing one foreign film for every Italian film they produce.

During the past several years the transfer of foreign exchange arising from receipts from the showing of United States films in Italy has been restricted. In February 1949 provision was made for the transfer into dollars of five per cent of film earnings. Blocked funds may be invested in existing Italian motion picture establishments, participation in Italian film production, production of films in Italy, and purchase of foreign rights of Italian films. In August 1950, the Italian Government invoked Article 10 of the film law of July 1949, and established provisions governing film rental contracts. Under this regulation, rental contracts must be drawn up in accordance with one of the following procedures: A fixed price; a fixed price plus a percentage to be applied whenever receipts exceed a given amount, based on 25 per cent in towns of less than 10,000 inhabitants and 30 per cent in other places; and a straight percentage rental with a maximum of 42 per cent, which may be increased to 50 per cent only in the case of one-fourth of the films distributed by any single company in the course of a season. This decree on film rentals has evoked widespread concern among the United States distributors, as it is feared that it is only the forerunner of further restrictions which the Italian Government intends to impose upon the distribution of U. S. films.

LUXEMBOURG—There are no trade restrictions which might prevent, retard, or hinder United States films being shown in Luxembourg and no such measures are contemplated. Import permits are not required. Films rented by the Luxembourg theaters are paid for through Belgium and adequate foreign exchange has been available for this purpose.

MALTA—Early in January 1951 it was announced in London that all commercial film shipments to Malta had been suspended because of the announced intention of authorities in Malta to impose an import duty of three pence (about 3½ cents) per linear foot on all motion picture films entering the country. Practically all United States and British films entering Malta are distributed by the Malta United Film Corporation, a subsidiary of the Kinematograph Renters Society in London. Distributors hope that the Malta Government will reconsider its intention its intention to impose the new duties but as of the end of January 1951 there was no assurance that such would be the case.

NETHERLANDS—An import license is required for the importation of motion pictures and is obtained from the Nederlandsche Bioscoop Bond (Netherlands Motion Picture Association). Regulations governing playing time of films in the Netherlands during 1950 as established by the Bioscoop Bond provide that exhibitors should show for at least 12 weeks features that had not been made in the United States and for which no dollars were to be paid or from which no dollar debt would arise. According to the Bioscoop Bond the amount of foreign exchange made available by the Nederlandsche Bank for the importation of motion pictures from the United States in 1950 was fixed at the dollar equivalent of 4,800,000 guilders (one guilder equals about U. S. $0.26). The Association estimates that this amount will cover about 70 to 75 per cent of actual imports. The remaining 25 per cent will be credited to the distributors' non-transferable guilder accounts. The Bank further stated that the maximum percentage which may be paid from the net box-office income for film rentals has again been fixed at 32½ per cent, exclusive of newsreels. With respect to films payable in dollars a maximum of 65 per cent of the above 32½ per cent is transferable to the foreign producer. The conditions attached to the 1950 foreign exchange quota are virtually the same as in 1949.

NORWAY—There are no pertinent quota or contingent measures in effect in Norway for the import of United States films. Import permits are required. Arrangements for the transfer of dollars remained the same during 1949 and 1950 with the exception of changes necessitated by the devaluation of the krone on September 18, 1949. Kroner allotments were established for 1949 and 1950 as follows: For current transfer, 1,000,000 kroner in 1949 and 1,400,000 kroner in 1950; to be blocked for future transfer, 1,000,000 kroner in 1949 and 1,400,000 kroner in 1950; and an estimated amount to be set aside as operational expenses of U. S. film distributors in Norway, 2,000,000 kroner in 1949 and 1,200,000 kroner in 1950. (Prior to September 18, 1949 the krone equaled U. S. $0.201; since that date the krone has been worth about U. S. $0.14.)

POLAND—Government owned "Film Polski" has a monopoly of production, distribution, and exhibition of motion pictures for the entire country of Poland. All transfers of foreign exchange are subject to the approval of the Polish Government. Due to the serious shortage of foreign exchange in this country, the obtaining of such permits is extremely difficult. To date no foreign exchange has been secured for U. S. films. Import permits are required.

PORTUGAL—Remittances of accumulated royalties has been free of complications during recent years, however, from date of August 27, 1947, they have become subject to prior sanction of the Bank of Portugal. Theaters must exhibit Portuguese films one week to every five weeks of foreign films, except when national productions are not available. Since February 9, 1948, licenses have been required for all imports. Distributors have not yet experienced difficulty in obtaining licenses for films in spite of the Government's policy of limiting imports requiring payment in dollar exchange to essential products. On August 6, 1948, distributors were officially notified that they would be permitted to remit in 1948 the same amount of dollars remitted in 1947 and that U. S. film imports could not exceed those for 1947. During the years 1948, 1949, and 1950, a total of $600,000 annually has been allocated for motion picture films.

RUMANIA—On November 2, 1948, a decree was approved nationalizing all motion picture enterprises in Rumania, which covered all studios, laboratories, import, export, rental and marketing concerns with all their properties, equipment, furnishing and inventories. Foreign exchange may be transferred only upon approval by the National Bank of Rumania and as far as is known no transfers for U. S. films have been made during the past year.

SPAIN—The Spanish Government some years ago embarked on a program of encouragement to the domestic industry by direct and indirect subsidy. Licenses necessary to import foreign feature films are granted only to Spanish film producers, the number of import permits issued being dependent upon the classification of the domestic films produced. The producer may use the import license to bring in under his own name foreign films or he may sell the license at whatever the market will bear. In effect this provides a subsidy for the Spanish producer and limits the number of films that may be imported to the number of licenses earned by the Spanish producing industry. Import permits issued totaled 53 in 1948; 52 in 1949; and 56 during the first 11 months of 1950. Imported films must be dubbed into the Spanish language in Spain, and dubbing permits are issued to producers on the basis of the number of films produced in Spain. These dubbing permits are sold on the open market and also provide an indirect subsidy to the Spanish producer.

Spanish theaters must show a Spanish film one week out of six unless the film industry cannot provide the exhibitor with a Spanish production in which case he may continue to show foreign films. This is often the case. A newsreel must be shown on each theater program and the only newsreel permitted in Spain is the nationally produced "No-Do."

No foreign exchange is being granted by Spanish foreign exchange authorities for film earnings. When U. S. films are admitted, it is specified that they be compensated by a barter deal, exchanging such films for Spanish films or other products. While the acute shortage of foreign exchange exists, it appears unlikely that any basic change in the situation will occur.

SWEDEN—The Swedish foreign exchange control regulations made no provisions for the allocation of dollar exchange for the transfer of any amount of film royalties earned during the past several years. Import licenses are required but are readily granted with the notation that approval of the import license does not authorize allocation of foreign exchange. Up to the present time it has been possible to obtain rawstock film, negatives, and prints as have been needed to maintain normal distribution in Sweden of United States films.

SWITZERLAND—Imports of films are controlled by the quasi-official Swiss Film Chamber in Bern, which issues import permits to holders of quotas. Quotas for the importation of films into Switzerland are based on the Federal Decree of July 7, 1939, which granted distributors the right to import feature films to the same extent as imported during the 4-year period January 1935 through December 1938. The usual quota assigned to an importer is equal to at least 5/10 and at most 7/10 of the average number of 35mm. features he imported during this four year period. Provision is made for special cases, both for extra quotas for established importers and for assignment of quotas to importers who did not exist in 1938. Contingents are based on titles and are allotted to individual importers and not to countries. There are no restrictions on the transfer of foreign exchange. Government controls on film rentals were removed June 8, 1950. Prior to this action the Federal Price Control Office had established a ceiling of 50 per cent of theater receipts as the distributors' maximum share.

TURKEY—No quota or contingent measures which might reduce or prevent the distribution of U. S. motion pictures are in effect in Turkey. An import and foreign exchange permit must be obtained from the Turkish authorities. This permit can be obtained only after the motion picture has been approved by the Turkish Censorship Board. Although the transfer abroad of foreign exchange is strictly controlled, up to the present time, no difficulty has been encountered in obtaining dollars to pay for imported motion pictures.

Because of the nature of exchange regulations, United States film companies are not operating in Turkey as distributors of their films. Copies of their films are sold outright to Turkish distributors rather than leasing them on a percentage basis as is done in practically every major market in the world. The absence of use of the lease basis of distribution arises from the fact that the proceeds of any foreign capital invested in Turkey are blocked and can be transferred only in the form of certain domestic products, except when special arrangements have been made by foreign firms with the Turkish Ministry of Finance.

Motion picture imports are subject to a transaction tax, which is assessed on most types of processed and semi-processed goods, imported into Turkey at a rate of 18 per cent of landed cost (which is defined to include customs duties and various miscellaneous taxes). In March 1948, the Turkish fiscal authorities ruled that not only was the motion picture films involved in imported copies subject to this tax but that the royalties or their equivalent were to be included in calculating the basis of the tax. In spite of strong protests by importers and distributors, since that date the 18 per cent transaction tax has been levied on the royalty as well as the cost of the films used in imported copies.

There is also a substantial admissions tax differential in favor of Turkish films which gives a strong impetus to the domestic industry. All efforts to have this differential reduced or removed have failed.

U.S.S.R.—The Soviet film industry is a Government monopoly under the jurisdiction of the Ministry of the Motion Picture Industry, and both domestic production and importation of foreign films are subject to the regulations of this ministry. In September 1948 an agreement was negotiated providing for the purchase of United States feature films for showing in Russia with payment to be made in dollars. However, delays were encountered in obtaining final Soviet approval of the agreement and no United States films were released in Russia.

UNITED KINGDOM—The new Anglo-American Film Agreement of October 1, 1950, signed by the British Board of Trade and the United States motion picture industry again provides for annual remittances of $17,000,000 but contains bonus provisions which are expected to bring total remittances to about $21,000,000. Specifically the agreement provides that during the 12-month period following October 1, 1950, the British Treasury will afford facilities for remittance in dollars, at the official rate of exchange, such amounts of American film revenues as will enable the following payments to be made: (1) $17,000,000 payable as a fixed amount in equal monthly installments; plus (2) the amounts stipulated in Appendix A of the agreement. Appendix A contains the bonus arrangements providing for remittance in dollars, from unremittable sterling, amounts equal to (a) 23 per cent of money spent, directly or indirectly for film production in the United Kingdom; (b) 50 per cent of payments to British interests for the distribution of British films in the Western Hemisphere on a percentage basis; and (c) 50 per cent of such payments to British interests for the acquisition of rights within the Western Hemisphere, other than on a percentage basis, for British films.

U. S. film revenues accruing during the year and not remitted under the above arrangements will be dealt with as follows: A schedule of permitted uses subject to agreed principles are outlined. Schedule A includes uses within the film industry in the sterling areas without limit as to amount; Schedule B includes uses outside the film industry within the sterling area without limit as to amount; and Schedule C encompasses temporary investments, not constituting a permanent use or disposal of the funds. A Control Committee representing the British Government and the U. S. film industry will control permitted expenditures under schedules and may approve expenditures for additional purposes.

Government trade restrictions on the showing of foreign films have been in effect in the United Kingdom since 1927. Effective October 1, 1950, 30 per cent of the first feature films exhibited in British theaters and 25 per cent of the supporting films (second features and shorts) must be British productions. The so-called Eady Plan to assist the British film industry was put into operation in September 1950. This plan calls for an increase in the entertainment tax on tickets costing over 1 shilling 6 pence (about 21 cents) to establish a subsidy to be used by the British film producers, distributors, and exhibitors. It has been estimated that approximately 3,000,000 pounds sterling ($8,400,000) will be made available annually from this fund.

Separate import licenses have been required for all motion picture films except newsreels since May 1948.

The National Film Finance Corporation was established in March 1949 and was given 5,000,000 pounds sterling as an operating fund from which loans could be made to assist British producers.

CANADA

United States motion pictures enter and are distributed freely throughout Canada without quota or exhibition restrictions. The Canadian distributor is permitted to remit, at the going, or current, rate of exchange, to the United States producer the net profits on rentals and royalties, less a withholding tax of 10 per cent. The rate of exchange at the close of 1950 was $1.05 Canadian for $1.00 U. S. The permission granted by the Foreign Exchange Control Board for such remittances can be withdrawn at the Board's discretion if the Canadian foreign exchange position should warrant it.

In March 1950, the Corporation in its first annual report stated that loans were granted for the production of 63 films, of which 21 had been exhibited, 14 as first feature films. In July 1950 Parliament voted an additional 1,000,000 pounds sterling to be used by the Corporation.

YUGOSLAVIA—The motion picture industry in Yugoslavia has been nationalized and all phases of the industry including production, distribution, and exhibition are entirely controlled by the Government. In October 1948, an agreement was signed with the Yugoslav Government providing for the purchase of 25 U. S. features to be paid for in dollars. This agreement was significant in that U. S. films again entered this market and also it represented a reversal in the film policy of the Yugoslav Government. Prior to the agreement the official attitude was one of hostility to U. S. films and to encourage showing of Soviet pictures. There is an indication that the trend toward re-appearance of U. S. films has been accelerated and it may be accurate to state that U. S. films are now predominant in Yugoslavia.

SOUTH AMERICA

ARGENTINA—Since March 1949 the Argentine Government has not issued permits for the importation of United States films and no remittances of film earnings have been authorized for several years. Negotiations carried on in Washington and New York early in 1950 between the Argentine Minister of Finance and the major United States film companies resulted in a new five-year agreement covering United States film operations in Argentina. Major provisions of the agreement were the unrestricted entry of U. S. films into Argentina and remittances to be authorized at the rate of $1,100,000 annually. Since May 1950 this agreement has been under consideration for purposes of ratification by the Argentine Government; however, at the close of 1950 it had not been ratified and as far as is known no import permits had been granted and no dollar exchange had been made available for remittances of film earnings.

The Argentine Government issued a new decree, dated August 9, 1950, affording Argentine producers further protection in the exhibition of their films. Previously, first-run theaters had to show Argentine films one week out of every month and other theaters were required to exhibit Argentine films two weeks out of every five. Under the new decree, first-run theaters and other principal theaters of the suburbs, called intermediate theaters, must show Argentine pictures one week out of every month, while all other theaters must exhibit Argentine pictures three weeks out of every six. The decree also states that should the receipts from the Argentine film be equal to 80 per cent of the "holdover requirement" for foreign films, the Argentine film will continue in the first-run theater for another and subsequent weeks. The new decree augments the minimum percentage of gross receipts which the Argentine exhibitor must pay as a rental for Argentine films. First-run theaters must pay as rental at least 50 per cent, intermediate theaters 45 per cent, and other theaters 40 per cent during the first week of exhibition, and 30 per cent during subsequent weeks.

BOLIVIA—Import permits are required for motion pictures and are granted on the basis of the amount of foreign exchange allocated by the Minister of Finance. During 1949, a monthly quota of $18,000 was allocated for motion pictures during the first three quarters of the year; no allocation was made for the fourth quarter. The Ministry of Finance allotted $140,000 for the importation of 35-mm. entertainment films for the year 1950 and $10,000 for 16-mm. films. The allotment for 35-mm. films is distributed among the three importers as follows: $55,000 to one, $45,000 to one, and $40,000 to the other. Two of the importers bring in films on the basis of a fixed cost with payment made at the time of importation, the other imports films on a percentage basis. Because of the restrictions in the granting of foreign exchange, Bolivia imported fewer pictures in 1949 and 1950, and theaters maintained their operations by using old films which already had been exhibited several times.

BRAZIL—Import permits are required. The Bank of Brazil in September 1950 informed the film companies that new import quotas, beginning with the second quarter of 1951, would be allocated on the basis of average imports for the preceding four years (1946-49). Quotas issued during 1950 and the first quarter of 1951 had been based on average 1946-48 import volume. Efforts made by foreign film distributors to have film import quotas increased met with little success as in most cases import quotas will remain unchanged. Dollar remittances for film earnings as of the close of 1950 were satisfactory. At the end of October 1950 the transfer of first category film remittances (70 per cent of the total earnings) was current through September. The transfer of second category remittances (the remaining 30 per cent) was current through May 1950.

In June 1950 regulations were issued increasing from three to six the number of Brazilian feature films which must be exhibited in the theaters annually.

BRITISH GUIANA—Other than the regulation that 10 per cent British feature films and 50 per cent British newsreels must be shown annually, there are no quota measures which might reduce or prevent distribution of U. S. films. All film revenue from British Guiana is remitted to the film distributors who maintain head offices in Trinidad.

CHILE—No special restrictions are imposed on the entry of United States motion pictures into Chile, although importation of films is limited in value by the yearly allocation of foreign exchange set forth in Chile's foreign exchange budget. For the past several years United States motion picture distributors in Chile have been encountering difficulties in obtaining dollar exchange to remit to their principals. Budget allocations for entertainment films (35-mm. and 16-mm.) from all sources in 1950 were fixed at $360,000 in U. S. currency and $110,000 in other currencies, which is practically the same amounts as allocated in 1948 and 1949. Import permits are required. During 1950 import licenses were somewhat delayed, licenses for the first half being received late in the second quarter and licenses for the second half at the close of the third quarter. As the result of this delay, imports for 1950 will probably be considerably below the 1949 level.

No measures make it mandatory to exhibit national films nor are there any laws in Chile which establish or require that a percentage of domestic films be exhibited in each theater.

COLOMBIA—The Office of Exchange Control through the issuance of Decision (Acuerdo) No. 53 dated November 16, 1950, increased the quotas of official exchange assigned to motion picture distributors in Colombia for the payment of royalties or the direct purchase of films. Quotas for the period July 1, 1949 through June 30, 1950 were adjusted to the full amount of royalties payable for that period, thus permitting the remittance of royalties earned by the foreign motion picture companies during that period but not previously remitted because they exceeded the importers' quotas. With respect to the year July 1, 1950 through June 30, 1951, Acuerdo No. 53 authorized quotas equal to the adjusted quotas for the past year plus 10 per cent. Distributors who purchase their films are authorized quotas on the basis of royalties which would have been payable had they imported the films under royalty contracts. Remittances for royalties or the purchase of films in excess of the quotas provided may be made by means of exchange certificates. Import permits are required.

Unremitted film royalties earned prior to May 20, 1949 are covered by a five-year, 60-monthly-payment plan set up in August 1949 by the Office of Exchange Control and accepted by the foreign motion picture distributors. This plan has worked well and monthly payments have been made regularly since June 1949.

ECUADOR—Motion picture films imported into Ecuador are included in the "C" or "luxury" list of imports and foreign exchange for film remittances must be obtained in the legal free market. In December 1950 the average selling rate of the dollar in the free market for "C" list imports was 18.5 sucres plus a tax of 44 per cent computed on the CIF value of the imported item, making the exchange rate approximately 25.10 sucres to the dollar. It is reported that dollar exchange is available for such remittances. The par value rate of exchange in December 1950 was set at 15 sucres to the dollar. Import permits are required.

PARAGUAY—Under the multiple exchange system established November 27, 1950 by the Bank of Paraguay motion picture films were classified in Group III requiring payment for U. S. films to be made at the rate of 6.0821 guaranios to the dollar. Prior to this classification, motion picture films were included in Group II with an exchange rate of 4.9821 guaranios to the dollar. Import licenses are not required.

During the past year the practice of obtaining United States films from Argentine distributors for showing in Paraguay has broken down because Argentine distributors have demanded payment in dollars. Practically all films shown in Paraguay prior to this development were imported from Argentina and paid for in Argentine pesos. The few new U. S. pictures now entering Paraguay are being obtained directly from the United States. This method is not favored by Paraguayan distributors because of the high cost in the outright purchase of film, whereas films from the Argentine distributors were obtained on a percentage basis.

PERU—Motion pictures are on the list of permitted imports and may be entered without license or authorization of any kind. The status of remittances of film earnings remains unchanged. Applications for revalidation of official exchange purchase permits granted through August 1948 still are pending action. Foreign exchange for remittance of film earnings since August 1948 must be obtained in the free market which in December 1950 was at the rate of 15.64 soles to the dollar or may be transferred in the form of exchange certificates with the prior approval of the Minister of Finance. Exchange certificates in December 1950 were being issued at a rate of 15.12 soles to the dollar.

SURINAM—In Surinam each exhibitor of films is limited in his exhibition by currency exchange restrictions. Remittance of the film companies for showing of films is 32½ per cent of the gross receipts. Each exhibitor is allowed exchange for U. S. currency in proportion to his volume of business, 75 per cent of the allowed quota may be remitted in dollars and the remaining 25 per cent in pounds sterling. Import licenses will be granted for motion picture films only by special permission of the Foreign Exchange Control Board.

URUGUAY—Import permits are required and applications must be made to the office of the Contralor de Exportaciones e Importaciones for both an import license and the necessary foreign exchange. While no quantitative restrictions are imposed on the importation of motion pictures, United States distributors face increasing difficulties on account of the strictness of the exchange control authorities in the allocation of dollars for imports. Film imports are included in the list of non-essential or luxury items (Category 3) for the purpose of allocation of exchange. This means that exchange will be granted after all items in Categories One and Two are given full consideration.

On October 6, 1949, the problem seemed to reach a climax when Uruguayan authorities required that the declared value of films to be imported should be the same as that appearing in the respective contracts between producers and local distributors. This measure would have created serious problems, since the distributors would have to indicate on the import permit the contract value of a film instead of the present nominal declared value of the films, with the result that dollar quotas granted for film imports would quickly be exhausted. This measure has not as yet been put into effect.

Remittances of film royalties is effected at the free market rate which in December 1950 was 2.40 pesos to the dollar. No difficulties are encountered in transferring film earnings.

VENEZUELA—No permits are required for the importation of motion pictures nor for the purchase of exchange in payment of such imports. There are at present no import or foreign exchange restrictions which would serve to restrict the showing of U. S. films in Venezuela.

MEXICO AND CENTRAL AMERICA

MEXICO—Since February 3, 1949, an import permit has been required for motion picture films. There are no quantitative restrictions on the importation of motion pictures and no difficulty has been encountered in the transfer of dollar exchange for film remittances. There has been considerable agitation to reserve playing time for Mexican films and in May 1950 the Mexican Directorate General of Motion Pictures established screen quotas for towns, cities, and villages having not more than one motion picture theater. The quota provided that in every center of population where there is only one theater, a minimum of six Sunday programs of Mexican origin were to be shown in every thirteen weeks. In October 1950 this screen quota was invalidated.

In August 1950, a draft of proposed new regulations for the Mexican motion picture industry was submitted to the National Council of Cinematographic Art and the Council appointed a committee to study the draft which will eventually be presented to the Mexican Congress for enactment into law. Distributors of United States films in Mexico have expressed concern over several articles of the draft law. Among these are a provision by which the Directorate General is granted the power to deny authorization for the exhibition of foreign films when reasons of reciprocity or the public interest make such action necessary; articles of the law that grant the Directorate General the power to require theaters and theater chains to devote up to 50 per cent of their total exhibition time to Mexican films; and an article which states that no motion picture, domestic or foreign, produced for exhibition in theaters may be publicly exhibited without the authorization of the Ministry of the Interior through the Directorate General of Motion Pictures. As of the close of 1950 these regulations had not been enacted into law. The trade agreement between the United States and Mexico expired at the end of 1950 and new tariff rates were established effective January 18, 1951. Duties for 35-mm. positive developed motion pictures which were included in the trade agreement at a rate of 22 pesos per legal kilogram are now subject to duties assessed at the rate of 25 pesos per legal kilogram plus 10 per cent of the value of the film. The value of the film is the declared value or an official value calculated at 96.65 pesos per kilogram, depending on which is higher. (In January 1950 the Mexican peso equaled about 11.5 cents in U. S. currency.)

COSTA RICA—No quota or contingent measures are in effect in Costa Rica that might interfere with the showing of United States films. On the contrary, over 85 per cent of the films shown in Costa Rica are distributed by U. S. film companies. Import permits are not required. On October 1, 1949, exhibitors in Costa Rica were notified by the Board of Exchange Control that as of that date no further allocations for dollar exchange at the official rate of 5.67 colones to the dollar would be made for the importation of motion pictures. The fixed monthly quota of $7,000, which was estimated to cover only 35 per cent of requirements, was discontinued. In April 1950 the Costa Rican Congress promulgated a new foreign exchange control law. This law provides for the classification of imports into five categories. As no specific classification has been made concerning entertainment motion pictures, a new agreement has been arrived at between the Central Bank of Costa Rica and the Costa Rican exhibitors. In accordance with this new agreement, films are subject to the regular customs charges and, in addition, a 5 per cent income tax and a 10 per cent exchange surtax are deducted from the gross amounts remittable to the foreign producers as rental of the films. All foreign exchange required for payment of rental on motion pictures must be obtained from the "free official market" at rates which in December 1950 fluctuated between 8.50 and 9.05 colones to the dollar.

EL SALVADOR—There are no trade restrictions designed to reduce or prevent the distribution of United States films in El Salvador. Import permits are not required and no difficulty has been encountered in the transfer of foreign exchange. All distribution of films is handled by the Circuito de Teatros Nacionales, a government monopoly. The budget of the Circuito for the year 1950 provided for payment of 504,000 colones (U. S. $201,600) rental on films released in El Salvador during the year.

GUATEMALA—Import permits are not required and there are no foreign exchange restrictions in Guatemala.

HONDURAS—Import permits are not required, and while foreign exchange for films, as well as all other foreign exchange transactions, must be cleared by the Foreign Exchange Control Commission, no difficulty has been encountered.

NICARAGUA—Importation of motion picture films into Nicaragua has remained unrestricted and import permits are not required. The banks, however, do not authorize foreign exchange at the official rate of 5 cordobas to the dollar for the importation of motion pictures. Distributors are forced to procure necessary dollars from the street exchange at the unofficial rate, which in September 1950 was about 7.15 cordobas to the dollar. No changes are anticipated in this respect.

PANAMA—Import permits are not required. United States currency is the medium of exchange in Panama and there are no restrictions prohibiting or limiting the transfer of funds.

CUBA—There are no laws in effect in Cuba that restrict the importation or exhibition of U. S. motion pictures; neither are there any exchange controls or quota restrictions which might hamper the marketing of pictures.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC—No restrictions on importation of films or transfer of foreign exchange.

AFRICA

ALGERIA — Regulations continue in effect which stipulate a reservation of four out of each thirteen weeks for the showing of French films. The direct importation of films from foreign countries has practically ceased and normally all films are sent to Paris for dubbing and then brought into Algeria from France. Film earnings are either deposited locally or remitted to Paris.

BELGIAN CONGO—Import permits are not required for motion pictures and although licenses are required for the transfer of foreign exchange, no difficulties have been experienced in securing dollars to pay for U. S. films.

BRITISH EAST AFRICA — All imports into British East Africa are licensed. Despite the fact that British East Africa lies within the sterling area and suffers from an acute shortage of dollars, U. S. films continue to dominate the market and it seems unlikely that any measures are contemplated to reduce the number of films imported.

EGYPT—United States film companies in Egypt are currently operating under a provisional agreement whereby only 35 per cent of film earnings are eligible for remittance in dollars. Earnings in excess of 35 per cent have been blocked since July 1947. The ban on dubbing remains in effect and not more than 3 pictures can be dubbed annually. There are no quantitative restrictions on the imports of films, although import licenses are required.

ETHIOPIA—Practically all U. S. films shown in Ethiopia are obtained through the distributors in Cairo and payment is made in sterling or Egyptian pounds. During 1950 the inability of theater operators to obtain foreign exchange forced them to accept second-rate films. Two of the four theaters operating in Addis Ababa were forced to stop importing films from Egypt and elsewhere because of the rigid exchange control enforced by the State Bank of Ethiopia.

FRENCH MOROCCO—Import permits are required for all goods, including films, arriving from all countries except France. Since almost all U. S. film companies have their distribution offices in Paris, films usually enter without formalities. The transfer of foreign exchange is subject to approval of the Protectorate Government, which has not been inclined to make dollars available for film revenues. In actual practice, U. S. film companies send their franc profits to their head offices in Paris.

FRENCH WEST AFRICA—Exchange authorities in French West Africa are not allotting dollars for the importation of motion pictures. Practically all films are imported from France and distributors are forced to handle their revenues in francs.

GOLD COAST—An import permit must be secured before goods can be imported into the Gold Coast and imports from the United States are allowed only if the item is essential and cannot be secured from the sterling area. All films, including those originating in the United States, are imported from the United Kingdom or from Nigeria.

LIBERIA—Import permits are not required and there are no restrictions on the transfer of foreign exchange. No 35mm. films are exhibited in Liberia, only 16mm. films being shown in the three theaters in operation. There is one 35mm. theater in Sierra Leone which imports all of its films through the United Kingdom.

MADAGASCAR—Import licenses are required for motion pictures imported from countries other than France. Because of the dollar shortage and exchange restrictions, films are imported from France and are paid for in francs. This does not mean that all films are of French production, about 60 per cent of the films received are of United States origin, but all films are dubbed in the French language in France before being imported. Regulations require that one-third of the pictures shown must be French films.

MOZAMBIQUE—Import permits are required, but film exhibitors have not had any difficulty obtaining films since most South African distributors have found it possible to accept payment for their rental fees in South African pounds. In those few cases where dollar payments were required, the exchange has been made available.

SOUTH PACIFIC, ASIA, AND THE EAST

AUSTRALIA — Perhaps the most serious restriction imposed on the distribution of United States films is that covering remittances to the United States of royalties earned in Australia. Since the beginning of 1948 payments of royalties have been restricted to 50 per cent of earnings returned in the base year 1946. Remittances on the basis are estimated at about $3,500,000. Import permits are required but there are no restrictions on the number of pictures to be imported. In the states of New South Wales and Victoria there are quota laws, determined yearly, which govern the percentage of Australian and British films to be shown. In New South Wales distributors are required to distribute a number of Australian films equal to three per cent of the total number of films distributed, and exhibitors are required to exhibit 2.5 per cent Australian films and 15 per cent British films. In Victoria the law provides a quota for Australian films which is the same as that in New South Wales but does not require the showing of British films. When it is not economically feasible to maintain this quota the restriction is waived and in practice the quotas are seldom adhered to.

BURMA—There are no quota or contingent measures which might restrict or prevent the distribution of United States films in Burma. Import licenses are required but are generally issued NIGERIA—The Government of Nigeria has instituted the allotment of semi-annual grants of $30,000 for the purchase of United States motion pictures. Prior to August 1949, all films shown in British West Africa were purchased or leased from agents in the United Kingdom for which sterling was paid. The Exchange Control Board decided to reverse its previous policy because of the inadequate supply of films from the sterling area. Import permits are required.

TANGIER AND SPANISH MOROCCO—Import permits are not required. Tangier is a free money market and foreign exchange is available, though expensive. Most Tangier exhibitors pay film rental in either Moroccan francs or Spanish pesetas. In Spanish Morocco exhibitors customarily show all Spanish produced films, although there is no requirement to do so. Spanish Moroccan exhibitors obtain their films from Spain and foreign exchange is made available only through Madrid.

TUNISIA—Import permits are required for all foreign films imported directly. All United States films shown in Tunisia are imported either from France or Algiers and do not require import permits. Each theater in Tunisia must exhibit at least 12 French films a year; moreover, each U. S. producer is limited to the showing of 12 films each year. Foreign films not dubbed must have French subtitles and such films, of whatever national origin, are restricted to two theater showings or runs in all Tunisia. Permission for the transfer of profits of foreign film companies has been granted only from time to time on a limited basis.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA—In November 1948 the South African Government announced new exchange and import controls which substantially curtailed imports from the United States and other non-sterling countries. Under this scheme importers of United States motion pictures were permitted to remit in dollars only 50 per cent of the total amount they remitted to the United States companies in the calendar year 1947. This exchange control scheme was replaced by a comprehensive import licensing system effective July 1, 1949, governing all imports from all countries including sterling countries. United States film companies are still sending films to South Africa and the funds over and above the amounts they may remit are being held in South Africa.

without much difficulty. The principal restrictions are the monetary regulations and the scarcity of dollar and other foreign exchange. In principle, no importation of any article is permitted unless foreign exchange for the payment is available. While little restriction is imposed on the issuance of import licenses, earnings derived from the exhibition of these films are blocked. Producers' agents are prohibited from remitting rental receipts abroad. Formerly Burmese currency receipts were exchanged for foreign currency at Hong Kong and Bangkok, but fearing the uncontrolled drain on its foreign exchange reserves entailed by these operations, the Burmese Government during the past year prohibited this practice and directed that such funds would be authorized for export only if prior approval for conversion has been received.

CEYLON—Import permits are not required. Exchange controls which came into effect in June 1948 have not seriously hampered the importation of films. Transmission of foreign exchange is controlled by the Controller of Exchange. The annual quota for motion pictures is about $200,000 established on a historical basis, using the year 1946 as the base period.

CHINA—The communist regime has taken over complete control of production, distribution, and exhibition of motion picture films in all areas of China under their control. Although authorities will allow the import of new films, the prohibitive customs duty and the lack of any remittance of film earnings will probably prevent such imports. So far as is known no new United States films are being imported.

Fiji Islands—Most films shown in the Fiji Islands are imported from New Zealand and payments is made in New Zealand pounds. Films imported directly from the United States would be subject to license requirements applicable to imports from hard currency areas.

India—Imports of motion pictures into India are regulated by licenses issued by Governmental import control authorities. Licenses are granted against quotas prescribed for individual importers on the basis of their past imports. The ultimate object in restricting imports is to conserve foreign exchange. Transmission of foreign exchange is controlled by the Reserve Bank of India and is automatically limited by restricting imports.

Indochina—Imports into Indochina are controlled by quotas. Import permits are required. Basically no foreign exchange may be transferred without permission of the Exchange Office and this office is very strict in granting exchange for essential imports only. The most popular method of obtaining U. S. films for distribution is by purchase since the question of dollar remittance on earnings is a very delicate one and the exchange control is endeavoring to cut all dollar expenditures. Foreigners may not manufacture or distribute films in Indochina. Films may be distributed only by firms authorized by the Government. Theaters must show French films five weeks out of each thirteen. French influence is expected to remain strong and every effort will be made to push French motion pictures.

Indonesia—The Indonesian Foreign Exchange Institute granted the ten United States film companies and one British film company, a joint exchange allotment of 600,000 Indonesian rupiahs for conversion into dollar exchange during the first four months of 1950. This sum was divided evenly among the 11 companies. In 1950 each company in order to be eligible for a foreign exchange allotment must bring in a minimum of 7 feature films during each four months of the year. During the second four months of 1950 the same amount of foreign exchange was allocated, 600,000 rupiahs. In addition, an amount of exchange equal to one company's share of the 600,000 rupiahs was allocated for use of a new independent United States film company entering the market. The equal division of the foreign exchange allocation among the 12 film companies, without regard to their varying rank in the amount of paid admissions, has been a source of dissatisfaction to the companies whose billings are largest. Thus far, efforts on the part of U. S. film companies to induce the Indonesian authorities to allocate exchange on the basis of film rental income has been unsuccessful. The film companies' already large blocked balances, which increase steadily as the bulk of their income cannot be remitted abroad, continues to be a major problem for them.

Japan—Circular No. 8, dated April 8, 1950, issued by General Headquarters, Supreme Commander for the Allied Powers (SCAP) regulates admission and dissemination of all information media into Japan, including motion pictures. United States firms wishing to import and distribute motion pictures in Japan must make application for a license through the Civil Information and Education Section to the Foreign Investment Board of General Headquarters, SCAP. Motion picture producers or distributors, separately or in groups, may be licensed to import and distribute films in Japan. The motion picture industry of any country may bring into Japan in any one calendar year up to the maximum number of films imported from that country and cleared for exhibition in any one calendar year in the ten years prior to December 7, 1941, and actually exhibited within 6 months of the end of the calendar year in which they were brought in. Additional feature films may be admitted provided at least half of the films already imported during the calendar year in question have been regarded as having reorientation value as distinguished from purely entertainment films. If the applicant belongs to a country other than the United States his application shall be submitted through the mission representing his country in Japan.

Trade papers reported that the Motion Picture Export Association and the Japanese Government reached an agreement in July 1950 concerning U. S. film imports. The agreement covered nine months of 1950 and 1951 and provided for the release of 78 United States film programs of features and shorts and authorized United States companies to convert $1,500,000 from accumulated yen earnings in Japan.

New Caledonia—Import permits for foreign films are not required, however, special authorization is needed to purchase foreign exchange. There is strict Government control of all transactions which require the transfer of foreign exchange. Permits for the use of foreign exchange are issued theoretically only for items considered of prime necessity. However, in actual practice it has been possible for film importers to obtain the foreign exchange required to fill most of their needs.

New Zealand—New Zealand law makes it mandatory for film distributors to acquire British feature films to the extent of not less than 20 per cent of the number of foreign feature films exhibited. There are no restrictions prohibiting or limiting the transfer of foreign exchange for films.

Pakistan—Import permits for individual films are required only if the motion pictures are imported directly from a foreign country in the hard currency area. At present U. S. motion pictures are distributed in Pakistan from headquarters in Bombay and enter Pakistan on a general license. The transfer of foreign exchange is limited by the Foreign Exchange Regulation Act of 1947. While severe restrictions are possible under this Act, the Government's dollar position has so far been such that the Act has been liberally administered. Sixty per cent of the receipts from the exhibition of U. S. films are paid by the exhibitor in Pakistan rupees into accounts of the U. S. distributors, who may draw the full amount in dollars.

Philippines—In June 1949, an Act was passed requiring theaters to exhibit pictures made in the Philippines to the extent of 10 per cent of their annual exhibitions. The present Philippine import control law requires that all imports be licensed. There are no quantitative restrictions placed on the imports of motion pictures, however, the import control law of May 19, 1950 places limitations on the remittance of film earnings. This law states that goods intended solely for rent, lease, or exhibition, may be imported without quota allocation, provided that at least 25 per cent of the gross rentals, royalties, and earnings paid therefor shall not be allowed for remittance abroad. Thus, foreign exchange for U. S. film remittances is limited to 75 per cent of film earnings. Foreign exchange for payments is made available to holders of valid import licenses.

Singapore and Malaya—An import permit is required for the purchase and importation of motion pictures into Singapore. In considering an application for an import permit the Controller of Imports and Exports is guided by the advice and recommendation of the Official Film Censor. According to the Foreign Exchange Regulations, the purchase of foreign exchange for outward remittances is prohibited except with special permission of the Controller of Foreign Exchange. Each of the major U. S. film companies operating in Singapore has its own agreement with the Controller of Foreign Exchange. It is estimated that the remittance of profits homeward by U. S. film distributors in Singapore for 1950 amounted to about 80 per cent for each company. Ten per cent of the playing time, specifically 7 days out of each 70-day period, must be devoted to British films.

THAILAND (SIAM)—No import permits are required for films imported into Thailand. The Foreign Exchange Board which had authority over the transfer of foreign exchange was dissolved at the beginning of 1948. Foreign exchange for the purpose of importing films may be obtained at the open market rate which in January 1951 was about 22 baht to the dollar compared with the official rate of 12.50 baht to the dollar.

ADEN—Import permits are required for all goods originating outside the sterling area. Aden, as a British Crown Colony, has regulations which state that no import permits will be granted for goods from Western Hemisphere countries except for articles which cannot be obtained from the sterling area or from European sources and the purchase of which cannot be deferred without serious loss to the community.

IRAN—Foreign exchange may not be taken out of the country without the permission of the Foreign Exchange Commission. This is one obstacle to the establishment of U. S. film distribution agencies in Iran. U. S. film companies sell the distribution rights to their films for a specified period of time with the stipulation that the films shall be destroyed at the end of that period. Payment is made at the legal selling rate (former free market rate) which at the close of 1950 was 48.75 rials to the dollar as compared with the official rate of 32 rials to the dollar.

IRAQ—Since 1947, the Directorate General of Imports has allocated the sum of $200,000 yearly for the importation of United States motion pictures. For 1950 this amount was divided among 8 firms to purchase U. S. films and each firm was authorized to enter into a contract with one of eight specified United States producers. Permits are required to import films into Iraq whether the transaction is outright purchase of the film or a joint-account percentage rental arrangement.

ISRAEL—No quotas or contingent measures exist for the distribution and exhibition of motion pictures in Israel. The scarcity of dollar exchange may tend to restrict the volume of business of United States distributors. In principle, no importation of any article is granted unless foreign exchange for payment of such article is available. For U. S. motion pictures, however, an agreement was made in June 1949 whereby the importation of film prints was secured, leaving the question of dollar transfers for later negotiation. No dollar remittances are permitted for film royalties.

LEBANON—Import permits are required. Foreign exchange problems still plague United States companies endeavoring to remit their dollars. The only source of foreign exchange is the open or free market at rates considerably higher than the official rate of exchange.

SYRIA—In March 1950 the Syro-Lebanese Customs was dissolved and a rather confused situation resulted. In general, the distribution of U. S. films prior to this time was handled by Lebanese distributors with headquarters in Beirut. The Syrian Government has established an independent customs service and has begun to levy duties on goods imported from Lebanon. The general policy of the present Syrian Government is to get Syrian trade into the hands of Syrians. Another basic policy of the Government is to reduce Syria's unfavorable balance of trade. A system of important licensing has been in effect for several years and is currently being tightened up. Dollars for the importation of films must be purchased on the free market at a premium amounting to about 50 per cent of the official rate. The free purchasing rate of dollar instruments in Syria in December 1950 was about 3.40 Syrian pounds to the dollar compared to the official rate of 2.20 Syrian pounds to the dollar.

BETTER BUSINESS IN BRITAIN

By BERNARD CHARMAN

Managing Editor, Daily Film Renter

ALWAYS at the beginning of a year we in Britain look hopefully into the coming months and anticipate a betterment of trade conditions. At the close of each year we look back across a sea of wrecked hopes and a sad tale of disillusionment.

There was, however, one outstanding feature of 1950 as far as the United Kingdom was concerned. It was a development the more noteworthy because on this one occasion the British industry proved itself to be several jumps ahead of its counterpart in the United States.

This development was the all-industry public relations drive known here under the slightly cumbersome sobriquet of the Better Business Campaign. Within less than 12 months of coming into being it has grown to lusty manhood and is already becoming a force within the trade. Its influence covers every section and it has the enthusiastic backing of every leading figure.

Reports reaching London of the COMPO organization suggest that that fine concept has failed to reach full maturity. Perhaps we on this side do not appreciate the reasons, but we share the disappointment which its sponsors must feel. The more so do we, because our own campaign stems largely from it and stands on precisely the same foundations.

The active history of the Better Business Campaign dates from early in 1950 when, following articles of my own in the Daily Film Renter, trade leaders realized that the moment was ripe. This feeling was quickly appreciated by 20th Century-Fox who sent Charles Einfeld here to make a fighting speech and give an exposition of the aims then being pursued in the U. S. At a trade luncheon, when Einfeld spoke to the most prominent members of every department of the industry, it was immediately decided to bring an organization into being. Through the agency of the Kinematograph Renters Society (the distributors) and the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association meetings were called and a planning committee set up.

Immediate impetus was given to the organization's aims by the ready offer of MPA members to make available the 12 industry shorts which had already done fine service in America. Selling these to 80 per cent of Britain's movie theaters, the planning committee raised nearly $130,000 with which to prosecute the campaign both in the industry and to the general public.

While it was appreciated that the ultimate appeal had got to be to patrons—and non-patrons—it was agreed that the first impetus must come within the industry itself. Accordingly a substantial sum has been set aside for a national incentive campaign through which theater managers will compete for prizes, including a trip to Hollywood or the Bahamas, and impressive monetary awards. An entry of 1,500 theaters has been secured and the contestants will compete on the basis not only of their exploitation efforts but on the general conduct of their theaters, the extent of their public relations and the increased turn-over compared with an equivalent period of the previous year.

For its initial appeal to the public the campaign devised a slogan, "Let's Go to the Pictures." In Britain the word "movie" has an alien ring and the chosen phrase is a commonplace in the mouths of all classes. Valuable space has been secured for this slogan in newspapers, it appears on theater marquees in all districts, is used on car stickers, posters and other points on which it can make impact on the eye. That it is being publicly talked about is proof that its message is getting through into people's minds.

Many prospects are constantly under consideration for extending the scope of the drive and increasing its appeal. It has given the industry something to work for and already to a noticeable extent is creating in the minds of industry members an optimistic approach to their job rather than the mood of pessimism which had settled on them during post-war years.

One reason why this campaign has created a greater measure of co-operation and unity within the industry is because it is regarded as a key to many of the problems with which the business is constantly menaced. At no time have so many headaches assailed the trade. Producers are faced with virtual impossibility of recouping their costs in the home market, the exhibitors are finding the seat tax increasingly onerous because, like everybody else, their overheads mount steadily. Matters are rapidly approaching a climax where it seems obvious that unless a solution is found to urgent problems there may be considerable distress and a total breakdown in parts of the industry.

The British fiscal system as it affects entertainment is complicated. Taxes are based on a graduated system increasing with each rise of two or three pennies in the price of admission. Because of this seat prices are forcibly pegged because the charge has in many cases to be raised by sixpence before it can yield twopence to the exhibitor.

In an effort to assist producers, who are now receiving only a token support from the Government sponsored Film Bank (which is short on funds), a scheme has been devised whereby admission charges have been increased by one penny. Of this 50 per cent goes to the Treasury in additional taxation and the remainder is equally split between the exhibitors and the producers. This scheme is known as the Eady Plan from its originator, Sir Wilfrid Eady, a high functionary in the Treasury.

Today exhibitors and producers, with the distributors caught in the middle, are debating an extension of this plan by doubling the surcharge on admission prices and giving each of the parties twice as much as they are getting. So far the producers have reaped a yield of approximately $3,000,000 from the first year's operation, which is very small beer against the real needs of the studios if their production programs are to be assured.

With two sides of the trade fighting financial stringencies, a new blow is about to fall upon them with the complete turn-over here to safety stock. It is computed that this will bring the business a bill of not less than $2,000,000 a year, so virtually nullifying the benefit it is receiving from the Eady Plan. The British Film Producers Association and KRS are suggesting that the CEA should participate in meeting this additional charge. The latter body, however, has shown strong resistance, claiming that its component members are in no case to meet additional charges without some alleviation of the tax burden. "Help us to get a bit off the tax and we may be prepared to discuss safety stock with you" is how Harry Mears, CEA president recently expressed his Association's viewpoint.

Seat tax will always be a headache to show business. The advance of time makes of it an ever increasing bogey for the simple reason that the industry's income cannot increase, although costs are always soaring upwards. Until and unless the Treasury can be persuaded either to reduce the level of taxes (an impossible hope in these days of rearmament and world uncertainty) or else readjust the tax scales to allow reasonable increases in prices of admission without attracting higher rates of duty, there can be no truly bright prospects for the future.

Turning to the production side, the picture is confused in that, while there has been an output of good quality movies, the volume of production tends to diminish, with no immediate prospect of recovery. Extremist influences among the trade unions, with a measure of support from fellow travelers in Parliament, continue to shout for such impossibilities as nationalization of the industry, drastic upping of the quota from 30 to 45 per cent and an increase in the penalties on exhibitors who default on the compulsory playing time they have to devote to British films. This clamor has little or no effect, but is symptomatic of the dissatisfaction which is rife on the production side.

Producers have been greatly heartened by the favorable attention devoted to British films both in the United States and other parts of the world during 1950. There are indications that the successful films of that year have set a high standard likely to be maintained through 1951 and into next year. In the home market the best domestic product still sets a formidable pace for Hollywood product. Locally there is great satisfaction with such subjects as "The Browning Version" starring Michael Redgrave in an adaptation of Terence Rattigan's play; "Tales of Hoffman," the magnificently spectacular Technicolor offering from Powell and Pressburger who made "The Red Shoes," and "Happy Go Lovely," believed to be the first successful British effort of a Technicolor musical and which earned high critical praise at its recent preview here.

By and large, however, the overriding concern in Britain is still how to get a greater return through the box office so that all sides of the trade may look to a restoration of prosperous days. Alleviation of the seat tax would be one solution. But what is generally realized is that the trade has to pull itself up by its own bootstraps. It is confidently believed that by vigorous prosecution of its Better Business Campaign some of those missing millions who today lack the movie habit may be encouraged into it.

ENGLAND - A SURVEY

HIGHLIGHTS

A NEW QUOTA, a new Anglo-U. S. Agreement and slight concessions in Entertainments Tax were the highlights of 1950.

All in all, it was not a particularly encouraging year. From most parts of the country came reports of smaller attendances, although a big factor on the other side was the Odeon report wherein J. Arthur Rank was able to announce a profit of £552,264 against a loss of £1,341,494. Moreover, there was a reduction of £3,336,545 in bank loan and overdrafts.

The reduction of quota from 40 per cent to 30 per cent came after reports of the Plant Committee and recommendations from the Films Council.

The Committee also reported that in their view the amounts levied in entertainments tax were excessive. After protracted negotiations between Government departments and most of the trade organizations, a scheme was arrived at—usually called the Eady plan—to associate small reductions in the duty with a voluntary levy to be devoted towards British production.

Put briefly, the changes mean that seats up to 7d. are exempt from duty and there is a halfpenny reduction on all seats up to 1/6d. Above this price there is an additional penny per seat of which the Chancellor of the Exchequer takes a halfpenny and the other halfpenny is divided between the exhibitor and the Eady pool from which allocations will be made to British producers.

Eric A. Johnston and Ellis Arnall came to London to meet Harold Wilson and top officers of the Board of Trade on the revised Anglo-U. S. agreement which actually began to operate on October 1. Under this arrangement, earnings will be convertible to the extent of 17 million dollars, as in the 1948 Agreement. The provision of the 1948 Agreement relating to the earnings of British films in the United States is dropped. Instead, the American companies will be allowed to remit dollars in addition to 17 million dollars on the basis of the formula set out in paragraph (1) of the attached statement, which will be included as an Appendix in the new Film Agreement.

(1) In respect of payments from unremittable sterling made between October 1, 1950 and September 29, 1951, dollars equal to

- (a) 23 per cent of such payments, relating directly or indirectly to film production, when such payments are made in the United Kingdom, or if made elsewhere are made with respect to British quota films or to films of which the majority of the studio scenes are photographed in United Kingdom studios, and
 - (b) 50 per cent of such payments to British interests for the distribution of British films within the Western Hemisphere on a percentage basis, and
 - (c) 50 per cent of such payments to British interests for the acquisition of rights within the Western Hemisphere, other than on a percentage basis, for British films.
- (2) Net payments made to British interests in dollars in respect of 1(b) and 1(c) shall also be treated for this purpose as if they were payments from unremittable sterling.

COMPETITION

IN THE MOTION PICTURE film market of the United Kingdom competition is practically limited to that between British-made and American films. Other foreign pictures account for an entirely insignificant proportion of the total shown and are practically confined to a few theaters in the largest centers which specialize in this type of entertainment. French, Italian and Scandinavian pictures form the major part of this product.

In September the Board of Trade lifted the War-time order controlling raw stock. First result of this was to remove control from the use of cinematograph film for the manufacture of newsreel prints and a corollary was the termination of the supplementary contract which prevented exhibitors terminating or changing their newsreel contracts.

Safetybase film came into general use in parts of Wales, and the rest of the United Kingdom will follow, probably regionally. A fact-finding committee representing the entire industry has been set up to examine the impact on the industry of the safety stock.

CENSORSHIP

AN ORGANIZATION established by the trade years ago, the British Board of Film Censors, deals with the censorship of films in Great Britain. It is not a statutory body, and whether a film is accepted or rejected, the final decision rests with the local licensing authorities throughout the country—about 1,000 in number—but almost universal acceptance is given to the decisions and control exercised by the Board, and generally the situation is considered satisfactory.

In connection with the power of local authorities, it should be noted that when a film is rejected by the Board of Film Censors, an application for special review can be made to local authorities, and a few notable instances have occurred where the procedure has resulted in local exhibition of the rejected film.

It might be mentioned that there are three grades of certificates issued; "U" relating to a film which has been passed for universal exhibition; "A" is recommended more especially for adult audiences, and under most licensing authorities, children must be accompanied by adults when attending. The "H" category represents "horrific," at which children's attendance is entirely prohibited. The "H" category has been confined to only a few films each year.

A new category—for adults over 16 years of age—is to be introduced when agreement can be reached concerning the exact framing of the category.

EDUCATION

IN 1946 EDUCATION AUTHORITIES and teachers, in conjunction with the Ministry of Education, set up an organization named the National Committee for Visual Aids in Education. One of the Committee's main functions is to collate the views of education authorities, teachers and bodies concerned with education. Other functions include the consideration of the production, assessment and distribution of visual material.

An important link in the organization of production is the Scrutiny Committee, which views the completed film and has the power to accept it on behalf of the National Committee. The Educational Foundation for Visual Aids then receives the film. This organization was set up to ensure the production of the films planned by the National Committee and their distribution throughout the schools. Where local authorities are considering setting up a visual aids library a local joint visual aids committee is usually also set up to advise on the choice of material.

TAXES

IN ADDITION to the national Entertainment Tax which is specific in amount for each price category of tickets, there are income taxes and local rates which are applicable to cinemas.

While not considered in the direct category of taxation there is a special related feature worthy of note under the Sunday Entertainment Act, 1932, which gave local authorities permission to open and regulate cinematograph theaters on Sunday. The local authorities alone have the power to give such permission and it is estimated that nearly 70 per cent of the approximate 5,000 theaters in England are now permitted Sunday opening.

It is provided under this Act that the local authority shall demand from the theater a proportion of the profits for that day, part of which sums collected shall be used for local charitable purposes and another proportion paid into the Cinematograph Fund. Under the direction and control of the Privy Council for the purpose of encouraging the use and development of the cinematograph as a means of entertainment and instruction. Something like nine or 10 thousand pounds sterling is now received into this central fund annually and the principal use for it has been in supporting the British Film Institute, which is active in the promotion of the use of motion pictures for educational purposes.

The amount paid into the national "Cinematograph Fund" is only equal to about five per cent of the total collected by the various local authorities, the balance collected under the Sunday Entertainment Act, 1932, being devoted to local charitable purposes. Last year £438,900 was paid in Sunday tax by theaters.

In order to provide facilities for the troops to see films on Sundays, an emergency law regulation was passed in 1939 whereby, on application from local councils, licenses to open on Sundays were granted to 290 cinemas which ordinarily did not open on that day. The Act empowering this came to an end in February, 1946, but it was open to local councils to put in force the Sunday Entertainment Act of 1932, or apply for a draft order, so that the Sunday opening of cinemas can continue without interruption. Most of the local authorities of areas where Sunday opening was permitted have now applied for permanent powers to grant Sunday opening.

An important point in regard to Sunday cinema performances, was brought into prominence by a High Court decision that licensing authorities could impose a condition excluding children under 16. Later it was decided not to ban children under 16.

COPYRIGHT RELATIONS

UNDER BRITISH LAW and practice the interest of the author and producer are fully protected. The ordinary legal reference is the Copyright Act of 1911 as amended. Great Britain entered into copyright relations with the United States on July 1, 1891; extended April 9, 1910; further extended January 1, 1915. Great Britain is a member of the International Copyright Union at Berne.

Remittances to America in respect to films before the war were estimated at about £7,000,000 annually. During the war they had been; to October, 1940 — 4.8 millions sterling; 1941—5.7 millions sterling; 1943—26.5 millions; 1944—15.6 millions; for the five months to July, 1945—13.3 millions.

THE ITALIAN MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY—1950

By JOHN PERDICARI

Rome Correspondent, THE FILM DAILY

THE EFFORTS MADE in the motion picture field in Italy during 1950 may best be described as a struggle to keep abreast of mounting costs and insufficient returns. At the present time the industry has not reached a state of solvency. The main difficulties are high interest rates for working capital, increased operating expenses and a limited foreign market due to language difficulties. What is looked upon as a possible remedy is fresh, low-cost financing.

Exhibition is fair, especially among independent theaters. But this is offset by poor results in the Government controlled circuits, which include most of the best houses.

The general policy of the Italian Government is to operate the industry on a basis of reciprocity with foreign countries.

LEGISLATION—The distribution of films in Italy is governed basically by the Law of July 26, 1949. Besides the requirement of an import license, distributors of foreign films are obliged by law to make a 10-year, non-interest bearing loan of 2½ million lire per film released in dubbed version. These loans are funded as partial support of the national production. Apart from the primary aim of this regulation, these obligatory loans act as a restriction on the import of lower cost pictures.

Article 10 of the Law of July 26, 1949 was implemented on August 26, 1950, when a 42 per cent ceiling was placed on the distributors share of receipts. Under certain conditions, and at the discretion of Government authorities, this ceiling may be raised. The regulation applies to foreign as well as national productions.

THEATERS—At the end of 1949 there were 11,140 motion picture theaters in Italy. This figure includes small halls attached to local churches in rural areas. During 1950, 1,490 permits were granted for new theaters, making a total of 12,630 in operation or under construction.

Estimated gross receipts for 1950 were 58,000,000,000 lire. The official rate of exchange is 625 lire to the U. S. dollar.

TAXES—A graduated entertainment tax and a fixed sales tax aggregate approximately 30 per cent of gross receipts. However, the full 30 per cent weighs only on foreign films, since the Government grants premiums corresponding to 15 per cent of gross receipts of each film to Italian producers.

NATIONAL PRODUCTION—96 features and approximately 100 shorts were produced in Italy during 1950. The average unit cost of the former was 80,000,000 lire and 1½ million lire for the latter.

facile d'un cammello," "Prima comunione," "Francesco, giullare di Dio," "Cammino della speranza," "Donne e briganti."

FOREIGN PRODUCTION—MGM finished "Quo Vadis" in November, 1950. This Technicolor production of monumental production was financed in part with 2 billion lire from local blocked funds. The entire production facilities of Rome's Cinecittà were leased for a six-month period. Much additional material was brought over from America.

MGM also produced "Theresa" in Italy, while 20th Century-Fox did "The Medium" and Paramount "September Affair" there.

Jointly produced by American and Italian capital and personnel were "The Thief of Venice" and "The Dark Road."

FOREIGN RELEASES—While official statistics have not been made public, it is estimated (and unofficially confirmed in Government circles) that well over 500 foreign films were released in Italy during 1950. Of these at least 400 were produced in the United States.

FOREIGN RELATIONS—During 1950 the Italian motion picture industry, through its Government representatives, has concluded accords for the exchange and production of films with England, France, Spain and Germany.

During the early part of 1951 a mission of Italian government film officials is expected to visit the United States for the purpose of making an agreement with the American industry.

CANADA IN 1950

By FRED C. DILLON

Executive-Director, Canadian Motion Picture Distributors Association

FOR CANADA, 1950 has been a year of economic expansion, with high levels of business activity in both the domestic and international field. The year has marked a continuance of the steady rise in employment, income and capital formation that has been successively increasing for the past five years.

The past five years have seen phenomenal economic growth for Canada despite prophetic mutterings at the close of World War II that had the world earmarked for a lengthy period of depression and declining economic activity.

In the field of trade, one of the outstanding developments in the past year has been the decided improvement in trade balances between different countries and the more satisfactory balance of international payments position. The effect of sterling devaluation and the general revaluation of currencies in September 1949 added stimulus to economic activity in other countries. The Korean war and the expectation of heavy defense orders intensified the upward swing in international trade.

Of paramount importance to Canada was the vast improvement in gold and dollar reserves during 1950. A heavy flow of speculative capital moved into Canada in expectation of revaluation in the Canadian dollar. This created an inflationary tendency which was met by the decision to let the Canadian dollar find its own level in world exchange markets. The fact that the Canadian dollar has remained steady and is now closer to par with the U. S. dollar shows the fundamental strength of the Canadian economy.

During June official reserves of gold and U. S. dollars increased $73 millions. By September the movement, provoked largely by the purchases of Canadian securities by non-residents, reached flood proportions and the total inflow rose to figures in excess of $335 millions. A comparable indication of the magnitude of this increase in gold and dollar reserves would be one in which the Government of the United States would be called upon to buy more than 10 billion dollars worth of gold in four months.

Trade with the United States showed a great increase during the past year—some 40 per cent greater than in 1949. At the same time imports from the U. S. increased, but at a lower rate. The result has been that the deficit with the U. S. on merchandise trade was reduced to manageable proportions. The important fact is that this more favorable trade balance manifests a fundamental adjustment in trade by expansive rather than restrictive measures.

Trade with the United Kingdom and the sterling area also improved. Exports and imports were brought almost into balance. This balance, as against the traditional position of a heavy export surplus, was created by an increase in imports from the U. K. and a lessening of exports due to import restrictions on dollar goods imposed by the sterling areas.

All in all, the trade pattern has smoothed out very favorably and there is every indication of continuance along those lines. Naturally, everything depends upon the war situation which could, at any time, precipitate drastic measures to ensure North American defense.

Export controls, harmonizing with those of the United States, were introduced in 1950. One restricts exports if domestic supplies are inadequate. The other requires export permits on a list of strategic goods for all destinations other than the United States. This latter control order prevents abnormal movement of goods detrimental to the defense requirements of North America.

Focusing down from the international level to the solely Canadian or domestic level, the economic picture is encouraging. During 1950 new records were established in employment, production and income. At year-end, economic prospects favored a continuance of general prosperity, a multiplication of inflationary pressures, and the continuance of a high level of capital formation in 1951—the firm notes.

Sales of Canadian bonds in 1950, excluding issues with a term to maturity of less than one year, amounted to $2,100 million, 87 per cent higher than 1949's total sales. Over 90 per cent of sales of new issues of bonds by Canadian debtors were sold in Canada with the balance going at time of issue to investors in the United States.

The general picture for 1950 was one of recording-setting increase.

Gross national production reached a record total of $17.7 billions, eight per cent greater than 1949. A substantial part of this rise was due to price increases, but nearly one-half was due to increase in volume of goods and services produced. National income also increased by eight per cent to $14,164 millions.

Home furnishings and services led the living-cost groups in the upward spiral to a record cost-of-living index of 172.5, by the end of the year. Against this were increases in labor income which, it is estimated, will hit the $8 billion mark for the first time in history. Cheques cashed reached an all-time record of $100,635 millions, up 15 per cent from the previous peak reached in 1949. Weekly payrolls were up 12.3 per cent over last year to a new record of $46.72.

Looking ahead to 1951 the outlook is very good though slightly overcast by the inevitable influences of increased defense programs. These programs, imposed on economies already operating at or near capacity, let loose inflationary tendencies that will dominate the economic picture in the months ahead. Assuming only a continuance of war at its present level, the effect should not be too drastic. By late 1943 and early 1944, between 40 and 50 per cent of the gross national product was devoted to war whereas under the present program less than 10 per cent will be diverted to defense preparations.

The task for 1951 is not an easy one. It is not unmanageable.

THEATER BUSINESS

Dominion Bureau of Statistics for the year 1949, the latest authentic records available, indicate an upswing in theater business over the previous year.

In all but two of the 10 provinces the per capita expenditure on motion picture entertainment increased. The two failing to maintain at least the status quo were the Maritime provinces of Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick. Generally, the per capita figure for the whole of Canada for the year 1949 increased by six per cent over the previous year to $6.89.

The balance of receipts and taxes showed very definite improvement. Paid admissions were up to 232,998,545, an increase of approximately 10½ million over the previous year; receipts increased by $8,902,531 to an all-time high of $78,559,779. At the same time, amusement taxes paid on these receipts, over and above the figure quoted above decreased from $13,622,459 in 1948 to $12,616,789 in 1949.

Nineteen hundred and fifty will reflect the same conditions. Any change will be for the better. The box office has been maintained while the amusement tax rate in the Province of Ontario which enjoys roughly one-third of the theater income in Canada has been reduced from 15 to 12½ per cent. Actually a reduction in the tax itself of 16 2/3 per cent, the lowered tax rate is imposed only on admissions of 16 cents and over.

Theater construction during 1950 continued on a relatively healthy scale though not on par with the previous post-war years. At year-end there was, 1803 theaters operating, plus 60 drive-in theaters. Unless there is a repeal of steel controls during the year 1951 theater construction will cease. Steel controls do not permit even repairs without a special permit being obtained and such approval is difficult to obtain since theaters are not considered essential.

Canada does not yet have any television stations. Consequently, there are only two large centers where there is any degree of television competition as a result of programs emanating from U. S. cities. Windsor, Ontario and the surrounding area, being close to Detroit has the most television competition. Exhibitors report however, that while there is some noticeable box office decline as a result of television the effect is not alarming. Toronto, where there is only one television channel that can be tuned in, feels little or no effect from television competition.

It will be a few years before there is television in Canada to the degree that it may affect theater business to the extent that it is felt in the U. S.

DRIVE-IN THEATERS

Drive-ins have, of course, experienced the most progress during the past year. There are now 60 drive-in theaters in Canada with a total capacity of 29,176 cars. Paid admissions will probably total about six million, this being an approximation of the 1950 totals yet to be revealed.

While the majority of drive-in theaters are located in Ontario the greater portion of construction during 1950 took place in the Prairie provinces. There are now six theaters in Alberta, five in Saskatchewan and four in Manitoba. There are nine drive-ins in British Columbia with all remaining in Ontario.

Drive-in operation in Canada, with the possible exception of the more temperate coastal area of British Columbia, is a six-month operation due to climatic conditions. In B.C. the season may run about nine or 10 months.

The source of film being used in Canadian theaters remains unchanged from that of last year. Approximately 1,983 35 mm items were imported from the United States and 300 were brought in from other countries. The large portion of non-U. S. films came from Britain with the remainder having their point of origin in Italy, the U.S.S.R. Czechoslovakia, France, Palestine, Germany, Austria, and Poland.

Plans of British companies to establish production facilities in Canada seem to have been shelved so there is little likelihood of there being much, if any, feature production in this country.

There has been a notable increase in the volume of 16 mm. film used largely under the auspices of religious, industrial and social organizations in local municipal life. Approximately 1,500 16 mm. items were used as against 700 in the previous year. Most of this film is imported from the U. S. A. and a considerable amount is produced by 20 production units in Canada. Only 10 per cent were from sources outside the U. S. A. and Canada.

INDUSTRY ACTIVITY

Generally speaking, there has been very little activity within the industry.

A meeting was held of the newly-created Motion Picture Industry Council of Canada at which the temporary executive body was formally elected without change.

Committees were authorized to develop programs on the planning level. A report of this planning was to be made at the next general meeting of the Council, scheduled for September, 1951, in Montreal.

The third annual Film Awards night was held in Ottawa in early 1951 at which awards were made for prize productions by both amateur and professional Canadian film producers. This affair, sponsored by the Canadian Association for Adult Education, was highlighted by presentation of the awards by Mary Pickford. The motion picture industry generally cooperated with the sponsoring group in the presentation show.

ASSOCIATIONS

No new Associations have been reported during the year. Existing Associations, on the production, distribution and exhibition levels, have, however, been brought into closer integration through the mechanics of the Motion Picture Industry Council of Canada.

Exhibition Associations have been active in representing their tax problems to their respective Provincial Governments with a degree of success.

CANADIAN EXCHANGE TERRITORIES

TORONTO

Toronto exchanges servicing the whole of Ontario to the exclusion of only the extreme westerly section which is serviced from Winnipeg supplies 510 theaters, including 35 drive-in theaters. The per capita expenditure on motion picture entertainment is, in this area, the highest in Canada being $8.94 in 1949. Total exhibition receipts for this area in 1949 were $38,236,623. This figure will have been passed in 1950 by virtue of new construction and the fact that there has been a more or less general increase in admission prices averaging approximately five cents per admission.

Censorship personnel and mechanics have remained unchanged. Censorship fees are unvaried from those in effect in 1949.

MONTREAL

Exchanges located in the capital city of the predominantly French-speaking province of Quebec service the whole of that province.

Children under 16 years of age are, under law, banned from entry to theaters. As a result, there is a strong competition by virtue of some 150 parish and community halls using 16 mm. film.

The law refusing entry to theaters by children is also the main reason why drive-in theaters may not be licensed in that province.

As a result of the afore-mentioned law the per capita expenditure for motion pictures is lower than all provinces with the exceptions of the Maritime provinces and the social-government province of Saskatchewan. 1949 receipts totalling $22,284,769. average a per capita expenditure of $574.

In this area there are 183 theaters using all English-language programs, 134 using 50 per cent of each French and English-language films and 71 using French programs only.

Censorship of films is made largely on the basis of the divorce question which, because of the predominance of Roman Catholics in the province, is taboo.

Censorship rates are unchanged from previous.

SAINT JOHN

Saint John exchanges service the four Maritime provinces, Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. These provinces having a collective receipts total during the year 1949 of $6,965,944. have a per capita expenditure of $2.69, $3.82, $5.38 and $4.44 respectively. With the exception of Nova Scotia these per capita figures are the lowest in Canada.

There are no drive-in theaters in this area, service being extended to 176 theaters.

Censorship fees are the lowest in Canada.

WINNIPEG

Exchanges operating out of Winnipeg service 378 situations, including nine drive-in theaters. This area includes the Province of Manitoba and the eastern half of Saskatchewan.

Saskatchewan has a motion picture entertainment per capita expenditure of $4.67 and Manitoba $6.20. Total receipts in 1949 were $3,896,077 in Saskatchewan and $4,708,769 in Manitoba. No breakdown is available to show the receipts from the theaters serviced in Saskatchewan from Winnipeg this total being divided with the Calgary exchange which services the western half of the province.

The Saskatchewan censorship board has moved from the provincial capital of Regina and now shares the facilities of the Manitoba Board at Winnipeg.

Rates in Manitoba are unchanged but Saskatchewan has been the only Canadian province to raise its rates. The rate charged is now $4.50 per 1M feet or fraction thereof with the same rate applying on first and subsequent prints. Trailers under 500 feet in length are censored at the rate of $2.00 for each 500 feet or less. Over 500-feet lengths are treated as features.

CALGARY

The 250 situations in this area, including seven drive-ins, are situated in the Province of Alberta and the western half of the Province of Saskatchewan.

One-half of the theaters in this area are one to four day operations, half of that number being open only one or two days each week.

Receipts in Alberta totalled $5,573,525. The per capita expenditure was $6.77.

One of the main difficulties encountered by exchanges servicing this area is also peculiar to the other two prairie provinces. There is no great density of population and there are many small situations. Film shipment, therefore, is done almost exclusively by rail and shipment costs run higher than elsewhere.

The Censorship Board in Alberta is unchanged from previous years and the rates have remained constant.

VANCOUVER

Vancouver area, comprising 161 situations including nine drive-ins, enjoys the second highest per capita motion picture entertainment expenditure in the Dominion—$8.59. From this expenditure there is derived a gross receipt of $9,310,791.

The majority of theaters in this area are located within a relatively small area fanning inland from Vancouver City to towns in the Okanagan Valley. There are only 92 towns in the area having theaters, the lowest number for any province with the exception of Newfoundland which is serviced from the Saint John exchanges.

Censorship rates are unchanged.

FRANCE IN 1950

By P. A. HARLE

Director, La Cinematographie Francaise

LIKE EVERYWHERE ELSE in the world, the French picture industry has had a difficult year. But thanks to its vitality and the energy displayed by its leaders, it has nevertheless been most active. It has turned out 105 features, some of them like "Justice est Faite" of such quality as to win kudos in international festivals, and has been able to provide employment for its personnel.

In its home market, it has grossed 43 per cent of the total take, the same as American imports, the other 14 per cent being divided between all other imports. Difficulties encountered in financing production have been somewhat abated by help provided by the Credit National and the Fonds d'Aide. Quality is now the foremost care of producers, inasmuch as like everywhere else the B pictures are more and more unprofitable to turn out and audiences are getting increasingly choosy.

This explains why the better U. S. product is mopping up also. Following last year's "Joan of Arc" which made picture history, the freedom given exhibs in February to call their own scales of admission permitted to release the long differed "Gone With the Wind" at an unprecedented high admission, also to hefty grosses.

Thanks to this freedom of admission scales, the exhibitors, though like everywhere else registering less admissions, have seen the total take increase. Also business for men has been made easier by the fact that the minor exhibs have been permitted to book pictures for a flat rate, forgetting the old percentage regulations.

France has all that is needed to make good pictures. There is here a wealth of writers, directors, actors, designers, and superb locations. Salesmanship and marquee names internationally plugged are what is most needed to boost foreign sales.

Technically the French are up to date. In TV, technically, they are even ahead of U. S. Like in U. S. they are trying to stop the supply of features to video. Their Actors Union is insisting in tilting the contract figures for TV. The exhibs approach to the menace is "domesticate it" by installing large screens in theaters, mostly for newsreels, as done first in the Madeleine Theater by Andre Debrie. Since there are no video airers outside of Paris, the menace to theaters is not yet keenly felt.

Despite current hardships, the French who have seen far worse are facing the future of their industry with confidence.

SPAIN IN 1950

By ANTONIO CUEVAS PUENTE

Head of Statistics for the Spanish Entertainment Syndicate

SPAIN IS A GOOD MARKET for motion pictures. At present, there are approximately 4,000 theaters, containing approximately 2,000,000 seats, and a yearly attendance of some 300 million spectators.

The production of moving pictures, however is not as strong as one might expect from this situation. There are about 50 production companies in the country, but, with the exception of four or five which are creditable, produce regularly, and are economically solvent, the rest are of a sporadic nature, without sound credit and appear and disappear from the moving picture scene with extraordinary frequency.

They do not have regular annual production schedules and their operation largely depends on the circumstances, favorable or unfavorable, of the moment.

By and large the average annual production of feature length films is about 40 motion pictures. In 1947, 49 were produced; in 1948, 45; in 1949, 38 and in the first 11 months of 1950, about 45. With regard to shorts, in 1947 129 pictures were completed, in 1948, 158 and in 1949, 94. The majority of these are of a documentary nature, although the production of current news reels is monopolized by the official organ NODO, which distributes their news reels exclusively to Spanish theaters.

With respect to quality, about three or four super productions are turned out annuaily and these are successful in Spain and even abroad—principally in Hispano-America—but the rest are average. However, this average level of quality is slowly rising. The super productions of 1950 are: "Agustina De Aragon," "Pequeneces," and "Don Juan." The first two bear the trade CIFESA—one of the most important Spanish production companies—and the second was produced by Chapalo Films.

The average cost of a B picture varies between two and three million pesetas. Several large scale productions passed the eight-million mark but these were exceptions.

The Spanish Government strongly encourages the movie industry, by various means, in order that production, acceptable with regard to quality and quantity, may be achieved. The most important Government aid is the credit extended to the industry by the National Entertainment Syndicate. This credit which practically supports the total annual production, amounts to 30 million pesetas a year. Other methods used are the annual awards to pictures and screen plays with substantial cash awards; the compulsory program for Spanish movies or quota system; the import permits for foreign pictures which are granted Spanish producers,

One of the present grave problems of the Spanish cinema is the scarcity of raw stock, of which approximately 15 to 20 million feet are imported annually. In order to remedy this situation, there has finally been established a factory for the manufacture of raw stock in the province of Burgos, which produces "Valca" 35mm positive film. However, present production is totally insufficient—although they are trying to increase their production in order to fill the need for said material.

With respect to the motion picture business, approximately 240 films are shown in Madrid a year, of which from 50 to 60 per cent are North American; 15 per cent Spanish; another 15 per cent Hispano American, and the rest European. Data covering the last two years, however, shows a reduction in the total of exhibitions with a decrease in North American pictures principally, and an increase in European films. The statistics are as follows:

	1949 	1950 (up to Dec. 15)
North American.....	105	78
Hispano American.....	41	37
European	30	43
Spanish	42	40
	218	198

The North American films meet with unqualified approval as a general rule and surpass the others in presentation and the box office.

Recently a new phase of production has made its appearance on the Spanish scene which may prove interesting. It concerns co-production, that is pictures produced in Spain, and financed by foreign capital participation, or technique and actors. Thus we have: "La Corona Negra"—Spanish-American, "Mad Aire"—Spanish-French and "Aquel Hombre de Tanger"—Spanish-American. The Syndicate, together with industrial elements, is at present working on certain standards in order to regulate this motion picture co-production.

There are approximately 60 central distributing companies for the distribution of motion pictures throughout the country, with approximately 200 regional or branch offices.

Spain is successfully working, at present, to become established in Spanish speaking motion picture markets.

Thus we have the salient factors of the motion picture industry in Spain at the present time.

THEATER TELEVISION

By NATHAN L. HALPERN

Television Consultant, Fabian Theaters

AFTER A FEW YEARS of incubation, theater television appears ready to meet some of its first big opportunities during 1951.

Several hundred tests of theater television in operating theaters before the paying public have readied the equipment. This is not to say that the television picture is perfect. The applicable test, however, is whether the picture is adequate for television presentations today to the public in theaters: the answer furnished by the public for the events shown is that it is adequate.

HALPERN

Improvements in equipment will continue for some period of time just as it did after the early beginnings of sound in the theater. A perfect picture, however, can never be developed in a laboratory alone; it requires practical application and commercial incentives to improve quickly.

During the past year home television made great strides in practically all phases. Still there are basic and inherent limitations upon the ability of home television to develop superior programs. This is where theater television comes in. By affording the public with a convenient box office for the payment of the programs which it desires, theater television can develop new and different television programs for the public. Television can afford a change of pace of simultaneous and current programs alongside film features which emphasize stories in a more finished and permanent form.

The development of theater television programs rests squarely upon the motion picture industry. When there are sufficient installations there will be creative talents who will become interested in developing programs that will fit into this new medium. Meanwhile, the diet will continue to be in large measure sports and news.

The first concrete step is to develop a sufficient number of theater box offices to make good programming possible for theater television. The so-called "box office tests" of theater television under the existing conditions of 1950, where there were only a few theaters involved in sporadic tests and mostly of home programs, is not a practical reality. Box office can come only when theater television is sufficiently widespread to develop programs only for theaters, well promoted and exploited in a somewhat regular recurrence, so that the public can become fully aware of it. It is worth noting, meanwhile, that the only exclusive programs tried in theater television resulted in very substantial box office increases.

The early experiments with theater television have been most encouraging. It has proved to be an exciting experience for theater audiences. In those instances where it has been possible to program regularly with interesting attractions over some period of time, it is noteworthy that the word of mouth has developed greater audiences at each succeeding event. This could happen only because the people liked it. On occasions of important Presidential messages on the war emergency, theater television has brought many persons to the theater who might have stayed home to hear and see these crucial national events.

The year 1951 will raise for theater television many basic growth problems. In view of the war crisis, there may be shortages in electronics manufacturing. At this writing it is not yet clear what the ultimate impact may be on theater television manufacture during this year. It is known, however, that for the first half year or more there seems to be adequate opportunity for the manufacture of theater television equipment. The manufacturers have indicated that they expect in any case to manufacture three to five million home sets during 1951; the scarce materials common to both theater television and home sets are conserved to a much greater extent in theater television where each unit is the equivalent of no more than five or six home sets, while each unit serves thousands of people.

In keeping with the times, theater television has given to the theaters a dramatic new instrument for information. Thus, recently 10 theaters carried President Truman's State of the Union message to Congress as it actually happened, and other important emergency messages have been relayed through this important defense communication system. More developments along these lines can be expected as the nation develops its strength.

developments in the sports field which can open the doors to more theater television. The National Collegiate Athletic Association has declared a one year moratorium on live home television of football, with a specific recommendation that colleges experiment with theater television for this year. Since theater television offers special advantages for televising sports, this will be a fine opportunity for those theaters equipped to carry on such televising. It would not be surprising to see other sports fields too begin to open up their contests for theater television alone.

There will be efforts too for the first special entertainment events in theater television, though the small number of theaters in television restricts such opportunities at this time.

The key to real theater television development rests primarily with the exhibitors. The beginnings of any new field are filled with confusion, doubt and pessimism, mixed with hope, belief and optimism. It is to be hoped that a sufficient number of exhibitors will enter theater television to provide the medium with a sufficient base for developing it as a major box office stimulant.

TELEVISION CAN HYPO MOVIE BOX OFFICE

By WILL BALTIM

Secretary-Treasurer

Television Broadcasters Association, Inc.

THE STRONG ARM of resistance to television which jutted from the motion picture industry when the electronic miracle wiggled out of its laboratory cocoon about a decade ago has begun to yield to the ever-mounting pressure of the new industry's dogged determination to win public acceptance.

BALTIM

Theater television has started to bud, thanks to a small but indomitable group of farsighted showmen; especially produced trailers for TV by major film companies were wafted from television stations into millions of homes during the past year, and, the wall of imperviousness and apathy toward experimentation in techniques looking toward developing a home box-office for theater product crumbled as the past year waned and sank into oblivion.

True, the amount of cooperation and eagerness to chart new horizons for the film industry's inevitable role in this modern miracle of image transmission might best be described as a process of getting one's toes wet, yet there is no question now that the movie empire has felt television's colossal nudge—and moved over.

A year ago at the kind invitation of Film Daily Yearbook, the writer espoused the cause of television and its relation to the exhibitor's role in this new art. He spotlighted three directions which could prove a bonanza for both the production and exhibition branches of the film industry. These included wide use of theater TV to put the film house on parity with the home insofar as top entertainment via video is concerned; utilization of the home screen to exploit product playing locally and, finally, widening the scope of the local theater box-office by selling "tickets" for viewing the current attraction on the home television set!

The latter suggestion, a radical departure from existing practices, started a new trend of thinking in both the production and exhibition branches. Briefly, it would work this way:

The production-distribution branches of the film industry would apply, as a unit, for a block of 10 or 12 channels in the ultra high frequency region of the spectrum, reserved by the FCC for television. This block, if granted, would be known as the "Movie Band" and would come to be accepted by the public as an adjacency to the local theater box-office.

With 31 exchange areas in the country, the film producers would erect six or eight TV transmitters in each exchange area. Established film companies would have access to one transmitter in each exchange. When booking a film, instead of distributing a handful of prints, 100 or more prints would be booked by the distributor into 100 or more theaters within a radius of 45 miles of the exchange.

Movie patrons in every locality where the film has been booked could if they wish purchase, in advance, a plastic "TV ticket" for a specific performance, and, on the date and hour stamped on the ticket could, by placing the ticket inside a slot in the home TV set, tune the channel of the exchange releasing the film and pickup, simultaneously, the complete feature as it is being currently exhibited at the local theater.

The advantage to the producer-distributor is that his audience for a single showing conceivably might be 1,000 times greater than if TV set owners were to be induced to visit the theater—and many TV set owners are growing less and less inclined, surveys indicate.

The advantage to the exhibitor is that in spite of television, he can "sell" his current attraction to thousands more via the TV route, and although many of his 2,000 theater seats may be empty, he still would be playing to a "capacity house," with a good part of his audience seeing the film in hundreds of living rooms. And paying for it at his theater!

It should be emphasized that, under this plan, unless a person had a plastic "TV ticket" for the specified performance, he could not receive an intelligible program were he to tune the exchange area frequencies. Two types of "coded" television processes are now in various phases of experimentation, Phonevision and Subscribervision, and either might prove to be the "key" to this proposal.

Since this recommendation appeared in Film Daily Yearbook a year ago, queries as to its acceptance and ultimate utilization by the motion picture industry have evoked interesting commentaries. One strong objection raised is the fact that the current practice of clearances would be "out the window" under such an arrangement. The reply has been that clearances were originally established for a single purpose—to bring as great a return on each product as possible. Clearances seemed to be the answer. On the other hand, if utilization of television can achieve a better method, then this new system of distribution seems to be in order.

Another objection has been the query: what happens to the second-run and neighborhood theaters under this plan? Since no major film company turns out 52 top pictures a year, there is no reason why each operator of a film transmitter could not set aside every third week for a repeat showing of each picture. During this repeat performance, second-run and neighborhood theaters would get the prints, sell the "television tickets"—at a lower fee than the first run—and reap benefits!

In any case, television can, in this manner, be harnessed to the specific advantage of the motion picture industry—with the industry maintaining complete control of the box-office. Certainly, this stands as a possible answer to TV's threat to the movie box-office—far better than candy vending machines, soft drink machines, popcorn dispensers—and, more lately, ice cream counters.

FACTS ABOUT PHONEVISION

By COMM. E. F. McDONALD, JR.

President, Zenith Radio Corp.

ON JANUARY 1 of this year, Phonevision started its history-making experiment in Chicago.

For 90 days, 300 specially selected families who were supplied by Zenith with Phonevision-equipped TV receivers, were given an opportunity to view 90 Hollywood feature films in their own homes. These were televised on a three-a-day basis from our downtown transmitter. The charge was $1 per picture for each movie that a Phonevision elected to see.

During the initial three weeks of the test, we deliberately confined our coding to the video signal, but left the sound track clear. Any non-participant tuned to Channel 2 saw a jittered picture moving rapidly across the face of the TV tube to the accompaniment of clear, distinct sound.

Surprisingly enough, we found that a sizeable group of Chicagoans were taking a lively interest in Phonevision, even in this form. Thousands tuned in Channel 2 to watch our jittered pictures and listen to the fast-paced dialogue.

In fact, this audience found Hollywood's regular feature films supplied for the test such good television fare—even with the jitters—that we were compelled to “scramble” the sound track, too, in order to prevent their cracking under the tent.

After 270 broadcasts, the Phonevision demonstration was complete—except for assembling and interpreting test results.

Today—as I write this—a final report on the Phonevision experiment is not yet available. Since decisions of such far-reaching importance to television and the entertainment world are involved, we are purposely going to unprecedented lengths to guarantee the validity of a final interpretation even though it delays the release of test results.

So—at a cost of approximately $65,000 to Zenith—the National Opinion Research Center of the University of Chicago is conducting a most exhaustive survey among the “300” as well as other families in the Chicago area to secure an accurate calibration of our measuring instrument.

When such research is complete, all of us can use the 300 family yardstick as an accurate measure of what Phonevision means. In the meantime, a preliminary look at the results at hand indicates to me that our Phonevision test was successful far beyond our expectations. Although the final interpretation is yet to come, our 300 test families saw movies for a fee in their homes at such a phenomenal and sustained rate that certain general conclusions seem self-evident.

First, Phonevision is a practical and highly economical method of distributing quality entertainment to a paying audience;

Second, the Phonevision audience purchased entertainment in the home at a rate far greater than the public purchases equivalent entertainment outside the home;

Third, Phonevision presents a method of reaching a large new audience for motion pictures—a great majority of our “customers” had not previously seen in theaters the pictures that they purchased.

Fourth, Phonevision potentially adds countless millions of dollars to the value of motion pictures which have completed their theater runs many years ago and are now reposing in Hollywood vaults.

These statistical highlights justify the above conclusions. Our total Phonevision box office for the 90-day test was $6750.00, an average of $22.50 per family for the three month period, or $1.73 per week. Phonevision brought these families very inexpensive entertainment. Nevertheless, the attendance rate is more than three times the .47 times per week I have been given as an average figure of American attendance in the theaters.

During the first four weeks of the test, with novelty a high but declining factor, the average family saw 2.1 movies per week by Phonevision.

During February, which turned out to be the poorest month, average weekly patronage per family was 1.5, with one low week when the average family saw only 1.4 movies.

March showed substantial improvement over February, with an overall average attendance of 1.6 times per week per family. The month finished “going away” by chalking up a total attendance for the last six days of 506 paid admissions, or an average of 1.7 per family. Of particular significance is the way attendance leveled off after the first few weeks and fluctuated in accordance with the popularity of the picture presentations and the competition we faced on "free" television. (If Sugar Ray Robinson had hit Jake LaMotta as hard as he hit our box office the night of the title fight, his victim would still be flying through the air.)

I believe that Phonevision's high rate of patronage is of vital importance to all producers of entertainment during these days of declining box offices. It indicates that the public is just as willing as ever to pay for good entertainment and that many people are more willing to pay for it in the home than in the theater.

Early in the test, our Phonevision "300" began to grow highly selective of the entertainment purchased, a trend which became more pronounced as the test progressed. On the overall average, each picture was seen by 25 per cent of its potential audience, but variations between pictures ranged from eight per cent of the possible audience for the picture that was "knocked out" by Sugar Ray, to 60 per cent for one that had its first showing on New Year's Day. Excluding these two more or less abnormal extremes, patronage of individual pictures ranged from nine per cent to 47 per cent of the possible audience.

If you project our overall average against a potential audience of 10,000,000 television sets (it is expected that there will be 40 to 50 million sets in the country within a few years) the producer's average net return per picture is $1,250,000. If you project the returns from our 10 pictures with poorest patronage against 10,000,000 TV receivers, the average net return per picture to the producers is $600,000. If you project our best playing picture, the net return to the producer would be $2,983,000.

Yet even these projections do not tell the full story, since our regular pattern of exhibition provided for only three showings of a picture, and I do not believe that three showings are enough to develop a picture's full potential.

As a partial check on this point, we showed one picture four times. On its regular three showings it was patronized by 93 test families, 31 per cent of our possible audience. On its fourth showing, a Saturday matinee, it drew 17 customers (six per cent), a figure which was exceeded by only two other Saturday matinees in the entire test.

Here is a significant indication of the depth of the new market Phonevision opens for motion pictures:—although every one of the 90 features shown during the test was more than two years old, and some more than 10, reports from our test families for the first two months show that an average of only 18 per cent of our reporting test families who saw these pictures on Phonevision had previously seen them in the theaters. In other words, four Phonevision patrons out of five were brand-new customers and more than 92 per cent of our reporting customers said they preferred to see pictures in their homes rather than in the theaters.

As a further check, we asked each family at the end of each month of the test to tell how many members of the families had previously seen in the theaters each movie shown during the month. March results are not yet available, but on the average, the pictures shown during January and February were reported as previously seen by only 25 per cent of the test family members who responded to our survey.

These reports indicate that the new audience found by Phonevision may approximate in size the audience for the same pictures which were drawn into the theaters by Hollywood's most adroit and effective salesmanship during the years of greatest theater patronage.

If this conclusion is discounted 20, 30, or even 50 per cent, it still adds countless millions to the potential value of the feature films reposing in film vaults—a value which is many times greater than that added by the sale of films to television at rates sponsors can afford to pay.

In considering the overall effect of Phonevision on the movie industry, I'd like to quote Robert L. Wright, former motion picture expert for the Justice Department's anti-trust division.

"The independent exhibitor is justified in his fear of the threat of television," claims Wright, "but he is under a misapprehension in thinking that Phonevision is the threat. What hurts him, and will hurt him worse in the future, are free motion pictures, subsidized by advertisers."

"Inferior product, subsidized and delivered free, will be greater competition than good quality pictures for which people have to pay over a system such as Phonevision."

THE MOTION PICTURE ASSOCIATION

THE MOTION PICTURE ASSOCIATION is expected to play a vital role in marshaling American film industry forces in the present struggle for survival.

Eric A. Johnston, MPAA president, on leave to serve as U. S. Economic Administrator, has termed the motion picture a vital and essential element in this struggle—"just as important as planes, tanks and food."

Domestically, Johnston points out, the film industry faces the job of helping sustain civilian morale. "Recreation is a recognized production tool," he says, "and in this area the motion picture has no peer."

On the foreign front, the motion picture has become an invaluable combat weapon. "The highest civilian and military authorities," Johnston says, "now recognize as never before the ideological fire power of films."

Already, the Association, under Johnston's direction, has greatly widened the scope of its activities. In the foreign field, this has meant the expansion of the Association's International Department. At home, the Association has placed greater accent on the work of its Exhibitor-Community Relations Department and the self-regulation program. A long-time fighter for freedom of the screen, Johnson is expected to intensify this campaign during the coming months.

Johnson also has vastly expanded the industry's visual education program. The Association has worked in close cooperation with leading educators to develop the maximum usefulness of motion pictures in education. In the theatrical entertainment field, Johnston established a Children's Film Library, which has had a wide measure of success in assuring the availability of films specifically suitable for children.

These and other activities of the Association are expected to be expanded, along with efforts more directly concerned with America's "campaign of truth" around the world.

PRODUCTION CODE ADMINISTRATION

SELF-REGULATION of motion picture production evolved gradually from early beginnings in 1922 when the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America was founded. Several progressive steps to establish higher standards of distribution culminated in the adoption on March 31, 1930, of the Production Code, which continues as the basic document in the industry's policy of self-regulation.

This Code, a voluntary agreement entered into by the member companies, acknowledges the producers' responsibility to the public and asks in return "a sympathetic understanding of their purposes and problems and a spirit of cooperation that will allow them the freedom and opportunity necessary to bring the motion picture to a still higher level of wholesome entertainment for all the people."

The Code machinery of self-regulation operates at four points:

1. The original story or play is submitted to the Production Code Administration for suggestion and criticism before the first screen adaptation is written.

2. When the script is completed, it is submitted for a check with Code requirements.
3. In the early stages of production, members of the Production Code Administration staff are often called in to discuss sequences that present problems.
4. After this careful reviewing all along the way, the finished picture is reviewed and, if it meets Code requirements, a certificate of approval is issued.

The Code machinery is available to all producers, foreign or domestic, whether or not they are members of the Association, a service increasingly utilized.

How well the Production Code Administration has performed its functions in maintaining both Code Standards and the integrity and vigor of the screen as a medium of entertainment is evidenced by the steady stream of high quality pictures that continues to flow from the studios.

ADVERTISING CODE ADMINISTRATION

AS WITH all forms of self-regulation in the motion picture industry, the efforts of the member companies of the Association, through the provisions of the Advertising Code (adopted June 10, 1930), are directed toward promoting and maintaining a high standard of advertising throughout the industry. This cooperative effort brings into conformity with the requirements of good taste all press books, newspaper advertising, trailers, outdoor displays, novelties and other forms of publicity and exploitation.

All motion picture producers, whether or not they are members of the Motion Picture Association, who accept the Production Code seal on their product thereby agree to conform also to the Advertising Code.

To insure uniform interpretation of the Code, all advertising material is submitted in advance to the Advertising Code Administration at the Association's office in New York or its branch in Hollywood.

INTERNATIONAL DIVISION

AMERICAN motion pictures constitute one of this country's leading export commodities. They are widely exhibited in every country of the world with the exception of the Soviet Union and most of the countries now under Communist domination.

Monetary returns from motion pictures in foreign markets account for approximately one-third of the American film industry's total revenue. No other American industry relies on foreign markets to such an extent.

In addition to their commercial importance, American films—more than any other medium of mass communication—are recognized as a powerful influence in fostering democratic attitudes and in conveying to peoples abroad an understanding of American life, customs and institutions. While American movies are popular primarily because of their superior entertainment values, the social and ideological by-products which they carry have had a tremendous impact on film-goers of every nation in which American films are exhibited.

The heavy reliance of the American film industry on revenues from abroad and the increasingly vital role its product is playing as ambassadors of democracy have invested the Motion Picture Association's International Division with new and important responsibilities.

Constant objective of the Division's efforts is to hold down to a minimum, through negotiation, the restraints officially imposed by many foreign governments on the free distribution of American films, and to eliminate these curbs wherever possible. Typical of the barriers placed in the path of American films abroad are limitations on film imports, screen quotas, excessive import duties, dubbing taxes, and substantial levies on theaters, admissions and earnings.

In the post-war years, widespread economic disruption in Europe and Asia, and a consequent shortage of dollars, made it increasingly difficult for the American film companies to maintain a steady flow of dollars from its overseas markets. Earnings in a number of countries were partially frozen, and in some, completely frozen.

A serious additional monetary jolt was the British currency devaluation of September, 1949. Its chain reaction had the immediate effect of reducing the overall value of frozen American film earnings abroad by about 30 per cent. It also threatened to reduce by this same percentage the potential revenue yield from foreign sources in 1950.

The figures for last year showed that earnings from abroad were less than 15 per cent under those of the previous year—an indication that more than half of the impact of devaluation had been absorbed. Credit for this is attributed to (1) the tremendous and continuing popularity of American movies overseas; (2) the resourcefulness of the American companies in expanding distribution for their product wherever possible; and (3), the unceasing efforts of MPAA's International division in keeping open the remittance channels. These efforts were materially aided in 1950 by the strengthening of currencies in a number of important European countries, thanks largely to heavy American purchases abroad.

To assist its member companies in coping with problems related to overseas operations and to protect their interests abroad are the primary functions of MPAA's International Division.

Toward that end, Eric A. Johnston and John G. McCarthy, vice-president in charge of international affairs, made several trips to England and the Continent in 1950. The Johnston-McCarthy negotiations and conferences, conducted at top-level with government and film heads of various trading nations, paved the way for some measure of relief. As a result of these talks, definite progress was made during the year in the reduction of discriminatory legislation against American motion pictures and in easing, in some countries, the tight clamp imposed on dollar remittances. In this, the U. S. Government, especially the State Department and its foreign diplomatic representatives have extended a valuable helping hand.

Among the significant achievements of the International Division last year was the conclusion of the 1950-51 Anglo-American film agreement under which American film companies will be able to remit $17 million of their earnings in Great Britain plus an estimated additional $4-5 million in production bonuses. The division got the Government of France to transfer $5 million to the American companies, cleaning up frozen franc obligations that had piled up from 1939 to 1946. It also succeeded in liquefying frozen film earnings in a number of other countries, notably in Sweden, where $3 million, covering a 3½-year krone accumulation, were transferred in the course of the year.

In its first full year of operation, the Advisory Unit for Foreign Films extended assistance to 47 producers of foreign films from 19 countries. The Unit was established in December, 1949 as an integral part of the International Division for the purpose of making available to foreign film producers the information, knowledge and merchandising experience needed to help them gain increasing audiences for their product in the United States. Its basic objective is to encourage the importation of more good foreign films to this country, thereby helping to stimulate the flow of dollars to film-producing countries abroad. Tangible commercial benefits have already accrued through the Unit to a number of foreign film producers, notably those in Italy and France. The widespread interest expressed in the project during 1950 augurs increasing use of the Unit's services by overseas producers.

While efforts to reduce or eliminate import restrictions and keep open dollar remittance channels from abroad constitute an important part of its activities, the International Division also serves its members in other ways. Among these are:—

1. Assistance on tax problems
2. Public relations activities
3. Compensation deals
4. Advice on product selectivity

The International Division has representatives stationed in six key parts of the world. They serve as liaison with foreign film distributors and with member company distributors and report to MPAA headquarters on all matters relating to motion picture interests in their respective areas. Presence of these men in the field enables the International Division to take prompt action on matters requiring remedial attention. Not infrequently, when adverse legislation is anticipated, speedy appeal and negotiation by the International Division has been successful in delaying and discouraging enactment.

Film Boards of Trade composed of local representatives of American motion picture distributors are maintained in 16 foreign countries. They operate under the general guidance of the Association and their activities, reported regularly and in detail, are shared with member companies.

In addition to their commercial importance, American films—more than any other medium of mass communication—are recognized as a powerful influence in fostering democratic attitudes and in conveying to peoples abroad an understanding of American life, customs and institutions. While American movies are popular primarily because of their superior entertainment values, the social and ideological by-products which they carry have had a tremendous impact on film-goers of every nation in which American films are exhibited.

The heavy reliance of the American film industry on revenues from abroad and the increasingly vital role its product is playing as ambassadors of democracy have invested the Motion Picture Association's International Division with new and important responsibilities.

COMMUNITY SERVICE DEPARTMENT

THE Community Service Department provides information and assistance to civic, cultural and educational community leaders who are interested in directing the attention of the public to worthwhile current motion pictures presented in theatres. The department also assists theatre managers to adjust their entertainment programs to the needs of the entire family and the interests of important groups in their communities. Among the activities to which the department gives its cooperation, or sponsors, are the following:

Preview Services

The department, through the cooperation of motion picture distributors, provides previewing facilities affording the following national groups opportunity for early screenings of pictures:

- General Federation of Women's Clubs
- National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution
- American Library Association
- International Federation of Catholic Alumnae
- American Legion Auxiliary
- Children's Film Library Committee
- National Federation of Music Clubs
- National Board of Review
- National Council of Jewish Women
- American Farm Bureau Federation

- Girl Scouts of America
 - Boy Scouts of America
 - Protestant Motion Picture Council
 - National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs
 - American Association of University Women
 - National Congress of Parents and Teachers
- Each of these national organizations designates a national motion picture chairman who in turn appoints a preview chairman and an editorial chairman. The preview committees vary in size, having from ten to fifty reviewers.

Each national organization distributes its own preview reports directly to its members, either through mimeographed or printed bulletins or in their national house organs or magazines.

The preview chairmen also make their reports available to the Fox West Coast Theatres Corporation where they are compiled in a four-page printed bulletin titled "Unbiased Opinions." "Unbiased Opinions" are mailed largely to exhibitors but in addition reach a large number of special contacts interested in the points of view of the different national organizations.

Joint Estimates of Current Motion Pictures

For the larger national distribution, concerned rather with a joint estimate of motion pictures than with the point of view of the individual organization, the preview chairmen, sitting as an editorial board, compile reviews published as the JOINT ESTIMATES OF CURRENT MOTION PICTURES. This semi-monthly report is popularly known as the "Green Sheet." JOINT ESTIMATES OF CURRENT MOTION PICTURES provides three basic appraisals:

Audience suitability classifications:

F—Family.

A-YP—Adults and Young People.

A—Adults.

In addition, the "Green Sheet" provides an appraisal of each picture's content as to entertainment value, moral acceptability, and educational merit.

As the audience classifications are not to be interpreted as merit classifications, the reviews of the pictures undertake to express the editorial board's judgment. Photoplays held to have outstanding merit are awarded the distinction of a star. Where the opinions of the editorial chairmen are not in agreement, the estimate of the majority is reflected in the appraisal, and the exceptions, either in audience classification or general ratings, are noted.

The Motion Picture Association prints and distributes JOINT ESTIMATES OF CURRENT MOTION PICTURES for the national groups doing the previewing.

Subscriptions to JOINT ESTIMATES are available to individuals identified with some organized group in their community and to interested exhibitors. Requests to obtain the "Green Sheet" should be addressed to the Joint Estimates of Current Motion Pictures, 28 West 44th Street, New York 18, N. Y. Upon receipt of such request, a questionnaire will be mailed to the applicant asking what type of materials is desired, and what affiliations with public activities each applicant has in his or her community. Upon receipt of the questionnaire, the applicant will be placed on the mailing list to receive not only the JOINT ESTIMATES but other material related to specialized phases of motion picture art or industry applicable to the indicated interest or activity of the recipient.

Children's Film Library

In the brochure—available on request—explaining the Children's Film Library, Eric Johnston placed this introduction:

"The Children's Film Library has but one aim and purpose: to keep constantly available for Saturday showings the finest possible films for the children of America.

"Ageless stories by Mark Twain, Robert Louis Stevenson, Lewis Carroll, James Fenimore Cooper and Booth Tarkington take their place in the Library beside modern tales of stirring historical happenings—life in foreign lands—diverting situations that lead to laughter.

"In undertaking this project, the motion picture industry is proud to have a part in preserving for younger audiences the photoplays which the children love and have made their own.

"If parents will encourage the screening of these pictures at their neighborhood theatres on Saturday shows, their children, I believe, will be enriched in literature, adventure, fantasy and fun. We present the CHILDREN'S FILM LIBRARY with that in mind."

In the Children's Film Library, there are now fifty-three pictures; many additional photoplays in current release are available to exhibitors for children's programs; the key to these pictures are ratings which appear in the semi-monthly JOINT ESTIMATES OF CURRENT MOTION PICTURES. Two ratings are made: CPR (Recommended for the Children's Film Library) and CPA (Acceptable for Children's Programs).

All the films in the Children's Film Library are previewed by groups of children as well as by the National Children's Film Library Committee; this dual appraisal and selection guarantees both the moral and age classification suitability and the entertainment acceptability of these pictures for special children's programs.

Organizations participating in the National Children's Film Library are:

American Legion Auxiliary.
Protestant Motion Picture Council.
Long Island Federation of Women's Clubs.
American Library Association.
Parents & Teachers Assn., Metropolitan Area.
National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution.
Parents' Magazine.
Film Division, P.T.A.—Vermont.
National Federation of Music Clubs.
National Board of Review, Schools Motion Picture Com.
American Association of University Women, New York State.
National Council of Jewish Women.
General Federation of Women's Clubs.
International Federation of Catholic Alumnae.
Brooklyn Motion Picture Council.
Staten Island Motion Picture Council.
Queens Motion Picture Council.
United Daughters of the Confederacy.

For advice and guidance in the initiation of special children's programs or cooperation from exhibitors, address Marjorie Gronger Dawson, director, National Children's Film Library, 28 West 44th Street, New York 18, N. Y.

Providing ideal entertainment for children, ages eight to twelve, is the primary objective of the Children's Film Library; because the pictures in the Children's Film Library were designed for general audiences, these age limits are not arbitrary.

Photoplay Appreciation

IT is estimated that not less than 6,000,000 students in elementary and secondary schools, colleges and universities receive more or less detailed guidance from their teachers in the appreciative study of appropriate motion picture feature and short subjects currently offered in the theaters. This technique is rapidly spreading, especially in high schools and junior high schools. These progressive teachers use the local motion picture theater for illustrative material just as they use the public library for collateral reading. Also, they have found it practical to mould the taste of their pupils toward the development of discriminating habits of choice in the selection of motion picture entertainment. In these activities teachers use study guides of which 25 or 30 are published during each school year, classroom bulletins mailed by the Community Service Department, selected still pictures chosen with special reference to their educational value and research photograph exhibits which are regularly displayed in about 6,500 public libraries and school libraries. Interested teachers are usually able to obtain this material through local exhibitors who secure it from the distributors of the pictures; where this is not possible, teachers may contact Motion Picture Association Inc., 28 W. 44th St., New York 18, N. Y., direct.

Exhibits Available to Schools and Libraries

DISPLAYS of various types, research exhibits, and brochures featuring the historical background, literary antecedents and technical data concerning production are available from the Department of Community Service without cost. The research exhibits—approximately 20"x30" and including from three to 12 posters—present source materials utilized in designing costumes, sets, properties, story sources and other collaterals used in the process of translating fiction, biography, history, etc., to motion pictures. The brochures covering much the same field are usable for intimate classroom study as well as display.

The Community Service Department, in cooperation with educational groups and librarians, selects the pictures to receive this treatment. The cultural, social and educational as well as entertainment values of the pictures are the determining factors. The interest in and desire for mutual collaboration on the part of the producer-members of the Association makes this service possible.

Exhibitors, where it is known that these materials are not locally used, should feel no hesitancy in approaching school administrators or librarians concerning their value. They are now regularly in use by more than 6,000 high schools and 4,000 libraries. While many schools and libraries have limitations and restrictions inherent in the public character of their institutions, once they have realized that these display materials have been designed with a knowledge of their problems, welcome them. Only mutual respect can grow from the realization that many current photoplays have great educational value and that filming of the classics greatly extends the public's reading of them. These materials enhance the value of both and attract the public to those photoplays which, because they contribute constructive ideas and ideals as well as entertain, should be universally seen.

Speakers Bureau

The Community Service Department does not maintain a formal Speakers Bureau but is prepared to cooperate wherever possible in providing speakers for programs concerned with the moral, social or entertainment value of motion pictures. Requests for speakers should be made as far in advance as possible to the Community Service Department, Motion Picture Association of America, Inc., 28 West 44th Street, New York 18, N. Y.

The MPAA Library

The MPAA Library was established five years ago, to serve as repository and reference for information on matters pertaining to film industry activities.

The informational services of the Library are available not only to MPAA staff members and member companies, but as well to non-members, exhibitors, educational institutions, civic groups, etc. The MPAA librarian each year answers by mail and phone hundreds of individual requests for information from industry as well as non-industry sources.

Compactly set up along institutional lines, the Library today has on its shelves some 1,400 texts on practically every phase and aspect of the film business. Supplementing these are thousands of pamphlets and clippings which have been carefully catalogued and cross-referenced. In addition, the Library keeps a running file of nearly every periodical in the film field and maintains bound volumes of the more important motion picture trade publications.

Another important service of the Library is to keep industry executives abreast of current comment on the motion picture business through the preparation of resumes and digests of significant new texts and published materials.

In 1950, more than 400 books and pamphlets and over 1,500 separate magazine issues were received and reviewed by the Library.

From its vast store of information the Library supplies, on request, basic materials for speeches and articles on motion picture topics to people within and without the industry. Scores of such requests during the past year have come from teachers and students.

EDUCATIONAL SERVICES

THE EDUCATIONAL SERVICES DEPARTMENT, established in 1946, functions as the liaison between the motion picture industry and educational agencies and organizations.

This is a two-way program, through which

1. The industry makes contacts with educational leaders for cooperation in the exploitation of feature films and shorts which have educational application, and
2. Extends to educational agencies such services of the industry as will contribute to educational objectives.

The services to the industry include:

- A. The preparation, selection and distribution of display materials on current features. These materials are displayed on school and classroom bulletin boards to stimulate student attendance in local theatres.
- B. Preparation of special study materials based on current films for use in photoplay appreciation classes.
- C. Publication in teacher education journals of educational review materials designed to encourage teachers to stimulate theatre attendance.

Through this Department, the industry is able to render a variety of services to education. These services greatly expand the use of the motion picture in schools and colleges, and give to the motion picture an increasing acceptability within the educational world.

This program of educational services is based largely on the program of Teaching Film Custodians, Inc., the non-profit distribution affiliate of the industry, organized a dozen years ago to make short subjects available to schools. These short subjects, not available from other sources, were selected by groups of subject matter specialists, and are licensed on a long-term basis to educational film libraries maintained by state, county and city school systems.

The program is carried on without compensation to the producing companies and without profit to any education institution responsible for implementing this service. This program implements the statement, "developing the educational, as well as the entertainment values and general usefulness of the motion picture," which was included in the purposes for which the Motion Picture Association was formed in 1922.

Under this program, nearly 500 non-current theatrical short subjects were made available in 1939. These were selected from about 15,000 short subjects, then in the vaults of the member companies, for use in educational institutions in strictly classroom work.

The selections were made under the supervision of the Advisory Committee on the Use of Motion Pictures in Education.

For the purpose of handling the physical distribution of the films, the educators who were members of this Advisory Committee formed themselves into a non-profit corporation known as Teaching Film Custodians, Inc.

In 1943 the member companies of the Motion Picture Association of America authorized Teaching Film Custodians, Inc. to excerpt non-current feature pictures in the interests of making classroom versions for study in classes of English Literature, social science and other curriculum areas. The excerpted versions of feature photoplays are distributed for classroom use under the same licensing terms which govern the distribution of short subjects.

Under the terms and conditions of the contracts with the producing companies, the trustees of Teaching Film Custodians, Inc. are permitted to license non-current short subjects and excerpted versions of feature pictures to schools for limited periods with stated limitations as follows:

"Prints will be furnished only to bonafide educational institutions and agencies; the exhibitions shall be before classroom or kindred groups composed only of bonafide students or enrolled members of such educational institutions or agencies, and such exhibitions shall be an integral factor of class or group study and discussion.

"Admission fees, directly or indirectly, shall never be charged or permitted to be paid for admission at the door or otherwise in advance or afterwards, for the right to attend either single exhibitions or a series of such exhibitions."

Under the contract, these classroom pictures must be projected without change or alteration. The unauthorized copying of these films is a violation of the United States copyright law. Any unauthorized exhibition of these pictures would also be a violation of the copyright law.

The advisory committee has prepared a Handbook of Films for Classroom Use, listing and describing the short subjects and excerpted versions of feature pictures which, under this plan, are made available for educational purposes.

The Advisory Committee wishes to emphasize the experimental nature of this work and invites the cooperation of all teachers who use these films. It is hoped that records of the responses of pupils will be kept and that copies will be sent to the office of the Managing Trustee. These reports will be used as guides to the selection of additional pictures which are not now available. Schools of education and other research agencies are invited to send in the results of any investigations that they may make on the educational value of these pictures.

All funds over and above actual handling and distribution costs which accrue from rental fees for Teaching Film Custodians pictures are devoted to the further development of audio-visual education. Among the experimental and research projects to which Teaching Film Custodians has contributed are the following: The Motion Picture Research Project, Institute of Human Relations, Yale University; the Commission on Motion Pictures, American Council on Education; The Visual Education Division, National Education Association; and the Research Project in Film Evaluation, University of Wisconsin. In conjunction with the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, Teaching Film Custodians has been co-sponsor of the Curriculum Enrichment Program in Rural High Schools, State Department of Education, Nebraska, and The Evaluation of Teacher Training Activities in Audio-Visual Education, State College of Washington.

The authorization by the member companies of the Motion Picture Association to excerpt non-current feature pictures has resulted in the expansion of the educational services program in the preparation of films to meet specific educational objectives. Natural organizations of teachers in specialized subject-matter areas seek the cooperation of the Educational Services Department, and appoint collaborating committees to assist in preparing useful materials excerpted from feature picture footage.

In 1946, the National Council for the Social Studies appointed the following committee:

Dr. William H. Hartley, Chairman, Associate Editor for Social Education; Dr. W. Kenneth Fulkerson, Director of Social Studies, Rochester City Schools; Dr. Frederick H. Stutz, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.; Dr. Lewis Paul Todd, Editor, "Social Education," Washington, D. C.; and Dr. Richard E. Thursfield, Chairman of the Department of Education, University of Rochester.

This committee, working closely with the staff of Teaching Film Custodians, and with the Educational Services Department of the Motion Picture Association, has prepared four subjects for use in world history classes, a similar series for use in classes on the problems on democracy.

The costs of this excerpting program are paid by Teaching Film Custodians, and the films when completed and approved are distributed by Teaching Film Custodians.

Teaching Film Custodians also sponsors and collaborates with audio-visual committees representing national associations of educators in preparing excerpted versions of feature pictures for classroom use. Among the organizations participating in this program are the Music Educators National Conference, the National Council for the Social Studies and the National Council of Teachers of English.

This committee is developing a series of music education films from excerpted footage. Four films of the series are now completed and in distribution.

A committee of the National Council of Teachers of English is now in the process of developing a program to expand the series of excerpted films in the field of English literature.

Other subject matter area interests are in the process of negotiation with the Educational Services Department for participation in the excerpting program.

This program has made the motion picture industry a very useful ally to education, and has developed common interests between the industry and educational leaders which results in a clearer understanding of the problems of both groups.

The Educational Services Department is active also in cooperating with various national and international groups in developing the educational usefulness of motion pictures and particularly those which are produced by the member companies of the Motion Picture Association of America. These cooperative agencies include many cooperative projects with Government agencies, with professional organizations in the visual education field throughout the United States, and with such international organizations as UNESCO, the American Friends Service Committee, and the Departments of Education of various foreign countries.

Since its inception, the services of the members of Teaching Film Custodians and each of the cooperating committees have been rendered on a volunteer basis.

The negatives from which the prints are made have been made available by the members of the Motion Picture Association without compensation.

Sets of stills have been assembled, suitably selected for school and library display, from about 50 photoplays which are based on standard works of literature and other similarly important productions. These stills are provided at $1.00 per set on request of librarians and teachers of photoplay appreciation classes. A list of pictures on which sets of stills are available may be had on request.

TITLE REGISTRATION BUREAU

IT IS GENERALLY BELIEVED by motion picture executives and theater managers that an appropriate and intriguing title that arouses public curiosity, or a title that has achieved fame and wide popularity as a book or play, has a profound influence on the success or popularity of a motion picture. Numerous examples of distinctive and unusual titles on widely popular pictures support the theory. For this reason more and more attention is being given to titles by the producers and distributors of modern motion pictures.

The difficulty of protecting valuable property rights in motion picture titles in the absence of copyright protection on the title itself and the expense and delays of litigation, to establish usage rights brought about the gradual development of a voluntary method of title registration in a central agency by the members of the Association. The present procedure for the registration of titles was established by the Association in 1936 for its members and such non-member producing and distributing companies as desire to use the service.

In all the years the title registration service has been operating few companies once using the registration service for its titles have ever requested it be discontinued for them. Now 168 motion picture companies use the services of Title Registration Bureau, submitting for registration an aggregate average of 4,000 titles a year. Each company using the Bureau receives a daily report of all title registrations.

The registration of motion picture titles to prevent duplication and harmful similarities serves a dual purpose: first, it enables the theater going public to readily identify the motion pictures it wants to see without confusion or misleading similarity between titles; and second, it protects the valuable titles of published books and plays acquired for motion picture production, and original titles with popular appeal, against the use of identical or unfairly similar titles by any producer or distributor that is a party to the title registration voluntary agreement. By such agreement each participating company undertakes to refrain from using such registered title until the prior registration is terminated or otherwise released for use.

Titles that are considered to be salacious, indecent, obscene or otherwise offensive are not accepted for registration. Differences of opinion on similarities and other title controversies are adjusted first by direct negotiation and discussion between the registrants involved, but may be referred to the Association for possible mediation.

If this fails to adjust the dispute it is then referred to arbitration for a final decision. In the past year 516 formal protests were filed with the Bureau against the registration of titles deemed to be too similar to a title already registered. All but 12 of these protests were adjusted by friendly negotiation between the companies and by mutual agreement without resorting to an arbitration of the dispute.

By agreement the producers and distributors who participate in title registration limit the number of original titles which any company may have in registration at one time, so that an unreasonable number of titles will not be reserved indefinitely but not used on a produced picture. Of course as the pictures are produced and released the titles are taken off the "priority registration" and placed on the release index or list of produced motion pictures.

Whenever movies are produced under titles based on a copyrighted work, such titles are automatically placed on a permanently protected list. In addition to these, any studio may ask permanent protection for up to 250 original titles. Beyond these, all titles registered and used for released pictures are protected for a four-year period. During the period of such protection, no other company may use the title unless it obtains clearance from the prior registrant.

Titles of pictures intended for production are granted indefinite protection if affixed to copyrighted material. Otherwise, if in an original title classification, a one-year period of protection is afforded. Each registrant is limited to one hundred original feature titles and 200 original short-subject titles at any one time. If an original title is not used within the year and the registrant cannot show evidence of intention to produce the subject within the succeeding six months, the title becomes available to any other company which has expressed interest in the identical title.

The indexes of titles of motion pictures produced and released by member companies keeps growing every year. In 1937 there were 36,000 titles of feature pictures and short subjects registered on the release index, today there are over 50,000 titles registered, and the index file used to call attention to similarities with titles previously registered, based upon the use of key words, now has over 150,000 cards in it.

For those companies who do not register titles with the Bureau, titles are considered and approved for suitability in connection with the Code of Production Standards. Last year 188 titles were thus approved, and since 1937 over 4,529 such titles have been considered by the Bureau for use on pictures that have received Code approval.

CONSERVATION DEPARTMENT

THIS department of the Association was organized primarily for maintaining adequate fire and personnel safety in domestic film exchange operation. In recent years, its functions have been steadily expanding. They now include the supervision of logistical problems that occur in the distribution of films to the nation's theaters and providing technical services that pertain to the servicing, handling and storage of films, particularly of original negative material and film subjects archival in character.

The conservation safety program, developed along self-regulatory lines, again demonstrated its worth to Association members in that no reportable fire loss occurred during 1950 in any domestic film exchange. In fact, a perfect record has been maintained for the past five years. Close adherence to the conservation plan prescriptions by Association members has resulted in a steadily descending annual fire loss record with the result that it now averages less than $200 per annum for the period 1926 to date.

In large measure, the striking success of the conservation program is attributable to the thoroughness of the department's field work. This phase of its activities has as its goal the instilling of fire prevention consciousness among film exchange personnel, perfection in housekeeping standards and the surveillance of regularly scheduled exchange inspections. Integrated with the field service is the continuing program of employee education in film methods and practices developed toward absolute safety.

Other functions of the department include:

1. Establishing close liaison with the national bodies interested in reducing the nation's appalling fire waste. These groups consist of the National Fire Protection Association, National Board of Fire Underwriters, National Fire Waste Council, National Safety Council, Bureau of Explosives, the National Association of Fire Chiefs and the various Federal departments similarly interested.

2. Providing technical assistance and encouragement toward the erection and maintenance of adequate facilities for the distribution and storage of motion picture films.

3. Extending cooperation to film groups outside of the United States for the purpose of acquainting them with the latest methods perfected for film-handling efficiency and sharing the most recent thoughts for the protection of films held in storage.

Under the self-regulatory system, each of the nation's exchanges are inspected on a strictly adhered to monthly basis by a rotating group of area branch managers in each distribution center. These men are appointed for a period of six months service and are assisted in this work by the Conservation Department's director, who travels regularly to all of the various domestic exchange areas. During 1949 some 4500 exchange inspections were made of distribution facilities in this country.

Another phase of the protective activities of the Conservation Department is its continued survey of all non-theatrical institutions to obtain information on:

- (a) Type of equipment used for the exhibition of motion pictures.
- (b) Type and construction of projection booths.
- (c) Experience and qualifications of projectionists.
- (d) Whether or not the institution has the approval of a recognized public or state fire official.

Purpose of these investigations is to assure motion picture distributors that the service of films to these places of exhibition will be in conformity with local law and in accord with the industry's desire for maximum audience safety at all times.

THE MOTION PICTURE EXPORT ASSOCIATION

THE MOTION PICTURE EXPORT ASSOCIATION'S* activities in 1950 were mainly aimed at expanding its direct distribution activities in Japan and Austria, further consolidating its position with the government film monopoly in Yugoslavia, and maintaining contact as far as possible with the countries of the Soviet bloc.

In Japan, MPEA's principal territory of direct distribution, important strides were made in expanding distribution of MPEA product. The year 1950 witnessed a vast increase in every department of MPEA activity. Far more theaters than ever before showed MPEA pictures. The number of releases was increased by about 35 per cent. MPEA's newsreel is now being shown in about 85 per cent of the country's theaters against the keen competition of two Japanese newsreels, an unprecedented record for any major territory.

Although the output of Japanese studios was greatly augmented in 1950, MPEA product steadily continued to win over the appreciation of Japanese audiences; and contrary to the situation which existed in pre-war Japan, American pictures with few exceptions, are now actually favored over all others, including the Japanese.

Again in 1950 as in 1949, by agreement with the Japanese Government and SCAP, an arrangement was made for the partial conversion of yen earnings.

All member companies of MPEA with the exception of Allied Artists have extended the license rights for distribution of their product in Japan through MPEA up to December 31, 1951.

* Member Companies include: Allied Artists, Columbia, Loew's, Paramount, Republic, RKO, 20th Century-Fox, United Artists, Universal International and Warner Bros.

In Austria, MPEA substantially increased its scale of operations notwithstanding declining box office conditions and keenly increased competition from the product of nearly all other film-producing nations—notably that from Germany and Austria itself. Careful selection of a well-rounded program of releases including many outstanding Technicolor subjects enabled MPEA to continue to offer the exhibitors of Austria their most reliable and consistent source of box office entertainment both in quality as well as quantity. MPEA's newsreel is now far ahead of any other in number of accounts despite the competition of the semi-official government sponsored newsreel.

An agreement reached with the South Korean Government early last summer providing for expanded MPEA film distribution was rendered inoperative by the outbreak of war in that country.

Yugoslavia, where motion pictures are released through Yugofilm, a Government monopoly, is now showing more MPEA films than ever before—more, in fact, than films from all other sources combined. Due to the general satisfaction of Yugoslavia officialdom with the merit of MPEA product, it is regarded as quite certain that there will be an ever increasing number of MPEA films shown in Yugoslavia in the future.

The Soviet bloc, acting apparently in concert, are gradually eliminating the showing of all "outside" pictures from their screens. A few MPEA pictures are still being shown in Poland and Czechoslovakia, but in Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria they have entirely disappeared from the screens.

During the latter part of 1950, it was disclosed through official channels that four American feature pictures were shown in Soviet theaters without approval or sanction from the owners of the pictures. Prints of the four films, "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," "Viva Villa" and "The Crowd Roars" were "doctored" and supplied with Russia's own version of sub-titles for purposes of anti-American propaganda. These unauthorized showings, constituting in effect a state-sponsored form of film piracy, have been made the subject of a protest from the U. S. State Department to the Soviet government.

CODE OF PRODUCTION STANDARDS

As Enforced by the Motion Picture Association

MOTION picture producers recognize the high trust and confidence which have been placed in them by the people of the world and which have made motion pictures a universal form of entertainment.

They recognize their responsibility to the public because of this trust and because entertainment and art are important influences in the life of a nation.

Hence, though regarding motion pictures primarily as entertainment without any explicit purpose of teaching or propaganda, they know that the motion picture within its own field of entertainment may be directly responsible for spiritual or moral progress, for higher types of social life, and for much correct thinking.

During the rapid transition from silent to talking pictures they have realized the necessity and the opportunity of subscribing to a Code to govern the production of talking pictures and of reacknowledging this responsibility.

On their part, they ask from the public and from public leaders a sympathetic understanding of their purposes and problems and a spirit of cooperation that will allow them the freedom and opportunity necessary to bring the motion picture to a still higher level of wholesome entertainment for all the people.

General Principles

1. No picture shall be produced which will lower the moral standards of those who see it. Hence the sympathy of the audience shall never be thrown to the side of crime, wrongdoing, evil or sin.
2. Correct standards of life, subject only to the requirements of drama and entertainment, shall be presented.
3. Law, natural or human, shall not be ridiculed, nor shall sympathy be created for its violation.

Particular Applications

1. Crimes Against the Law

These shall never be presented in such a way as to throw sympathy with the crime as against law and justice or to inspire others with a desire for imitation.

1. Murder.
 - a. The technique of murder must be presented in a way that will not inspire imitation.
 - b. Brutal killings are not to be presented in detail.
 - c. Revenge in modern times shall not be justified.
2. Methods of Crime should not be explicitly presented.
 - a. Theft, robbery, safe-cracking, and dynamiting of trains, mines, buildings, etc., should not be detailed in method.
 - b. Arson must be subject to the same safeguards.
 - c. The use of firearms should be restricted to essentials.
 - d. Methods of smuggling should not be presented.
3. Neither the illegal drug traffic, nor drug addiction, must ever be presented.
4. The use of liquor in American life, when not required by the plot or for proper characterization, will not be shown.

II. Sex

The sanctity of the institution of marriage and the home shall be upheld. Pictures shall not infer that low forms of sex relationship are the accepted or common thing.

1. Adultery and illicit sex, sometimes necessary plot material, must not be explicitly treated, or justified, or presented attractively.
2. Scenes of Passion.
 - a. They should not be introduced except when they are definitely essential to the plot.
 - b. Excessive and lustful kissing, lustful embraces, suggestive postures and gestures, are not to be shown.
 - c. In general, passion should so be treated that these scenes do not stimulate the lower and baser emotions.
3. Seduction or Rape.
 - a. They should never be more than suggested, and only when essential for the plot, and even then never shown by explicit method.
 - b. They are never the proper subject for comedy.
4. Sex perversion or any inference to it is forbidden.
5. White slavery shall not be treated.
6. Miscegenation (sex relationship between the white and black races) is forbidden.
7. Abortion, sex hygiene and venereal diseases are not proper subjects for theatrical motion pictures.
8. Scenes of actual child birth, in fact or in silhouette, are never to be presented.
9. Children's sex organs are never to be exposed.

III. Vulgarity

The treatment of low, disgusting, unpleasant, though not necessarily evil, subjects should be guided always by the dictate of good taste and a regard for the sensibilities of the audience.

IV. Obscenity

Obscenity in word, gesture, reference, song, joke, or by suggestion (even when likely to be understood only by part of the audience) is forbidden.

V. Profanity

Pointed profanity (this includes the words, God, Lord, Jesus, Christ—unless used reverently—Hell, S.O.B., damn, Gawd), and every other profane or vulgar expression however used, are forbidden.

VI. Costume

1. Complete nudity is never permitted. This includes nudity in fact or in silhouette, or any licentious notice thereof by other characters in the picture.
2. Undressing scenes should be avoided and never used save where essential to the plot.
3. Indecent or undue exposure is forbidden.
4. Dancing costumes intended to permit undue exposure or indecent movements in the dance are forbidden.

VII. Dances

1. Dances suggesting or representing sexual actions or indecent passion are forbidden.
2. Dances which emphasize indecent movements are to be regarded as obscene.

VIII. Religion

1. No film or episode may throw ridicule on any religious faith.
2. Ministers of Religion in their character as ministers of religion should not be used as comic characters or as villains.
3. Ceremonies of any definite religion should be carefully and respectfully handled.

IX. Locations

The treatment of bedrooms must be governed by good taste and delicacy.

X. National Feelings

1. The use of the flag shall be consistently respectful.
2. The history, institutions, prominent people and citizenry of all nations shall be represented fairly.

XI. Titles

The following shall not be used:

1. Titles which are salacious, indecent, obscene, profane or vulgar.
2. Titles which suggest or are currently associated in the public mind with material, characters, or occupations unsuitable for the screen.
3. Titles which are otherwise objectionable.

XII. Repellent Subjects

The following subjects must be treated within the careful limits of good taste:

1. Actual hangings or electrocutions as legal punishments for crime.
2. Third degree methods.
3. Brutality and possible gruesomeness.
4. Branding of people or animals.

5. Apparent cruelty to children or animals.
6. The sale of women, or a woman selling her virtue.
7. Surgical operations.

Resolution for Uniform Interpretation

1. When requested by production managers, the Motion Picture Association, Incorporated, shall secure any facts, information or suggestions concerning the probable reception of stories or the manner in which in its opinion they may best be treated.

2. That each production manager shall submit in confidence a copy of each or any script to the Production Code Administration of the Motion Picture Association, Incorporated (and of the Association of Motion Picture Producers, Inc., California). Such Production Code Administration will give the production manager for his guidance such confidential advice and suggestions as experience, research, and information indicate, designating wherein in its judgment the script departs from the provisions of the Code, or wherein from experience or knowledge it is believed that exception will be taken to the story or treatment.

3. Each production manager of a company belonging to the Motion Picture Association, Incorporated, and any producer proposing to

CODE OF ADVERTISING ETHICS

Administered by the Advertising Code Administration With the Advice and Cooperation of the Advertising Advisory Council of the MPAA

PREAMBLE: The purpose of the Advertising Code is to apply to motion picture advertising, publicity and exploitation, within their range, the high principles which the Production Code applies to the content of motion pictures.

The provisions of the Advertising Code shall apply to pressbooks, newspaper, magazine and trade paper advertising, publicity material, trailers, posters, lobby displays and all other outdoor displays, novelty distribution, radio copy and every form of motion picture exploitation.

We urge all motion picture producers, distributors and exhibitors, and their advertising agents, whether affiliated with the undersigned or not, to adhere to these principles; and, for ourselves, we pledge compliance with these principles without reservation.

THE CODE

1. We subscribe to a code of business ethics based upon truth, honesty and integrity. All motion picture advertising shall
 - (a) Conform to fact.
 - (b) Scrupulously avoid all misrepresentation.
2. Good taste shall be the guiding rule of motion picture advertising.
3. Illustrations and text in advertising shall faithfully represent the pictures themselves.

4. No false or misleading statements shall be used directly, or implied by type arrangements or by distorted quotations.
5. No text or illustration shall ridicule or tend to ridicule any race, religion or religious faith; no illustration of a character in clerical garb shall be shown in any but a respectful manner.
6. The history, institutions and nationals of all countries shall be represented with fairness.

7. Profanity and vulgarity shall be avoided.
8. Pictorial and copy treatment of officers of the law shall not be of such a nature as to undermine their authority.
9. Specific details of crime, inciting imitation, shall not be used.
10. Motion picture advertisers shall be guided by the provision of the Production Code that the use of liquor in American life shall be restricted to the necessities of characterization and plot.
11. Nudity with meretricious purpose and salacious postures shall not be used; and clothed figures shall not be represented in such manner as to be offensive or contrary to good taste or morals.
12. Court actions relating to censoring of pictures, or other censorship disputes, are not to be capitalized in advertising or publicity.
13. Titles of source materials or occupations or names of characters on which motion pictures may be based should not be exploited in advertising or upon the screen if such titles or names are in conflict with the provisions of the Production Code affecting titles.
14. No text or illustration shall be used which capitalizes, directly or by implication, upon misconduct of a person connected with a motion picture thus advertised.

REGULATIONS FOR ADMINISTRATION

(The following regulations were adopted by the Board of Directors of the Motion Picture Association of America, Inc., April 22, 1948.)

1. These regulations are applicable to all members of the Motion Picture Association of America, Inc. (hereinafter referred to as the "Association"), subsidiaries of a member producing or distributing motion pictures, and to all producers and distributors of motion pictures with respect to each picture for which the Association has granted its Certificate of Approval, pursuant to an application therefor.

2. The term "advertising" as used herein shall be deemed to mean all forms of motion picture advertising and exploitation, and ideas therefor, including, among other things, but without limitation thereto, the following: press books; still photographs; newspaper, magazine and trade paper advertising; publicity copy and are intended for use in press books or otherwise intended for general distribution in printed form or for theater use; trailers; posters, lobby displays and other outdoor displays; advertising accessories, including heralds, throwaways, etc.; novelties; copy for exploitation tie-ups; radio and television copy.

The term "Company" as used herein shall be deemed to mean any person, firm or corporation.

3. All advertising shall be submitted to the Advertising Code Administration of the Association for approval before use, and shall not be used in any way until so submitted and approved as hereinafter set forth. All advertising shall be submitted in duplicate with the exception of press books, which shall be submitted in triplicate.

4. The Advertising Code Administration shall proceed as promptly as it finds feasible to approve or disapprove the advertising submitted on the basis of whether it complies with the Advertising Code.

The Advertising Code Administration shall stamp its approval on one copy of all advertising approved and return such stamped copy to the company submitting the same. If the Advertising Code Administration disapproves of any advertising, there shall be stamped the word "Disapproved" on one copy thereof, which shall be returned to the company submitting the same; or, if the Advertising Code Administration so desires, it may return the same with suggestions for such changes or corrections in the advertising as will cause it to be approved.

5. After advertising (as defined in Section 2 above) for a motion picture shall have been approved by the Advertising Code Administration, if circumstances arise, either before or after the picture's release, which in the judgment of the Administrator seem to require the withdrawal of all, or any portion of such previously approved advertising, then, after consultation with the Advertising Advisory Council, he shall immediately file a written report with the President and Secretary of the Association (a) setting forth the situation existing at the time such prior approval was granted for such advertising, (b) reciting the intervening circumstances with resultant changes in the situation, (c) listing the reasons why in the opinion of the Administrator all or a designated portion of the advertising previously approved should be withdrawn and (d) certifying that if such advertising were then being presented to him for the first time, it would not be approved by him under the Advertising Code for stated reasons.

If the President of the Association (or a Vice-President of the Association in the absence of the President), upon receipt of such report from the Advertising Code Administration, is of the opinion that the situation presented is sufficiently serious to justify consideration by the Board of Directors, the Secretary of the Association shall be instructed to call immediately an emergency meeting of the Board, at which meeting the Board shall sit as a Board of Appeal with adequate opportunity for the producer and/or distributor of the motion picture representative and present reasons orally or in writing, or both, as to why the prior approval of the advertising should be affirmed, and with adequate opportunity for the Administrator of the Advertising Code to appear and present reasons, either orally or in writing, or both, as to why in his judgment all or a designated portion of such previously approved advertising should be withdrawn.

Thereafter, the Board, meeting in executive session with the producer and/or distributor of the picture not voting, shall determine by vote of a majority of the Directors present and voting, whether all or any portion of the previously approved advertising shall be withheld from use and/or withdrawn, and such action of the Board of Directors shall be final and binding upon the producer and/or distributor of said film.

When any previously approved advertising for a motion picture is withdrawn pursuant to action of the Board hereunder, the company withdrawing same shall be reimbursed the unrecoverable portion of its out-of-pocket expenditures for such advertising to the extent deemed equitable and proper under all the circumstances by the Board. The amount of such reimbursement shall be prorated among all members of the Association including the company affected on the same basis as dues to the Association are currently paid.

If neither the producer nor the distributor of said film is a member of the Association, then the non-member withdrawing such advertising shall be reimbursed the unrecoverable portion of its out-of-pocket expenditures for such advertising by the members of the Association to the extent deemed equitable and proper under all the circumstances by the Board.

6. Appeals. Any company whose advertising has been disapproved may appeal from the decision of the Advertising Code Administration, as follows:

Within 10 days after its advertising has been disapproved it shall serve notice of such appeal in writing on the Director of the Advertising Code Administration and on the Secretary of the Association. Said notice of appeal shall set forth the grounds upon which the appeal is taken. Within a reasonable time after the receipt of such notice by the Director of the Advertising Code Administration and the Secretary of the Association, the President or, in the event of his absence from the country or his inability to act, a board consisting of three members of the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors of the Association appointed by him, shall hold a hearing to pass upon the appeal. Oral and written evidence may be introduced by the company and the Advertising Code Administration. Oral argument shall be had at the hearing and written memoranda or briefs may be submitted by the company and the Advertising Code Administration. The President or said board, as the case may be, may admit such evidence as is deemed relevant, material and competent, and may determine the nature and length of the oral argument and of the written memoranda or briefs to be submitted.

The President, or said board, as the case may be, shall decide the appeal as expeditiously as possible and shall notify the company and the Director of the Advertising Code Administration in writing of the decision. Such decision shall be final.

A company appealing from a decision of the Advertising Code Administration under Section 14 of the Advertising Code shall have the right, by written notice to the Secretary of the Association, to appeal directly to the Board of Directors of the Association, whose decision shall be final. The provisions relating to evidence, argument and written memoranda or briefs, set forth in these Regulations, shall apply to such appeals.

7. Any company to which these regulations are applicable, which publishes, or makes available for sale or lease, or which in any way uses advertising without prior approval as hereinabove provided, may be brought up on charges before the Board of Directors by the Director of the Advertising Code Administration, or by any of the following officers of the Association, viz.: the President, a Vice-President, the Secretary or the Treasurer. The company shall be entitled to receive a written statement of the charges and to a hearing before the Board of Directors. Within a reasonable time after the receipt of said statement of charges by the company, the Board of Directors of the Association shall meet in a Special Meeting to hear and pass upon such charges. Oral and written evidence may be introduced by the company and by the Advertising Code Administration. Oral argument shall be had and written memoranda or briefs may be submitted by the company and by the Advertising Code Administration. The Board of Directors may admit such evidence as it deems relevant, material and competent, and may determine the nature and length of the oral argument and of the written memoranda or briefs to be submitted. The Board of Directors, by a majority vote of those present, shall decide the matter as expeditiously as possible.

If the Board of Directors finds that the company has published, or made available for sale or lease or in any way used advertising without prior approval as hereinabove set forth, the Board may take one or more of the following actions:

a) Direct the Production Code Administration to void and revoke the Certificate of Approval granted by the Association for the picture so advertised and require the removal of the Association's seal from all prints of said picture, and the Production Code Administration shall thereupon do so;

b) Require the company, if a member of the Association, to pay to the Association as and for liquidated damages, not more than $100 for each publication, lease, sale or use of an unapproved item of advertising which has been published, made available for lease or sale or used, provided, however, that the total sum assessed for advertising relative to one motion picture may not exceed the sum of $25,000. The amount so assessed and collected shall be used by the Association for expenses incurred in the administration of the Advertising Code. It is recognized that any violation of the Advertising Code will disrupt the stability of the industry and cause serious damage to the Association and its members which cannot be definitively computed.

The decision of the Board of Directors shall be final.

8. Each company shall assume responsibility for seeing that all its employees and agents comply with these regulations.

MPIC OF HOLLYWOOD

By ART ARTHUR

Executive Secretary

THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY COUNCIL OF HOLLYWOOD has embarked on a program for 1951 which places heavy emphasis upon cooperation with the Government in the defense emergency. It hopes to do this without neglecting the numerous other activities, including public relations, which have composed the MPIC program in the past.

Hollywood made great contributions during World War II which were saluted by Government and military leaders. There is no need to recite again the proud record. But every effort is being made, in close cooperation with COMPO, to assure that the record of the past will be matched again in the new world crisis.

Great importance is attached to the Voice of America film program. The production branch of the industry has been working closely with Government officials to provide every possible assistance in bringing the State Department films to a peak of effectiveness. Manpower is being supplied and the closest kind of consultation is under way. Production of Armed Forces training and orientation films is being aided in the same manner. As developments warrant, this cooperation will be widened to include every possible area in which a contribution can be made.

Growth of constructive inter-industry relationships has been a prime concern of MPIC from its earliest days. In line with this, the MPIC continues to be a staunch supporter of COMPO. As one of COMPO's charter members the MPIC will be working constantly to strengthen COMPO and to do everything within its power to further the aims and objectives of the industry's only joint production-distribution-exhibition organization.

Until the COMPO Library of Information is fully organized, the MPIC will continue to fill requests from exhibitors for helpful information about Hollywood which could be of assistance to them in local problems affecting industry public relations. Numerous requests along these lines have been received and acted upon.

From Portland an exhibitor requested material for a talk before his Rotary Club. A good supply was forwarded, including the first draft of a speech which could serve as a model. From Miami an exhibitor forwarded an editorial in a local newspaper observing that the industry had made very few anti-Communist films. A full list of films with anti-Communist content was forwarded, together with other pertinent material, making possible an effective rebuttal.

An exhibitor in Virginia asked for facts with which to reply to a very injurious editorial about divorce in Hollywood. He got all the facts he needed and took them to the local editor, resulting in a Sunday feature which reversed the editorial viewpoint previously expressed.

An exhibitor in Texas wrote stating that a local magazine with which he had excellent contacts would be glad to publish a constructive article about the industry if detailed information could be supplied. The resulting article provided another plus for exhibitor-Hollywood cooperation.

From Arkansas an exhibitor asked for material with which to challenge a local attacker who had taken the position that Hollywood was Red-ridden. The exhibitor was supplied with information clearly showing that no industry in America has more effectively succeeded in shattering Communist efforts at infiltration. Working with his local editor, he was able to end the attack in his area.

From Colorado an exhibitor requested material for a series of speeches before service clubs. The news clippings which he subsequently forwarded reflected another excellent contribution to industry public relations. And this has been the pattern of one of the most vital services constantly provided by the MPIC.

The MPIC's range of activities, despite limited staff and facilities, have taken in almost every phase of contact with press, public and other areas of the industry. A typical cross-section would include the highly successful campaign, in cooperation with the Screen Actors' Guild, to crush a talent racket which sprang up in Los Angeles early in 1950 and which was climaxed with jail sentences in 1951 for the ringleaders; Speaker's Bureau services which brought industry spokesmen before church organizations, service clubs, women's clubs, civic organizations, educational groups and other influential opinion-molders; a steadily growing Library of Information which has provided a flow of constructive material about Hollywood for magazine articles, syndicated columns, books and other forms of information dissemination, helping to offset and change some of the false impressions about Hollywood; making a beginning toward challenging and discouraging mis-reporting of Hollywood, coupled with encouraging a greater sense of responsibility among press agents and others who sometimes contribute to the mis-reporting; providing cooperation in laudable events like the posthumous award of the medal of merit to the late Al Jolson; cooperating with the industry's international representatives in problems abroad—particularly in terms of public relations—and working with UN, UNESCO and State Department officials, as well as groups like the Foreign Policy Association, in creating a better knowledge of the constructive influence of American motion pictures abroad; developing better understanding between groups in Hollywood to eliminate past bitterness and hostilities, as was noted by one Hollywood leader who, in commenting on this phase of MPIC activity, wrote: "Persons who had participated in name calling contests against each other, found themselves on the same committee. It was embarrassing. For the first time they began to hear each other's side first hand. There were no intervening parties to exaggerate, distort and twist words. The pressures began to subside. . . ."

Dozens of other aspects of the MPIC activities could be mentioned by way of illustrating areas of interest in which constructive benefits have resulted.

Much satisfaction has come to MPIC representatives as a result of the all-embracing program. But perhaps one of the nicest reflections of past progress was contained in a recent memo which one of the country's most prominent mid-west exhibitors forwarded to his staff, along with some background information about the MPIC. In the memo he said, "Each of us should be thoroughly familiar with the Council because it is one of the most important agencies in the industry for improvement of our over-all public relations, on the local level, as well as on the national level. I would like to have you read this material carefully and have its essence in mind so that each of us will be able to discuss the Council intelligently and accurately in personal conversations with newspaper, radio and television executives, representatives of organizations like the Parent Teachers' Association, the Federation of Churches, the Federation of Women's Clubs and others."

For those unfamiliar with the MPIC, it might be of value to review the makeup of the MPIC and its past history. The Council is an organization of organizations in which all actions are subject to common consent. It was created to serve as a "blue ribbon body of Hollywood with broad-scale representation enabling it to speak and act in behalf of the industry's production branches."

After some months of preliminary discussion the MPIC established an office in April 1949, and went into operation with seven member organizations. Today its member organizations total 10, with new membership applications under consideration.

Its officers are: B. B. Kahane, president; Allen Rivkin, vice-president; Ronald Reagan, secretary; Cy Baer, treasurer; Art Arthur, executive secretary, and Dore Scharf, chairman, Public Relations Committee.

Its Executive Committee consists of: Y. Frank Freeman (AMPP), Roy M. Brewer (AFL Film Council), I. E. Chadwick (IMPPA), Cy Baer (IOW), Ronald Reagan (SAG), Joseph L. Mankiewicz (SDG), William Perlberg (SPG), Karl Tunberg (SWG), Gunther R. Lessing (SIMPP), Paul Groesse (SMPAD).

Past presidents have been: Dore Scharf (AMPP), Cecil B. DeMille (SDG), Ronald Reagan (SAG), Roy M. Brewer (AFL Film Council), and Paul Groesse (SMPAD).

In its early stages, the MPIC served as a unique experiment in industry relations. But it has long since emerged from being an experiment and today stands on a record of past service which promises steadily-increasing contributions to the industry's progress, strength and unity.

MOTION PICTURE RESEARCH COUNCIL

IT IS NOW three years since the Motion Picture Research Council was separated from the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences and, as a separate entity, became a California corporation. During the first two years we concentrated on projects leading to equipment, materials and methods immediately wanted and valuable in the production of motion pictures. This year our activities have aimed at greater emphasis on more basic, long-range problems of the industry. While this has necessarily reduced the number of completed projects, the story is being written and the script is being prepared for future accomplishments which may be of considerable importance to our industry.

To review all of our accomplishments is not practical, but a few of the highlights may be desirable.

The Research Council camera crane has proven its value in production during the past year. It is also used in two of the New York television studios and in film production, both in Canada and in England. The Houston Corp. is currently manufacturing an additional quantity, most of which have already been sold.

The strippable adhesives developed by the Research Council for use on wall and floor coverings of various types, have found increasing use on the part of our member studios. One of these adhesives permits stripping wallpaper from hard flats faster and easier than the old methods, prevents damage to flats, prolongs their life, and in many instances makes it unnecessary to strike a standing set. Where floor coverings are laid with this strippable adhesive, they can be removed without damage to either the floor or the floor covering.

As the direct result of Research Council activity on sealed beam lamps, both the major lamp manufacturers are now making available to the industry special sealed beam lamps in accordance with Research Council specifications.

While still in the lighting field, mention should be made of a new Fresnel lens developed at the request of the Research Council for use with the Type 170 arc lamp. This lens permits three lamps to do the work formerly done by four lamps.

After a very careful and thorough study of the problems of transporting equipment to location, the Research Council issued a report recommending a new type of transportation unit.

The Research Council has developed three wind machines. A 72-inch "hurricane" wind machine for outdoor use, a 36-inch silent wind machine and an 18-inch silent wind machine, the latter two for use on the stage.

The increasing use of color film on distant locations presents a special shipping problem. The Research Council has designed a container whose shipping weight is 100 pounds less than any comparable container presently in use in the industry.

One of the important functions of the Research Council is to interest other research organizations and manufacturers in the problems of the motion picture industry. Such cooperation can be obtained only through an organization like ours. We have been able to consolidate the viewpoints of the various studios and to present a single coordinated proposal to these organizations. Our activities in this phase of our program have been most successful.

Form an industry standpoint, this phase of our program enables us to interest organizations with large research facilities and manpower, and with our help they are able to channel their efforts in a direction which is of practical benefit to the industry. Many of the companies who are working with us are old friends of the industry and others are new to the motion picture studios. These companies include film manufacturers, optical companies, chemical manufacturers, electrical manufacturers, and many specialty emulsions, faster camera lenses, heat filters, plastics, process screens, neutral density filters, motors, set construction materials, flame-proofing materials and many others.

The impending change from a free economy to a managed economy will necessarily result in restrictions on materials, equipment and manpower for the production of motion pictures. The value of the time- and material-saving ideas which come from the Research Council will be materially increased under such an economy.

TURN TO THE ENGINEER

By E. I. SPONABLE

Past President, SMPTE

MOVIES are better than ever. They are better in every way—they have in fact reached such a state of perfection that many people ask what chance of further improvement can there possibly be. These pessimists are among the ones who see no future for the industry in the face of declining revenues and increasing competition from other media.

SPONABLE

A fresh point of view is clearly called for, as is some genuine enthusiasm for the future. But, before any general revival can be brought about, we need an adult and an unemotional appraisal of the present state of affairs by one whose thinking is reliably objective in its approach to a new problem. Frankness in his attitude is a first requisite; a second is a reasonable immunity to the prevailing pessimism. The right man can be found on the payroll of every studio, every manufacturer and every theater circuit—he has been there from the very beginning of the industry. He is the engineer of proven ability. He invented motion pictures in the first place; he took out the basic patents on which the industry cut its legal eye-teeth; he provided the ideas, materials, and equipment that became the foundation for every one of the industry's film and equipment companies.

During the mid-twenties (another period of falling income) he came along with sound, to be variously praised for producing the movies' salvation, and damned for administering the final fatal blow by robbing the film of its artistry. As it turned out, time and receipts at the box office were his vindication. He asked for nothing more, but went along quietly finding simpler, more reliable ways of making better motion pictures. Not a single step in the process has escaped his attention, with the result that the technical quality level of pictures went continually up. But his success has been his undoing—by his years of quiet application to the job at hand, he has become taken for granted.

Now, however, since the economic emergency is serious enough to force the closing of many theaters, and some studios, this is clearly the time to call on all the technical talent available. The engineer can provide a critically important measure of stability to immediate and future plans; his years of technical experience, together with professional training, have developed an objective outlook that insists upon logical reasoning. Decisions call for action, and actions have consequences, direct and indirect, which the professional technical man searches out and evaluates instinctively.

This, then, is a time for plans, decisions and actions with predictable consequences; a time for vision and vigor in all things; particularly for motion pictures—otherwise the present internal state of the industry is apt to render it less able to assume its serious national and international obligations than it was at the start of World War II.

Technology made the picture business—it saved the day 25 years ago—it can do it again. The basis for a sound continuing growth has been provided during the years immediately following World War II. Some of these developments are known only in a general way, a few are already in limited use. The bulk of the new products, processes and ideas that can brighten the horizon can be made ready for public demonstration as rapidly as men and funds are provided; some will be finished soon, and when they are, no time should be lost in putting them to work.

One observation, the importance of which can scarcely be overemphasized, (and not immediately apparent to any one other than a motion picture engineer) should be made: the industry has now been standardized. Accomplished by years of painstaking effort, the practical result is that any new device or technique proposed to the industry today will have already been tailored to "fit" where it should, without loss of time in expensive on-the-job changes, or costly delaying field trials. A firm foundation on which to build further has been provided.

Through the administrative and technical committee structure of the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers, the technical leaders of both motion pictures and of television have developed a practical avenue for the easy exchange across commercial boundaries of information that has a profound effect on the profitable end use of their particular products and processes.

It is to the engineer that motion pictures must turn for ideas that will stimulate their drooping spirits and revive their declining economy. Every studio, large and small, every manufacturer, every television broadcaster and every motion picture exhibitor must recognize this fact—or the direst prediction of the most avowed pessimist may yet prove a reality.

THE ACADEMY in 1950

By CHARLES BRACKETT

President

IN TAKING A GLANCE at the Academy of Motion Picture Arts & Sciences in the year 1950, a glance which the limitations of our space in this Year Book must render cursory, let us take certain routine facts for granted. The Academy has continued to add volumes to its outstanding collection of books regarding motion pictures. It has added to its museum of motion picture memorabilia, and to its library of great films. Thanks to the contract with the Bulova Watch Co., it has reduced the mortgage on its headquarters and theater by several thousand dollars. It has continued its educational program, cooperating with the students and faculty of schools and colleges throughout the United States.

BRACKETT

Not to waste space on the recapitulation of day-in, day-out routine, let us consider one activity of the Academy in more detail. Let's take, for instance, the Academy sponsored trip of Daniele Amfitheatrof to the Fourth International Music Congress in Florence. This, I suppose, could be classified, rather stuffily, as part of the Academy's ambassadorial function. Here's how it began: an invitation came to the musicians of Hollywood to send examples of their music and a representative to Florence to a music congress which for the first time was to emphasize music written for the screen.

It was a type of international conference for which there was no precedent in the industry. Many people confused it with the International Film Festivals held each year in Europe, and since our industry had decided to be represented at only one film exposition, the invitation was to be politely brushed off.

Representatives of our music branch alerted us that this was an important occasion, exclusively musical, and that it would be wise for Hollywood composers to be represented. You will understand their importunity when I tell you that, due to the dubbing problems immediately after the war it had become a regrettable custom to sell American films in Italy without the scores originally written for them. Instead, before distribution, Italian scores run up from stock libraries were substituted. This practice had put not only the musicians of Hollywood in amazing disrepute, but had seriously damaged the prestige of American films in Italy.

Believing that it would be a serious mistake not to have American film music properly and fully represented at the Florence congress, the Academy arranged to send to Florence a musician chosen by the music branch, Daniele Amfitheatrof, to present his music and the work of his fellow composers. He took with him 7,200 feet of film excerpts from 15 pictures which he ran for the assembled French, British, Dutch, and Italian delegations, plus composers, musicologists, and critics from all over Europe.

Before each film clip was run he gave data on the picture from which the particular film was taken and prepared the delegates for the mood of the scene to come. The presentation lasted about two hours, and received an ovation from the international audience.

The Academy is especially equipped to render this kind of cultural service to the industry and hopes to follow, in future years, the precedent so established.

SWG IN 1950

By KARL TUNBERG

President

THE KEYSTONE of the Screen Writers' Guild policy during 1950 has been an effort to negotiate a new minimum basic agreement with the producing companies. Unfortunately, this negotiation has not been concluded successfully, and therefore our role during the coming year will continue to be to arrive at some kind of workable agreement between ourselves and the producing companies.

We are determined that this agreement will reflect more accurately the realistic position of the writer in Hollywood. We feel that the present contract, as well as many present usages and customs in the industry, reflect unrealistically the writer's actual contribution to the finished picture.

Writers feel that not only the quality of present day pictures but the real importance of the writer, who more and more is becoming the director and producer—even the head of production, proves our point. We realize, of course, that along with increased recognition of our position we must accept increased responsibility.

The Guild therefore will continue to make every effort to contribute to a healthy and profitable motion picture industry and to encourage both writers and the industry in general to accept their responsibility in the crisis of the present day business world. Our activities in the Motion Picture Industry Council and in cooperating with UNESCO toward reform of copyright legislation will bear this out.

SAG IN 1950

By JOHN DALES, JR.

Executive Secretary

THE SCREEN ACTORS GUILD in 1950 continued to play a leading role in many and varied constructive activities for the general good of the entire motion picture industry. Ever since the Guild's founding in 1933, its board of directors has recognized the vast difference between mere "publicity" and real "public relations." The Guild at all times has an active public relations program to promote the welfare and best interests of its members and our industry as a whole.

Typical of Screen Actors Guild leadership in this respect was the drive which rid Hollywood and the City of Los Angeles of new type talent racketeers who were posing as film producers and defrauding thousands of gullible citizens. Working through the Motion Picture Industry Council, the Guild enlisted the aid of management and public officials in a drive against the talent sharks and succeeded in having many of them arrested and convicted on various felony and misdemeanor charges.

Then there is the Guild's continuing effort to educate all motion picture actors to help promote current pictures and the industry generally whenever opportunity arises, particularly in appearances in other mediums of communication such as radio and television. The Guild urges its members to "help sell pictures and the picture industry."

In television, Screen Actors Guild is waging a successful fight to protect the interests of the motion picture actors against encroachment by a live talent union. This new union, Television Authority, says that performers in live television shows should have the say as to what wages and conditions should be for actors in televised motion pictures.

To the Guild, a motion picture is a motion picture, whether it be exhibited in a theater, a church, a school, a jukebox or on television. To protect the interests of the motion picture actors, the Guild took the matter to the National Labor Relations Board, which is expected to call elections in 1951 in which film actors may affirm their choice of the Screen Actors Guild as bargaining agent for players in all types of motion pictures.

A major and continuing problem faced by the Guild is unemployment of its members. Because present Federal labor laws are permitting thousands of non-professionals to deprive experienced motion picture actors of work in pictures, the Guild will seek to negotiate a new contract with the film producers which will afford some protection for Guild members against "hit-and-run" competition for acting jobs by persons who have no intention of making a livelihood from acting.

The great employment of non-professionals for one or two-day bits in pictures has not been occasioned by a legitimate search for new talent by the producers. The Guild is an "open union" which recognizes that new talent must be under development at all times for the picture industry. But we oppose the trend in recent years of allowing non-talented amateurs to take a day's work in a small part from a talented, experienced motion picture actor whose life is devoted to the industry on which he depends for a livelihood.

Despite our many problems, the Guild faces 1951 with confidence, sure in the knowledge that "movies are your best entertainment."

SDGA IN 1950

By J. P. McGOWAN

Chairman, Public Relations Committee

EXPANSION was the keynote of the Screen Directors Guild of America during 1950. With the approval of the appropriate Governmental departments, and to meet changing national conditions, SDG, Inc. was reorganized as the Screen Directors Guild of America, Inc., so that jurisdiction would apply to the whole of United States, Canada, the territory of Hawaii, Alaska and other countries where Guild members were, or would be, employed—subject to local restrictions governed by the laws of the land.

Under this authority a classification was established in the by-laws which granted membership in the Guild to all television directors and their assistants. A Television Council was elected by its own membership which has the responsibility of creating basic agreements covering wages and working conditions in the TV field, somewhat similar to the independence granted assistant directors in controlling their own immediate affairs.

The elected Council consists of Robert W. Breckner, president; Seymour Berns, first vice-president; Philippe DeLacy, second vice-president; Stuart Phelps, secretary; Jack P. Orbison, treasurer, and board members Philip Booth, J. V. Agnello, George M. Cahan, Richard DeMille, Robert S. Finkel, Gordon Minter, William L. Padgett. Edgar J. Leaman is executive authority as television consultant. Membership consists of 54 TV directors and 14 TV assistants, the latter known in the video industry as "floor managers."

This action met with strong opposition from the Radio and Television Directors' Guild and a charge of unfair labor practices was made by RTDG before the NLRB regional director, particularly regarding Station KECA-TV, when 13 directors and six assistants of its staff became members of the SDGT Council. However, in mid-December, 1950, Howard LeBaron, regional director of the board, advised the SDGA that the unfair labor practices charge made by RTDG had been dismissed for lack of evidence.

The Screen Directors Guild of America is now what might be termed a three-way partnership—motion picture directors; television directors and their assistants; motion picture first and second assistant directors—each with its own sphere of activity within the Guild governed by the board of directors.

It is a strong and healthy partnership of first class craftsmen who are among the most progressive in our industry. True, we have differences of opinions at times. It is an obvious fact that none of us is altogether right all the time. But together we have always managed to settle our differences in the realization that we must all work together. The best interests of each is tied up inseparably with the best interests of all. And it must be kept that way if we are to perpetuate our democratic foundation of free thought, free choice and free action. This close cooperation has a direct bearing on the Guild's ability to bargain with its employers and maintain, or improve, our present wages and working conditions.

The Film Advisory Council was created early in 1950. Offices were established in New York for the purpose of offering to producers of industrial, educational, religious and television films the cooperation of the Guild in their various activities. The program was broad and ambitious, emphasizing the type of collaboration that should be an overall policy of the motion picture industry. However, as more and more producers transferred to the West Coast the Guild closed the New York office at the end of 1950.

Screen Directors, Inc., is a subsidiary of SDGA and, as a tax-paying corporation, was established to supervise Screen Directors' Playhouse which is a weekly broadcast over the NBC network. In the fall of 1950 the half-hour program was extended to a full hour and it was continued into March, 1951 sponsored by RCA, Ford, Anacin and Chesterfield. The proceeds of this organization, after taxes, go to the Benevolent Foundation of the Guild.

Screen Directors' Guild Educational and Benevolent Foundation is a non-profit, eleemosynary corporation devoted to charitable enterprises and is supported by individual contributions from Guild members, as well as the radio program. Its primary purpose is to give help where it is needed, particularly to those who do not come within the purview of the Motion Picture Relief Fund. In addition to other activities, last year the Foundation designed and erected a sarcophagus over the resting place of the late

Quarterly and Annual Awards

Last year John Huston received the first quarterly award for his direction of "The Asphalt Jungle" and was followed by Billy Wilder's "Sunset Boulevard." Joe Mankiewicz received the 1949-1950 annual award for "A Letter to Three Wives." The quarterly awards have a date line from May 1 to April 30, therefore the last two quarters have not been voted on and the annual award will not be decided until May of this year. The Assistant Directors' Awards followed the same pattern with Jack Greenwood receiving recognition for "The Asphalt Jungle" and Charles Coleman for "Sunset Boulevard." For last year Sam Nelson received the Annual Award for his work on "All The King's Men."

Guild Membership does not fluctuate much, except in times of national emergency. At the beginning of 1950, the senior roster contained 286 names. At the end of the year it had reached 300, for a gain of 14. The assistant directors made a gain of three, from 291 to 294; when we add TV directors and assistants the total membership is expanded to 653.

It is quite possible that, as in the last war, many of the younger men will be called to the colors and some of the older men, now in the reserves, will again don khaki. This applies particularly to those who are skilled in electronics as well as the many who previously served with combat units of the Signal Corps.

THE NATIONAL BOARD OF REVIEW

THE NATIONAL BOARD OF REVIEW OF MOTION PICTURES is a non-profit, independent organization of public-spirited citizens drawn from all walks of life to represent the interests of the motion picture public.

The work of the National Board of Review is to promote the development of the motion picture as art, as entertainment, as education, and as a factor in social progress. The Board believes that the public shares with the industry the responsibility for the production and distribution of good pictures. Therefore it reviews films and disseminates information about them before and after their release.

The National Board of Review believes that the motion picture is one of the free institutions of the American people, and that any attempt to censor it is un-American in principle and fact. This belief is based on experience, for the Board came into existence as the result of an early attempt to censor the motion picture. In 1908 the Mayor of New York, at the instigation of individuals and groups concerned over the possible deleterious influence of the movies and the physical condition of the places in which they were shown, closed all the theaters. The People's Institute, an impartial organization which had made a study of the subject, organized, with the cooperation of the producers, the National Board of Censorship to pass upon all film product and to advise on the revision or withdrawal of any film.

After seven years the Board came to the conclusion that censorship, even of this liberal kind, was self-defeating and repugnant to American ideals, and that a positive, not a negative, policy was required to promote the development of the motion picture. Accordingly, in 1916 the Board adopted its present name and policies.

The Review Committee has a membership of 200 men and women representing a fair cross section of public taste. From this panel smaller groups are formed and attend screenings in the projection rooms of the motion picture companies. Pictures are judged for entertainment, artistic, instructional and ethical values, and are classified according to audience suitability. Recommendations are based on majority opinion.

The General Committee includes experienced reviewers, authorities in cultural and sociological fields, and the directors of the Board, and acts upon any decision referred to it by its members or questioned by a producer.

The Committee on Exceptional Films is composed of critics and students of the motion picture primarily interested in the movies as an art form. Its members contribute critical reviews to the Board's magazine Films in Review. In 1917 the Exceptional Committee initiated the practice of publishing a selection of the 10 best films of the year, a practice now widely imitated.

The Schools' Motion Picture Committee was organized in 1935 by a group of parents and teachers in New York City interested in suitable movie programs for children, especially weekend programs. Their original activity was conducted with the help of the National Board of Review. It was soon clear that their recommendations of programs for different age groups would be useful to other parent-teacher groups throughout the country, and the Committee was made a department of the Board in 1943. Its audience classifications for children appear in the Board's Weekly Guide to Selected Pictures and in New York newspapers.

The National Motion Picture Council has been a department of the Board active since 1916. It organizes and advises community groups interested in seeing and studying good movies. These groups, or councils, usually consist of representatives of the community's public-spirited organizations. They publish information about good films, cooperate with theater managers, hold discussion meetings. Annual conferences are held in New York City for delegates from Councils from all parts of the country. The chief speakers are professionals active in motion picture production and distribution.

VARIETY CLUBS INTERNATIONAL

By MARC J. WOLF

International Chief Barker

VARIETY CLUBS INTERNATIONAL continues to grow both in size and in accomplishments. Our Clubs now number 39 with the addition of the Variety Club of Salt Lake City and the Variety Club of Southern Nevada, both of which were granted charters during the year 1950.

For the third consecutive year our Heart Fund reports show over three million dollars expended for charitable ventures in the United States, Canada, Mexico and England. This sum is in addition to the hundreds of Variety projects during the year, such as free shows for shut-ins, special shows for orphans, aid given by various Variety tents to the Red Cross, March of Dimes, Cerebral Palsy Drives, etc., which cannot be measured in terms of dollars and cents. We feel that we have a record for charity, which if figured on the basis of membership, far surpasses that of any other organization.

The months that have elapsed since my election as chief barker, last May in New Orleans, have been filled with ever increasing realization of the magnitude of Variety's accomplishments. Come with me, if you will, for a short survey of a few of Variety's projects.

Last year the judges decided that two of our Variety tents should be given the Annual Charity Citation because both of them had performed so well during the year that it was impossible to make a single choice. In Miami, due to the work of the Variety Club of Greater Miami, we now have Variety Children's Hospital. This great institution, unsurpassed in its facilities has given to the Southeast a place where crippled children have every chance known to modern science for cure. This hospital has been particularly successful in the dread disease Polio and medical reports show that 92 percent of the children treated for Polio in this hospital have been cured. No other institution can match this record.

Located on a high hill, overlooking a lake, just outside the great Canadian City of Toronto, the Barkers of Toronto have erected Variety Village. This institution is a vocational training school for deformed children. Here you will see children of various ages with all types of deformities being taught a trade so that they can eventually make their own way in the world and because of Variety Village a bright outlook will take the place of the usual dismal future that goes along with deformity. This is truly a great charity, one of which Variety can be justly proud.

Boys Ranch located between Dallas and Fort Worth in Texas is now 10 years old. Here young boys who have gotten into trouble due to unhappy home surroundings or the wrong type of companionship are taught to be good men and fine citizens. Over 160 boys have been "graduated" from Boys Ranch to date and everyone of them is satisfactorily handling a responsible position, which was secured for him before his graduation. As the years go by, the value of Boys Ranch will become more and more noticeable as the result of the training given to the boys at the Ranch.

This year in Boston our great Variety Cancer Hospital, under the direction of Dr. Farber, began the construction of a new wing with money raised by the Variety Club of New England's "Jimmy Fund". In all of our experience we have never met a finer man or greater humanitarian than Dr. Farber and we are so happy that Variety Clubs are working with this great man in his great work.

On the grounds of the University of Minnesota, on March 20, 1951, the Variety Club of the Northwest formally dedicated its great Variety Children's Hospital. This tremendous project which will cost nearly two-million dollars when completed will emerge as one of the world's finest hospitals. Naturally, we are proud and elated that the Variety name will be over the doorway to this great institution and that its completion is the result of Variety's assistance.

The Variety Club of Southern California continues to operate its very wonderful Boys Club—an institution that has reduced juvenile delinquency over 79 per cent in the area near its location. There are many fine Boys Clubs located throughout the United States, but we still think Variety's Boys Club in Los Angeles is one of the leaders.

We are happy to advise that the Variety Club of Houston, Texas, has a Boys Club under-way in that great City. Judging by the plans that we have seen, this will also be a fine Boys Club and another great Variety project.

The Variety Club of Dayton, after several years of planning now has plans under way for the establishment of Variety Manor. This institution will be devoted to the care and help of children who are under par mentally.

Philadelphia and Pittsburgh continue to operate their very fine Summer camps for underprivileged children and several of the other Variety tents plan to establish summer camps this year.

In San Francisco the Variety Club has sponsored a school where blind children are taught to make their own living.

It is these Variety projects that make every good Variety Barker's heart beat just a little faster.

Chicago continues to give great aid to the La Ribida Hospital, Memphis continues to operate its Mother's Milk Bank, Oklahoma City has its two great hospitals in Oklahoma City and Tulsa—and so it goes.

From Coast to Coast, Variety continues to set an inspiring standard of devotion to unfortunate children.

In addition, Variety is undertaking the responsibility of aiding the heads of the various distributing companies in the project of Variety Clubs—Will Rogers Hospital at Saranac, New York. This great institution, unsurpassed by any in the treatment of tuberculosis is the only institution of its kind which is maintained for members of the motion picture industry exclusively. It is only right and proper that Variety, "The Heart of Show Business" should aid in maintaining this great Hospital.

You can readily understand why I am so proud that I am the leader of Variety Clubs International, a great charitable organization made up of men who think, not only with their minds, but also with their hearts.

A GUILD FOR MOTION PICTURE PRODUCERS

By WILLIAM PERLBERG

President, Screen Producers' Guild

EARLY IN 1950, a group of us who produce motion pictures for the major Hollywood studios were concerned about the status and standing of the producer in our industry and about the future of producing as an art and a profession. A series of discussions led us to the decision to form the Screen Producers' Guild. There were three main purposes behind this action.

PERLBERG

First, although the producers who made pictures for the principal studios were directly responsible for the great majority of the films turned out in Hollywood, they had no voice in the councils of the industry. They were not members of the Motion Picture Association nor of the independent producers' organizations; they had no representation comparable to that provided by the major talent guilds.

Second, there was a need to restore a proper understanding of the role and function of the producer in film-making. Historically, the idea of the producer was born in the early days of the industry when the pioneer heads of our major motion picture corporations brought a number of independent showmen together to produce films under the banner of a single company. This device not only made possible production economies and a planned schedule; it also provided technical equipment and production facilities far beyond the reach of any producer who operated independently. As these producers became part of the larger companies, they found themselves in the unique position of being both representatives of the management and employees as well. Yet the heads of the film companies understood then, as they do today, that if film-making was not to become an assembly-line operation, it was essential that each producer retain his full individual initiative, his creative vitality and his showmanship. In recent years, however, this concept of the studio-employed producer has not been understood by the various branches of the industry.

Third, as producers we realized that we needed a professional organization through which we could meet to discuss common business, technical and artistic problems.

It was out of this background that there developed the Screen Producers' Guild, the first professional association of film producers in the history of the motion picture industry, an organization designed to advance the art and profession of producing, to preserve and further its standards, and to promote the professional interests of its members.

The new Producers' Guild found immediate acceptance not only among producers themselves, but among the other organizations of the industry. Within a short time it was welcomed as a constituent member of the Motion Picture Industry Council. It took its place on the Permanent Charities Committee of the industry. At the Guild's suggestion, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences established for the first time a separate branch for producers and revised its rules to provide that hereafter the Best Picture Award should be made to the individual producer as well as to the studio responsible for the picture. This kind of recognition from the Academy represented an achievement that producers had sought for many years.

During 1950, the Guild grew rapidly and by the close of the year its membership numbered over 120 producers, including virtually every leading contract producer, a substantial number of independent producers as well as the majority of the younger men coming up in the industry. Together the Guild's members are responsible for nearly 90 per cent of the total Hollywood product.

STAY ON TOP
FOR 10 YEARS

Industry preference has kept BOXOFFICE circulation on top for a decade. This chart shows the record. Based on annual Audit Bureau of Circulations Reports of 1937 through June 1949 and Publishers' statements for the periods ending December 31, 1949, and June 30, 1950.

*Published in 10 editions, identical in content except for a different local news supplement in each edition. National Executive Edition contains all supplements.

BOXOFFICE has 8,736 more subscribers in the U. S. and Canada than any other film industry publication!

That's because top executives consider BOXOFFICE unequalled in news coverage—nationally and locally—and unsurpassed in its constantly improving service features on all phases of production, distribution and exhibition.

See figures for the issues of May 6, 1950, as shown in the Audit Bureau Reports for the twelve months period ending June 30, 1950.

BOXOFFICE

In addition to dominance in national and local news coverage weekly, BOXOFFICE includes six indispensable guides and "how-to" features: Showmandiser, Booking Chart, Review Digest, Exhibitor Has His Say, Feature and Shorts Reviews, Exploitiips . . . Plus two "magazines within the magazine" monthly . . . and two top reference issues annually.

PROMOTION

The Motion Picture Merchandising Guide—This new and acclaimed magazine section covers all the national advertising campaigns, media publicity and commercial tie-ins for important pictures and stars. PROMOTION is the No. 1 market place for media and tie-in advertisers. (In BOXOFFICE third Saturday each month.)

THE MODERN THEATRE

First in total pages devoted to theatre operating methods, construction, maintenance, and concession merchandising. By far, the top medium for equipment and refreshment advertising. (In BOXOFFICE first issue of each month.)

RED KEY

The Review-Preview issue of the MODERN THEATRE, extensively covering all facets of theatre operation. Includes "The Key to Better Buying," the most complete classified equipment-service directory available. Other features of year-round value. (Published in November as a second section of BOXOFFICE.)

BAROMETER

The top film review and preview issue. Relied upon by practically every exhibitor as his most useful reference source on product information for booking and buying. Like all the BOXOFFICE services to the industry, BAROMETER is edited to help increase profits at the boxoffice. (Published in January as a second section of BOXOFFICE.)

. . . the mark of a technical and craft publication devoted to better visual and sound reproduction. Excellence of editorial content, an outstanding feature of which is the very latest news of and views upon reproducing equipment and technique. Published exclusively for projectionists and affiliated technical personnel—the only technically-minded people in the theatre and a group that exerts profound influence upon the purchase of reproducing equipment, from screen to projection room. Extremely opinionated, with a definitely constructive editorial policy that delights its readers . . . and advertisers.

The Feet-on-the Desk Trade Paper

There are substantial reasons why exhibitors all over America (and the subscribers in Canada, Europe, England, India and Iceland, too) are agreeable to pay more for a subscription to FILM BULLETIN than for any other of the regular film trade papers (only Variety and Harrison's Reports get more per copy). The answer is that thousands of theatremen do more than just subscribe to FILM BULLETIN . . . They absorb it from cover to cover . . . They buy product by its production information . . . They book by its frank reviews . . . They form their views of industry policies by its editorial pages . . . They have faith in it . . . They regard FILM BULLETIN as the trade paper with something Important to say!

Legal and Legislative News Of the Motion Picture Industry Are Completely Covered in THE FILM DAILY

STATUTORY COURT DECISION IN THE NEW YORK EQUITY SUIT

WITH DIVORCEMENT a reality for one of the theater-owning defendants at the start of the year, and scheduled to go into effect for a second major company by the end of the year, it seemed at last that the long-embattled industry antitrust suit was achieving the results intended by the Department of Justice since the filing of the action on July 20, 1938.

Jan. 1, 1950, marked the beginning of the end of the order as two new Paramount companies emerged—Paramount Pictures, headed by Barney Balaban, and United Paramount Theaters, with Leonard Goldenson as president. In addition, the new exhibition company during the year gradually divested itself of theater holdings in conformance with the decree, which obliges the company to trim its holdings to the 500-odd theater limit by Jan. 1, 1952.

RKO, the first of the defendants in point of time to withdraw from the litigation when it entered into a consent decree with the Government early in 1949, was to have completed divorcement and divestiture by Nov. 8 of that year. Extensions granted by the District Court, however, delayed the actual split until Dec. 30 of 1950. Effective that date, the parent company gave way to RKO Pictures and RKO Theaters, with Ned E. Depinet and Sol Schwartz, respectively, presidents of the new corporate entities.

The Government ran into some difficulties early in 1951, nevertheless, when Howard Hughes, holder of a 24 per cent interest in the parent company and consequently a holder of similar interests in each of the new companies, agreed to trusteeing his stock in the exhibition corporation but balked at the Court's decision of a time limit for a sale. Hughes, through his attorney, Tom Slack, argued that the consent decree as agreed to by both parties took pains to make no mention of a forced sale of his interests in either company. The Court, however, heeding the argument of D of J Attorney Philip Marcus, that no true divorcement was possible while Hughes kept his interest, ruled on March 27 that Hughes must sell by Feb. 20, 1953. If he should fail to dispose of the stock by the deadline, the trustee, Irving Trust Co., will be required to sell within the following two years.

While most of the other major defendants had indicated willingness to talk consent decrees, and were doing so in some degree, the U. S. District Court filed its final decrees on Feb. 8, 1950. Remaining majors were ordered to divorce and divest while a separate judgment for the Little Three made them subject to the same Findings and Conclusions of Law but placed no ban upon the future acquisition by them of theaters and improved their position with regard to treble-damage antitrust suits.

At the close of the year, counsel for Warner Bros. and the D of J came to agreement on a consent judgment for that major defendant. Under terms of the agreement, released by the D of J on Dec. 26, Warners will divest itself of at least 54 theaters within two years, half of which must be divested after the first year. Moreover, within 27 months from the entry of judgment, two new wholly independent companies must be in operation, effecting a split of exhibition and distribution-production interests.

Remaining major defendants, 20th-Fox and Loew's, are reported very close to consent agreements, but negotiations have not been completed.

FINDING OF FACT*

This action having been duly tried and the proofs and arguments of the respective parties having been duly heard and considered, this court, having filed its opinions herein dated June 11, 1946, and July 25, 1949, does hereby find and decide as follows:

1. The following are definitions of terms used in these findings and in the judgment to be entered hereon:

Block-booking—The practice of licensing, or offering for license, one feature, or group of features, upon condition that the exhibitor shall also license another feature or group of features released by the distributor during a given period.

Clearance—The period of time, usually stipulated in license contracts, which must elapse between runs of the same feature within a particular area or in specified theatres.

Exchange District—An area in which an office is maintained by a distributor for the purpose of soliciting license agreements for the exhibition of its pictures in theatres situated throughout the territory served by the exchange and for the physical distribution of such films throughout this territory.

* Unless otherwise stated these findings show the situation in 1945.

Feature—Any motion picture, regardless of topic, the length of the film of which is in excess of 4,000 feet.

Formula Deal—A licensing agreement with a circuit of theatres in which the license fee of a given feature is measured for the theatres covered by the agreement by a specified percentage of the feature's national gross.

Franchise—A licensing agreement, or series of licensing agreements, entered into as part of the same transaction, in effect for more than one motion picture season and covering the exhibition of features released by one distributor during the entire period of the agreement.

Independent—A producer, distributor, or exhibitor, as the context requires, which is not a defendant in this action or a subsidiary of affiliate of a defendant.

Master Agreement—A licensing agreement, also known as a "blanket deal," covering the exhibition of features in a number of theatres, usually comprising a circuit.

Motion Picture Season—A one-year period beginning about September 1 of each year.

Road-show—A public exhibition of a feature in a limited number of theatres, in advance of its general release, at admission prices higher than those customarily charged in first-run theatres in the areas where they are located.

Runs—The successive exhibitions of a feature in a given area, first-run being the first exhibition in that area, second-run being the next subsequent, and so on, and shall include also successive exhibitions in different theatres even though such theatres may be under a common ownership or management.

Trade-Showing—A private exhibition of a feature prior to its release for public exhibition.

Paramount

2. Paramount Pictures, Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, with its principal place of business at 1501 Broadway, New York, New York, and is engaged in the business of producing, distributing, and exhibiting motion pictures, either directly or through subsidiary or associated companies, in various parts of the United States and in foreign countries.

3. Paramount Film Distributing Corporation, a wholly owned subsidiary of Paramount Pictures, Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with a place of business at 1501 Broadway, New York, New York, and is engaged in the distribution branch of the industry.

4. In 1916 or 1917, a group of exhibitors which controlled many of the then best theatres throughout the country organized First National Exhibitors Circuit, Inc. Although this corporation was initially organized to function as a film buying combine, it evolved into a film-producing company first by financing the production of pictures by others for exhibition in the theatres of its members and finally by producing its own motion pictures.

5. The members of this First National group, consisting of many of the most important exhibitors in the United States controlling many of the best theatres, became franchise holders of the distributing company which they formed. They acquired not only the right to exhibit in their own theatres the pictures produced and distributed by First National, but also they each obtained the right to sub-franchise other exhibitors in their respective territories. In a short time there were some 3,500 franchise holders, representing as many or more theatres.

6. First National soon began to negotiate for the services of well-known stars and directors in the employ of other producers, including Paramount, and the members of First National began to refuse to exhibit Paramount films. Such well-known stars as Mary Pickford and Norma Talmadge went over to the First National group.

7. Many of the theatres owned by members of First National had, for a long time prior to 1918, exhibited Paramount pictures. The formation and growth of First National gradually cut down the number of Paramount pictures exhibited in the theatres of the First National group. By 1919

Paramount faced a situation where a group of owners of many of the best theatres in the large cities, many of whom had been its customers in the past, had combined together for cooperative buying and had expanded into a strong organization which distributed its own pictures and threatened to supply its members with enough pictures to permit them to operate without using any pictures of other producers, including Paramount.

8. In these circumstances Paramount determined to acquire interests in theatres of its own so that it might assure itself of outlets for Paramount productions. Prior to the fall of 1917 Paramount had no theatre interests. Between 1917 and 1919 it acquired an interest in two theatres in New York City as show windows, to replace the Strand Theatre which had gone over to the First National group. During that year in conjunction with its representative in the South, it formed Southern Enterprises, Inc., which acquired various theatres in the South. At about the same time Paramount acquired a 50 per cent interest in the Black chain of theatres in New England. Paramount continued to expand its theatre holdings.

9. In January 1932, Paramount went into equity receivership in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York. It stayed in equity receivership until March 1933, when it went into voluntary bankruptcy. It remained in bankruptcy until June 1934, when upon passage of Section 77B of the Bankruptcy Law, it petitioned for reorganization. It was finally reorganized under its present name in June 1935. During these years various companies operating theatres in which Paramount was interested were themselves the subject of bankruptcy or receivership proceedings.

10. Some of the theatre interests which Paramount held at the time of the trial of this action had been acquired and were wholly owned by it either directly or indirectly through subsidiary companies prior to bankruptcy and reorganization. In the course of its reorganization, some of its partly owned theatre interests were created, i.e., in some instances the plan of reorganization approved by this court provided for the sale or other disposition by Paramount of a partial interest (sometimes amounting to 50 per cent, sometimes more and sometimes less) in theretofore wholly owned theatre operating companies, or companies holding legal or equitable interests in theatres or theatre operating companies. The result was the creation of many of Paramount's present partly owned theatre interests.

11. In the course of the reorganization proceedings Paramount lost its interests in some theatres and also changed its relationship with respect to interests in some of its theatre operating companies. The effect of these proceedings and the policy of decentralization inaugurated in the course thereof, was that in some instances Paramount disposed of a partial interest in companies theretofore wholly owned.

Loew's, Inc.

12. Loew's Incorporated is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal place of business at 1540 Broadway, New York, New York, and is engaged in the business of producing, distributing, and exhibiting motion pictures, either directly or through subsidiary or associated companies, in various parts of the United States and in foreign countries.

RKO

13. Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with principal place of business at 1270 Sixth Avenue, New York, New York, and is engaged in the business of producing, distributing, and exhibiting motion pictures, either directly or through subsidiary or associated corporations, in various parts of the United States and in foreign countries.

14. RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with a place of business at 1270 Sixth Avenue, New York, New York, and is engaged in the production and distribution branch of the industry.

15. Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation was a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with a place of business at 1270 Sixth Avenue, New York, New York, and was engaged in the business of exhibiting motion pictures prior to its dissolution on September 29, 1944. Approximately 99 per cent of its common stock and 33 per cent of its preferred stock were held by Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation.

16. RKO Proctor Corporation, a wholly owned subsidiary of Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, with a place of business at 1270 Sixth Avenue, New York, New York, and is engaged in the business of exhibiting motion pictures.

17. RKO Midwest Corporation, a wholly owned subsidiary of Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Ohio, with a place of business at 1270 Sixth Avenue, New York, New York, and is engaged in the business of exhibiting motion pictures.

18. RKO was organized in 1928 by Radio Corporation of America largely for the purpose of obtaining an effective means of developing the use of its motion picture sound recording and reproduction devices in the motion picture production and exhibition fields.

19. At the time of its organization, RKO secured production and distribution facilities by merger with a small company, FBO Productions, Inc., which had limited production facilities and a national distributing organization. RKO invested substantial sums to modernize these facilities.

20. The formation of RKO introduced a new and substantial competitive factor in the production and distribution of motion pictures.

21. During its initial organizational period, RKO acquired interests in a number of companies operating circuits of vaudeville theatres.

22. RKO went into receivership in 1933 and continued in receivership and reorganization until 1940. At the time of its receivership RKO operated considerably more theatres than its present total of 106. During the receivership it lost 57 theatres.

23. The organization of RKO did increase competition in each of the three branches of the industry.

Warner Bros.

24. Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, having its principal place of business at 321 West 44th Street, New York, New York, and is engaged in the business of producing, distributing, and exhibiting motion pictures, either directly or through subsidiary or associated companies, in various parts of the United States and in foreign countries.

25. On April 4, 1923, the four Warner brothers, Harry M., Jack L., Albert, and Sam, transferred their business of production and distribution of motion pictures to a corporation known as Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. (hereafter referred to as Warner).

26. Beginning in 1925, Warner began the work of developing sound pictures under license and agreements from Western Electric, culminating in the production of such sound pictures as "The Jazz Singer," starring Al Jolson, in October, 1927, and the first 100 per cent talking picture "The Lights of New York" in the summer of 1928.

27. The Stanley Company of America had in 1928 and for a year prior thereto about 250 theatres situated principally in and around Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

28. Negotiations were begun with the view of exchanging stock of Warner for the stock of Stanley Company of America. This transaction was consummated late in 1928.

29. With the acquisition of the stock of Stanley Company of America, Warner acquired 250 theatres which could be immediately equipped with sound installation.

30. In the year and nine months immediately following the acquisition of the stock of Stanley

Company of America Warner secured in a similar fashion several other circuits of theatres owning theatres in the same general locality and a smaller number of theatres scattered in various other parts of the country.

31. In 1931 Warner had an interest in 591 theatres, the largest number of theatres in which Warner has ever had an interest.

32. Today, the Warner companies have an interest in 547 theatres—a net reduction of 44 from its peak holdings of 591 in 1931.

33. First National Pictures, Inc., a corporation engaged in the production and distribution of silent motion pictures, had been organized as far back as 1917 by approximately 24 exhibitors on a co-operative basis for the basis of acquiring film of first quality for exhibition in their own theatres, as well as for distribution by them for other theatres in the respective territories in which they operated.

34. In 1928 Stanley Company of America owned 1/3 of the stock of First National Pictures, Inc., all the stock of First National Pictures, Inc., being subject to a voting trust.

35. Warner acquired as part of the Stanley Company of America transaction in 1928, 1/3 of the stock of First National Pictures, Inc.

36. At or about the time of the acquisition of the Stanley Company of America stock, or shortly thereafter, Warner purchased another 1/3 of the stock of First National Pictures, Inc., from other First National Pictures, Inc. stockholders.

37. Subsequently, in 1929, Warner acquired the remaining 1/3 of the stock of First National Pictures, Inc., from defendant Twentieth Century-Fox.

38. Vitagraph, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, with a place of business at 321 West 44th Street, New York, New York, and is engaged in the business of distributing motion pictures. On July 20, 1944, its name was changed to Warner Bros. Pictures Distributing Corporation.

39. Warner Bros. Circuit Management Corporation, a wholly owned subsidiary of Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, with a place of business at 321 West 44th Street, New York, New York, and, among other things, acts as booking agent for the exhibition interests of the said Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

20th Century-Fox

40. Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, having its principal place of business at 444 West 56th Street, New York, New York, and is engaged in the business of producing, distributing, and exhibiting motion pictures, either directly or through subsidiary or associated companies, in various parts of the United States and in foreign countries.

41. Twentieth Century-Fox produces its features in its own studio in Los Angeles, California, distributes them in this country through thirty-one branches or exchanges which it operates in the principal centers of population, and licenses its features for exhibition in its own and other theatres.

42. Twentieth Century-Fox acquired its initial interest in theatres through the purchase of stock in corporations then engaged in operating theatres. Since such original acquisition, it has acquired additional interests in theatres, some of which were acquired in competition with other defendants and with independent circuits and some of which are new theatres constructed by it.

43. National Theatres Corporation is owned and controlled by Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, and is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with a place of business at 2854 Hudson Boulevard, Jersey City, New Jersey, and is a holding company for the theatre interests of the said Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation.

43(a). The theatre holdings of the major defendants have played a vital part in effecting violations of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

43(b). Each of the defendants, Fox, Loew, Paramount, RKO and Warner has since 1940 increased its interest in theatres in which it had had an interest. Fox, Paramount and Warner, and RKO to a lesser extent, have acquired an interest since 1940 in a number of theatres in which they had had no interest prior thereto. The foregoing acquisitions were permitted under the consent decree of November, 1940.

Columbia

44. Columbia Pictures Corporation is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, with its principal place of business at 729 Seventh Avenue, New York, New York, and is engaged in the business of producing and distributing motion pictures, either directly or through subsidiary or associated companies, in various parts of the United States and in foreign countries.

45. Screen Gems, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Columbia Pictures Corporation, is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of California, with a place of business at 700 Santa Monica Boulevard, Hollywood, California, and is engaged in the business of producing motion pictures.

46. Columbia Pictures of Louisiana, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Columbia Pictures Corporation, is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Louisiana, with a place of business at 150 South Liberty Street, New Orleans, Louisiana, and is engaged in the business of distributing motion pictures.

Universal

47. Universal Corporation is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal place of business at 1250 Sixth Avenue, New York, New York, and is engaged in the business of producing and distributing motion pictures, either directly or through subsidiary or associated corporations, in various parts of the United States and in foreign countries. On May 25, 1943, its name was changed to Universal Pictures Company, Inc., when a subsidiary of the same name was merged into it, but Universal Corporation was the surviving corporation.

48. The corporation named in the complaint as Universal Pictures Company, Inc. was a subsidiary corporation, controlled by Universal Corporation, which was engaged in the business of producing motion pictures, prior to its merger into Universal Corporation on May 25, 1943.

49. Universal Film Exchanges, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Universal Corporation, is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with a place of business at 1250 Sixth Avenue, New York, New York, and is engaged in the business of distributing motion pictures.

50. The Universal group of defendants at the time of the trial consisted of the following corporations: (1) Universal Pictures Company, Inc., (hereinafter sometimes called Universal Pictures), a Delaware corporation with its principal office in New York, N. Y., engaged in the business of producing motion pictures and distributing the same through wholly-owned subsidiaries; (2) Universal Film Exchanges, Inc. (hereinafter sometimes called Universal Film Exchanges), a Delaware corporation, with its principal office in New York, N. Y., engaged in the business of distributing motion pictures throughout the United States (except for the Metropolitan District of New York City), a wholly-owned subsidiary of Universal Pictures; (3) Big U Film Exchange, Inc. (hereinafter sometimes called Big U), a New York corporation, with its principal office in New York, N. Y., engaged in the business of distributing motion pictures throughout the Metropolitan District of New York City, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Universal Pictures. The term "Universal" as used herein means any or all of the Universal defendants.

51. Prior to May 25, 1943, the name of Universal Pictures Company, Inc., was Universal Corporation, incorporated in Delaware in 1936. It owned approximately 92 per cent of the outstanding common stock of a Delaware corporation which was incorporated in the year 1925 and was also known as Universal Pictures Company, Inc. Said corporation last-named had its principal office in New York, N. Y., and was engaged in the business of producing motion pictures and distributing the same through its subsidiaries. It owned all of the outstanding stock of Universal Film Exchange, Inc., and 20 per cent of the outstanding common stock of Big U Film Exchange, Inc. The other 80 per cent of said stock was owned by Universal Corporation. On May 25, 1943, Universal Pictures Company, Inc., (Delaware 1925) was merged into Universal Corporation (the surviving corporation), and the name of the surviving corporation was changed to Universal Pictures Company, Inc.

52. Big U Film Exchange, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Universal Corporation, is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, with a place of business at 1250 Sixth Avenue, New York, New York, and is engaged in the business of distributing motion pictures.

United Artists

53. United Artists Corporation is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware with its principal place of business at 729 Seventh Avenue, New York, New York, and is engaged in distribution of motion pictures in various parts of the United States and in foreign countries.

54. During the entire period in question United Artists Corporation distributed photoplays in the United States of America that were produced by David O. Selznick, Mary Pickford, Charles Chaplin, Hunt Stromberg, William Cagney, Bing Crosby, Edward Small, Sol Lesser, Lester Cowan, Jack Skirball, Benedict Bogaus, Seymour Nebenzal, Jules Levey, David Loew, Arnold Pressberger, Charles R. Rogers, Andrew Stone, Constance Bennett, Howard Hughes, Preston Sturgis, J. Arthur Rank, Edward Golden, or corporations with which the aforesaid individuals were associated and other independent producers.

55. United Artists Corporation maintains 26 branches or exchanges located throughout the United States, and through these facilities it distributes and has distributed all of the product handled by its during the period in question.

56. Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Loew's Incorporated; Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation; Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.; and Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation and their respective distribution and exhibition subsidiaries are the five major defendants. Columbia Pictures Corporation, Universal Pictures Company, Inc. and United Artists Corporation and their respective distribution subsidiaries are the three minor defendants.

57. As between the eight defendants, Paramount, Loew's, Fox, Warner, Columbia, United Artists, and Universal, there are no officers or directors in common, and none of said defendants own any controlling stock or other securities in any other of said defendants.

58. Neither of the defendants Columbia, Universal and United Artists owns any theatres.

59. There exists active competition among the defendants and others in the production of motion pictures.

60. None of the defendants has monopolized or attempted to monopolize or contracted or combined or conspired to monopolize or to restrain trade or commerce in any part of the business of producing motion pictures.

61. In the distribution of feature motion pictures no film is sold to the exhibitor; the right to exhibit under copyright is licensed.

Fixed Admission Prices

62. In licensing features, each of the distributor-defendants has agreed with each of its respective licensees that the licensee should charge no less than a stated admission price during the exhibition of the feature licensed.

63. The minimum admission prices included in licenses of each of the eight distributor-defendants for any given theatre are in general uniform, being the usual admission prices currently charged by the exhibitor.

64. The defendants' licenses are in effect price-fixing arrangements among all of the distributor-defendants, as well as between such defendants individually and their various exhibitors. Thus there was a general arrangement of fixing prices in which both the distributors and exhibitors were involved. The licenses required existing admission price schedules to be maintained under severe penalties for infraction. In the case of such exceptional features as "Gone With The Wind," "For Whom The Bell Tolls," "Wilson," and "Song of Bernadette," licensed for exhibition prior to general release and as to which the distributors were not satisfied with current prices, they would refuse to grant licenses unless the prices were raised.

65. The defendants granting film licenses have agreed with their licensees to a system which determines minimum admission prices in all theatres where feature motion pictures licensed by them are exhibited. In this way are controlled the prices to be charged for most of the feature motion pictures exhibited either by the defendants or by independents within the United States.

66. All of the five major defendants have a definite interest in keeping up prices in any given territory in which they own theatres and this interest they were safe-guarding by fixing minimum prices in their licenses when distributing films to exhibitors in those areas. Even if the licenses were at flat rate, a failure to require their licensees to maintain fixed prices would leave them free for lowering the current charge to decrease through competition the income to the licensor on theatres in the neighborhood. The whole system presupposed a fixing of prices by all parties concerned in all competitive areas. There exists great similarity, and in many cases identity, in the minimum prices fixed for the same theatres in the licenses of all of the defendants.

67. The major defendants made operating agreements as exhibitors with each other and with independent exhibitors in which joint operation of certain theatres covered by the agreements is provided and minimum admission prices to be charged are either stated therein or are to be jointly determined by other means. These agreements show the express intent of the major defendants to maintain prices at artificial levels.

68. Certain master agreements and franchises between various of the defendants in their capacities as distributors and various of the defendants in their capacities as exhibitors stipulate minimum admission prices often for dozens of theatres owned by an exhibitor-defendant in a particular area in the United States.

69. Licenses granted by one defendant to another disclose the same interrelationship among the defendants. Each of the five major defendants as an exhibitor has been licensed by the other seven defendants as distributors to exhibit the pictures of the latter at specified minimum admission prices. RKO, Loew's, Warner, Paramount, and Fox, in granting and accepting licenses with minimum admission prices specified, have among themselves engaged in a national system to fix prices, and Columbia, Universal, and United Artists, in requiring the maintenance of minimum admission prices in their licenses granted to these exhibitor-defendants, have participated in that system.

70. The distributor-defendants have acquiesced in the establishment of a price-fixing system and have conspired with one another to maintain prices.

71. In agreeing to maintain a stipulated minimum admission price, each exhibitor thereby consents to the minimum price level at which it will compete against other licensees of the same distributor whether they exhibit on the same run or not. The total effect is that through the separate contracts between the distributor and its licensees a price structure is erected which regulates the licensees' ability to compete against one another in admission prices. Each licensee knows from the general uniformity of admission price practices that other licensees having theatres suitable for exhibition of a distributor's feature in the particular competitive area will also be restricted as to maintenance of minimum admission prices, and this acquiescence of the exhibitors in the distributor's control of price competition renders the whole a conspiracy between each distributor and its licensees. An effective system of price control in which the distributor and its licensees knowingly take part by entering into price-restricting contracts is thereby erected.

71(a). This system also restricted competition between the theatres of the major defendants in those areas where there were theatres of more than one defendant since the minimum price to be charged by any theatre licensee was fixed and the licensee was prevented from competing in the business of exhibition by lowering his price.

71(b). Complete freedom from price competition among theatre holders could only be obtained if prices were fixed by all distributors and such a result was substantially obtained. Consequently the system of theatre licensing had a vital and all-pervasive effect in restricting competition of theatre patronage.

72. The differentials in admission price set by a distributor in licensing a particular feature in theatres exhibiting on different runs in the same competitive area are calculated to encourage as many patrons as possible to see the picture in the prior-run theatres where they will pay higher prices than in the subsequent runs. The reason for this is that if 10,000 people of a city's population are ultimately to see the feature—no matter on what run—the gross revenue to be realized from their patronage is increased relatively to the increase in numbers seeing it in the higher-priced prior-run theatres. In effect, the distributor, by the fixing of minimum admission prices, attempts to give the prior-run exhibitors as near a monopoly of the patronage as possible.

Clearance

73. Among the provisions common to the licensing contracts of all the distributor-defendants are those by which the licensor agrees not to exhibit or grant a license to exhibit a certain feature motion picture before a specified number of days after the last date of the exhibition therein licensed. This so-called period of "clearance" or "protection" is stated in the various licenses in differing ways; in terms of a given period between designated runs; in terms of admission prices charged by competing theatres; in terms of a given period of clearance over specifically named theatres; in terms of so many days' clearance over specified areas or towns; in terms of clearances as fixed by other distributors; or in terms of combinations of these formulae.

74. The cost of each black and white print is from $150 to $300, and of a Technicolor print is from $600 to $800. Many of the bookings are for less than the cost of the print so that exhibitions would be confined to the larger high-priced theatres unless a system of successive runs with a reasonable protection for the earlier runs is adopted in the way of clearance.

75. Without regard to period of clearance, licensing features for exhibition on different successive dates is essential in the distribution of feature motion pictures.

76. Either a license for successive dates, or one providing for clearance, permits the public to see the picture in a later exhibiting theatre at lower than prior rates.

77. A grant of clearance, when not accompanied by a fixing of minimum admission prices or not unduly extended as to area or duration affords a fair protection of the interest of the licensee in the run granted without unreasonably interfering with the interest of the public.

78. Clearance, reasonable as to time and area, is essential in the distribution and exhibition of motion pictures. The practice is of proved utility in the motion picture industry and necessary for the reasonable conduct of the business.

79. The major defendants have acquiesced in and forwarded a uniform system of clearances and in numerous instances have maintained unreasonable clearances to the prejudice of independents.

80. Some licenses granted clearance to all theatres which the exhibitor party to the contract might thereafter own, lease, control, manage, or operate against all theatres in the immediate vicinity of the exhibitor's theatre thereafter erected or opened. The purpose of this type of clearance agreements was to fix the run and clearance status of any theatre thereafter opened not on the basis of its appointments, size, location, and other competitive features normally entering into such determination, but rather upon the sole basis of whether it were operated by the exhibitor party to the agreement.

81. The distributor-defendants have acted in concert in the formation of a uniform system of clearance for the theatres to which they license their films and the exhibitor-defendants have assisted in creating and have acquiesced in this system.

82. The defendants have acted in concert in their grant of run and clearance.

83. Clearances are given to protect a particular run against a subsequent run and the practice of clearance is so closely allied with that of run as to make findings on the one applicable to the other.

84. Both independent distributors and exhibitors, when attempting to bargain with the defendants, have been met by a fixed scale of clearance, runs, and admission prices to which they have been obliged to conform if they wished to get their pictures shown upon satisfactory runs or were to compete in exhibition either with the defendants' theatre or theatres to which the latter had licensed their pictures.

85. The fixed system of runs and clearances which involved a cooperative arrangement among the defendants, was also designed to protect their theatre holdings, safeguard the revenue therefrom, and eliminate competition. The major defendants' predominant position in first-run theatre holdings was strongly protected by a fixed system of clearances and runs. The power to fix clearances and runs which existed and was exercised by the major defendants was in itself a power to exclude independents who were competitors, and was accompanied by actual exclusion.

85(a). This system gave the defendants a practical control over the run and clearance status of any given theatre. It involved discrimination against persons applying for licenses and seeking runs and clearances for their theatres, because they had no reasonable chance to improve their status by building or improving theatres while the major defendants possessed superior advantages. Therefore, though the evidence was insufficient to prove that there was discrimination in negotiation for clearances and runs theatre by theatre, because it was well-nigh impossible to establish that a particular clearance or run was not refused because of the inadequacy of the applicant's theatre, the system of clearances and runs was such as to make competition against the defendants practically impossible, and there was discrimination in particular instances.

Formula Deals

86. Formula deals have been entered into by Paramount and by RKO with independent and affiliated circuits. The circuit may allocate playing time and film rentals among the various theatres as it sees fit. Arrangements whereby all the theatres of a circuit are included in a single agreement, and no opportunity is afforded for other theatre owners to bid for the feature in their several areas, seriously and unreasonably restrain competition.

87. Loew's is not, and never has been, a party either as a distributor or as an exhibitor, to any "formula deal" license agreements.

88. Master agreements which cover exhibition in two or more theatres in a particular circuit and allow the exhibitor to allocate the film rental paid among the theatres as it sees fit and also to exhibit the features upon such playing time as it deems best and leaves other terms to the circuit's discretion, have been entered into by the distributor-defendants and unreasonably restrain trade.

Franchises

89. Franchisees have been entered into by the distributor-defendants with affiliated and non-affiliated circuits which unreasonably restricted the opportunities of small exhibitors to license films in competition with the theatres of such circuits by tying up the films released for long periods of time. None of the major defendants has entered into any franchises since November, 1940, and they have none in existence in 1950.

90. Loew's today has outstanding no franchise agreements for any theatre in which it does not have an interest, and Loew's is not currently granting franchises. During its entire history Loew's, as a distributor, granted a total of 213 franchises, of which 154 were to independent theatres and only 59 to those in which any other producer-exhibitor had an interest.

91. Twentieth Century-Fox has not granted any franchises since June 6, 1940. In 1938-39, the motion picture season in which Twentieth Century-Fox had the greatest number of franchises outstanding, there were 400. Of these, 361 were with independent exhibitors.

92. During the period in question Universal entered into franchise agreements with 727 independent exhibitors and 43 affiliated exhibitors.

Block Booking

93. Block-booking, when the license of any feature is conditioned upon taking of other features, is a system which prevents competitors from bidding for single features on their individual merits.

94. For many years the distributor-defendants, except United Artists Corporation, licensed their films in "blocks" or indivisible groups, before they had been actually produced. In such cases the only knowledge prospective exhibitors had of the films which they had contracted for was from a description of each picture by title, plot and players. In many cases licenses for all the films had to be accepted in order to obtain any, though sometimes the exhibitor was given a right of subsequent cancellation for a certain number of pictures. Because of complaints of block booking and blind-selling based upon the supposed unfairness of contracts which often includes pictures the inferior quality of which could not be known, Sections III and IV of the consent decree required the five consenting distributors to trade-show their films before offering them for license and limited the number which might be included in any contract to five. More than one block of five, however, could be licensed where the contents of any had been trade-shown. While this restriction in the consent decree has now ceased by time limitation, the consenting distributors have continued to observe the restriction. The non-assenting distributors have retained up to the present time their previous methods of licensing in blocks, but have allowed their customers considerable freedom to cancel the license as to a percentage of the pictures contracted for.

95. United Artists did not at any time license the exhibition of its pictures in blocks but on the contrary licensed the exhibition of its pictures separately and individually.

96. During the period in question United Artists did not condition the licensing of any photoplay in any exhibitor's theatre upon that exhibitor's agreement to license other United photoplays for exhibition in said theatre.

97. Blind-selling is a practice whereby a distributor licenses a feature before the exhibitor is afforded an opportunity to view it.

98. Since the consent decree of November 20, 1940, the five major defendants have given each exhibitor, whether a defendant or independent, an opportunity at trade shows to view each feature before licensing it. In general, trade shows, which are designed to prevent blind-selling, are poorly attended by exhibitors.

Releases Statistics

99. During the 1943-44 season, the number of features distributed by eight distributor defendants and the three other national distributors were as follows:

101. Continuously since its organization RKO has distributed features for independent producers. The particular independent producers whose features have been distributed by RKO have varied from time to time. In the nine seasons ending 1943-44, 19.8 per cent of the features distributed by RKO were independently produced, and 28.4 per cent of RKO's gross receipts from domestic licenses of features was derived from such independently produced features.

102. It would be financially impossible for RKO to operate its theatres on features distributed by RKO alone.

103. Twentieth Century-Fox produced less than 9 per cent of the total number of features nationally distributed in the United States during each year between 1936-37 and 1944-45.

104. Universal has customarily produced at its studios at Universal City, California, during each theatrical year (commencing on or about September 1st) between 45 and 50 feature-length motion picture photoplays, seven so-called Westerns, four Serials, 15 two-reels subjects, 30 single-reel subjects, and 104 newsreels.

105. Said motion pictures were distributed by Universal and licensed for exhibition by motion picture theatres throughout the United States by means of a system of 31 exchanges located in various states in the United States, from the East Coast to the West Coast and from Canada to the Southern boundary. Universal also maintained a Home Office in the City of New York.

106. In marketing its motion pictures, Universal's usual and customary practice was to offer to license to exhibitors, by title and description as aforesaid, its entire line of pictures, consisting of feature-length motion picture photoplays, Westerns, short-subjects (consisting of serials and two-reel and one-reel pictures) and newsreels. In this way approximately 50 feature-length motion picture photoplays, a group of Westerns, short-subjects, two so-called "Special" photoplays, three features produced by independent producers, and newsreels, were offered to exhibitors by Universal each year.

106(a). During recent years, in excess of 600 feature-length motion picture photoplays were released each year in the United States, exclusive of foreign-made films. Universal releases of feature-length photoplays, including Westerns and so-called Marquee pictures, during said period, equalled approximately 8 per cent of the total number of feature-length photoplays released in the United States each year.

107. During the period in question, United Artists Corporation distributed between 20 to 26 pictures a year when the corporation had a good year and has handled as low as 4 in distribution in a releasing season.

108. At no time during the period in question did United Artists distribute more than 5 per cent of the feature photoplays American made and distributed in the United States of America and generally distributed less than 5 per cent of such releases.

109. That in each distribution agreement with each producer using the facilities of United Artists for distribution among other things there appears substantially the following language:

United agrees to devote its best efforts to the proper marketing and disposition of the motion pictures delivered hereunder in all the territories licensed hereunder wherein it customarily markets motion pictures, and to make such marketing as complete and efficient as practicable, so that the gross returns from the marketing of the product hereunder shall be as large as possible and at the same time consistent with the sound business policy of United.

United will use its best efforts to procure prices, license fees and rentals in a fair and open market reasonably satisfactory to the Producer.

Exhibition Contracts: The exhibition contracts for each of such motion pictures delivered hereunder shall be made separate and apart from the exhibition contract of any other motion picture marketed by United, with the exception that in territories other than the United States where it is customary to include more than one motion picture on a contract, the Producer authorizes United to market its product in accordance with that custom. In no event, however, shall any motion picture of the Producer be used to enforce the licensing, leasing or other disposition of any other motion picture marketed by United, and in such territory where it is the custom to include on one contract more than one motion picture United shall set out the respective license fees for each motion picture after the name of such motion picture.

United agrees upon the written direction of Producer that United shall market wherever permissible the motion pictures designated by the Producer or its agent as a unit, and in such case such unit shall be licensed separate and apart from any other motion picture marketed by United, with the exception that in those countries where it is the custom to market all of the motion pictures on one contract, United shall adhere to the prevailing custom.

The Producer shall have the right to designate a representative for the territories hereinafter specified. The Producer shall bear all the expenses of such representative. Such representative must have an office in the central location of such territory, and if so United shall submit to such representative for his approval or rejection all proposed written contracts with exhibitors for that territory. The territories and their central location are as follows:

Territory	Central location
United States and Canada	New York
British Isles	London
Australia	Sydney

Producer agrees that such submission shall not be necessary if made impractical by conditions beyond the control of United, such as conditions arising out of war.

If the Producer has designated such a representative for any such territory, United shall submit for his approval or rejection each proposed written contract for the distributing, exhibiting, or marketing of such Producer's motion pictures or any of them in the territory in which such representative is acting. No such contract shall be accepted by United if within three (3) succeeding business days following the date on which said proposed written contract has been received by the Producer or its representative the Producer or its representative shall return such proposed contract to United with its rejection noted thereon or appended thereto.

Should the Producer or its representative reject any such proposed contract the Producer or its representative shall have fourteen (14) days from the date of rejection in which to obtain a more favorable contract. Should the Producer or its representative fail so to do the original contract shall ipso facto be deemed approved unless the Producer or its representative shall have designated its original rejection as final. No proposed contract on which the rejection has been designated as final shall be entered into by United.

Should the Producer or its representative at any time agree in advance with United upon the rental terms or license fees for the distribution, exhibition, or marketing of any motion picture in any specified theatre or situation, United shall not be obligated to submit the contract containing the terms so agreed upon to the Producer or its representative for approval.

Discriminations

110. Various contract provisions by which discriminations against small independent exhibitors and in favor of the large affiliated and unaffiliated circuits were accomplished are: suspending the terms of a given contract, if a circuit theatre remains closed for more than eight weeks, and reinstating it without liability upon reopening; allowing large privileges in the selection and elimination of films; allowing deductions in film rentals if double bills are played; granting movie overs and extended runs; granting road-show privileges; allowing overage and underage; granting unlimited playing time; excluding foreign pictures and those of independent producers; granting rights to question the classification of features for rental purposes. These provisions are found most frequently in franchises and master agreements, which are made with the larger circuits of affiliated and unaffiliated theatres. Small independents are usually licensed, however, upon the standard forms of contract, which do not include them. The competitive advantages of these provisions are so great that their inclusion in contract with the larger circuits constitutes an unreasonable discrimination against small competitors.

111. The discriminations referred to in Finding 110 can be enjoined but there is no effective way of preventing similar results from the use of other discriminatory devices in the absence of divorce-ment relief.

112. Agreements were made by the exhibitor-defendants with each other and their affiliates by which given theatres of two or more exhibitors, normally in competition with each other, were operated as a unit, or most of their business policies collectively determined by a joint committee or by one of the exhibitors, and by which profits of the "pooled" theatres were divided among the exhibitors in or owners of such theatres according to pre-agreed percentages or otherwise. Some of the agreements provide that the parties thereto may not acquire other theatres in the competitive vicinity without first offering them for inclusion in the "pool." The result is to eliminate competition pro tanto both in exhibition and in distribution of features which would flow almost automatically to the theatres in the earnings of which they have a joint interest.

113. Other forms of operating agreements are between major defendants and independent exhibitors rather than between major defendants. The effect is to ally two or more theatres of different ownership into a coalition for the nullification of competition between them and for their more effective competition against theatres not members of the "pool."

114. In certain other cases the operating agreements are accomplished by leases of theatres, the rentals being determined by a stipulated percentage of profits earned by the "pooled" theatres. This is but another means of carrying out the restraints found above.

Joint Ownership

115. Many theatres, or the corporations owning them, have been held jointly by one or more of the exhibitor-defendants together with another exhibitor-defendant. These joint interests have enabled the major defendants to operate theatres collectively rather than competitively. When one of the major defendants has owned an interest of five per cent or less, such an interest was de minimis and was only to be treated as an inconsequential investment in exhibition. A summary of theatres jointly owned by two defendants is set forth in the following tabulation taken from RKO's Exhibit 11:

Paramount-Fox	6
Paramount-Loew's	14
Paramount-Warner	25
Paramount-RKO	150
Loew's-RKO	3
Loew's-Warner	5
Fox-RKO	1
Warner-RKO	10

Total 214 Theatres

The major defendants have, since the remand of this case, entered into orders and stipulations providing for the dissolution of all such joint interests still held by them, except those which were de minimis.

116. The interest of Newman in Evergreen State Amusement Corporation was that of an investor.

117. Many theatres, or the corporations owning them, have been held jointly by one or more of the exhibitor-defendants with independents. A summary of such theatres is set forth in the following tabulation taken from RKO's Exhibit 11:

Paramount	993
Warner	20
Fox	66
RKO	187
Loew's	21

Total 1,287

Some involved no more than innocent investments by those who were not actual or potential theatre operators. Others involved an alliance with one who was or would have been an operator but for the joint ownership, thereby eliminating putative competition. When a defendant or an independent has owned an interest of five per cent or less, such an interest was de minimis and was only to be treated as an inconsequential investment in exhibition. Of the theatres listed above, 177 theatres in which Paramount had an interest and 32 in which RKO had one were de minimis. The dissolution of all joint interests with a present or potential operator has been provided for in orders and stipulations entered into by the major defendants since the remand of this case.

118. In the year 1945 there were about 18,076 motion picture theatres in the United States, of which the five major defendants had interests in 3,137, or 17.35 per cent. Of the latter, Paramount or its subsidiaries owned independently of the other defendants, 1,395—a little less than half, or about 7.72 per cent; Warner 501, or about 2.77 per cent; Loew's 135, or about .74 per cent; Fox 636, or about 3.52 per cent; and RKO 109, or about .60 per cent. There were 361 theatres, or about 2.00 per cent, in which two or more of these defendants had joint interests, whether held directly or indirectly through stock ownership in the same corporation or through a lease or operating agreement. This tabulation excludes theatres connected with one or more of the defendants through film-buying or management contracts or through corporations in which a defendant owned an indirect minority stock interest. It includes all theatres in which each defendant otherwise owned a direct or indirect interest of any amount.

119. Former Finding 119 has been vacated.

120. On January 1, 1935, Loew's operated in the United States 126 theatres. The first-run theatres, which are engaged to a large extent in exhibiting Loew's own product, Metro pictures, serve as "show cases" for those pictures in the areas where the theatres are located.

121. The formation of RKO resulted in the conversion of vaudeville theatres acquired by it into motion picture theatres and thereby introduced new and substantial competition into the exhibition field in the cities in which each of these theatres was located, except insofar as such competition was affected by the practices of the defendants.

122. Ownership and operation by RKO of theatres in certain principal cities of the United States enables RKO through the utilization of the facilities of such theatres to plan and direct the first exploitation of the features which it distributes in such areas in a more effective manner than is possible in areas where RKO does not operate theatres.

123. The successful exhibition of a feature in its initial runs in any area is widely publicized and closely observed by subsequent run exhibitors in that area and success in exploiting a picture in such exhibitions produces increased revenue both for the distributor and for subsequent run exhibitors.

124. Each of the five major defendants is able to coordinate the initial exhibition of its features in its theatres with an extensive and accurately timed national advertising campaign.

125. Twentieth Century-Fox is interested in theatres in only 16 of the 92 cities having a population of over 100,000. In 12 of these 16 cities features of one or more defendants are licensed to independent first run exhibitors competing with Twentieth Century-Fox (New York, Seattle, Denver, Portland, Oakland, San Diego, Long Beach, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Spokane, Sacramento, and Kansas City, Kansas) as well as to other defendants having theatres in some of these cities. In three of the remaining four cities, features of one or more defendants are licensed on first run to other defendants.

126. The 17.35 per cent of theatres which comprise the five circuits of the major defendants pay from 35 to 54 per cent of the total domestic film rental, respectively, received by the eight distributor defendants and 45 per cent of the total domestic film rental received by all of said distributor-defendants. The five largest unaffiliated circuits together pay less than 5 per cent of such rental.

127. The major defendants, as distributors, during the 1943-44 season, received from 71 to 81 per cent of the film rental that was paid to all distributors by exhibitors affiliated with the five major defendants. The minor defendants received from 26 to 15 per cent of such rental and the independent distributors from 2½ to 4½ per cent of such rental.

128. During the 1943-44 season the eight distributor defendants received 45.2 per cent of the total feature film rental received by them from theatres affiliated with the five major defendants; and 54.8 per cent of such rental from other exhibitors.

129. In some situations where Paramount had theatre interests, other defendant distributors licensed their features to competing theatres and not to the Paramount theatres, and in some cases the operating companies in which Paramount was interested were not able to obtain the right to exhibit the feature of some of the other defendant distributors.

130. Paramount features are licensed for exhibition in from 8,000 to 14,500 theatres in the United States annually. The number of licenses each year varies from feature to feature and from year to year.

131. In 21 of the 36 out of the 92 cities where Loew's operates theatres none of the other four producer-exhibitors licensed its feature in the 1943-44 season for first-run exhibition in a Loew's theatre, to the extent of more than three features, the Loew's theatres' first-run exhibition being otherwise limited to its own features and those of non-theatre-owning producers.

132. Over the 10 years from 1935 to 1945, the total number of features licensed by the other four theatre-owning distributors to Loew's first-run houses, decreased from 1,382 to 998 and the features of non-theatre-owning distributors increased from 1,201 to 1,879.

133. In 1935, the other four theatre-owning distributors earned $2,611,986 from Loew's theatres and the non-theatre-owning distributors earned $5,261,116 in Loew's theatres, which was $419,477 more than the $484,639, earned in Loew's theatres in that year by the four other theatre-owning distributors.

134. In 1944, the percentage of the total film rental paid by Loew's theatres to each of the non-theatre-owning distributors, Columbia 8.8 per cent, United Artists (8.3 per cent and Universal (7.4 per cent), was higher than that paid to each of three producer-exhibitor, RKO (2.1 per cent), Warner Bros. (2.1 per cent) and Twentieth Century-Fox (6.1 per cent).

135. In the year 1944, of the total film rental paid by Loew's theatres, 47.9 per cent was to Loew's itself for the exhibition of Loew's pictures, and 27.1 per cent was to non-theatre-owning distributors. Thus a total of 75 per cent of all film rentals paid by Loew's theatres went to persons other than the four other defendant-producer-exhibitors.

136. During the 1943-44 season RKO received 56.9 per cent of its total license fees from independent theatres, 14.1 per cent from its own theatres, and (in the aggregate) 29 per cent from theatres affiliated with other defendants.

137. In the 1943-44 season, of the total number of exhibitions of features in first-run and metropolitan second-run-theatres operated by RKO, 23.1 per cent were exhibitions of features distributed by RKO, 29.6 per cent were exhibitions of features distributed by other theatre-owning distributors, and 47.3 per cent were exhibitors of features distributed by non-theatre-owning distributors. In the same season the respective percentages of the feature film rentals paid by RKO were 30.6 to RKO, 43.7 to other theatre-owning defendants, and 23.7 to non-theatre-owning distributors.

138. In the four pre-war seasons of 1937-1940, Warner derived about 61-6/10 per cent of its domestic gross rentals from theatres not affiliated with any of the defendants, about 14 per cent from theatres in which it had an interest, about 13 per cent from theatres in which Paramount had an interest, about 4 per cent from theatres, in which Twentieth Century-Fox had an interest, about 6 per cent from theatres in which RKO had an interest, and less than 1 per cent from theatres in which Loew had an interest.

139. Of its total domestic and foreign rentals Warner received about 30 per cent from abroad, about 43 per cent from theatres in which none of the defendants had an interest, about 10 per cent from Warner's own American theatres, and the balance, about 16 per cent, from American theatres in which one or more of the defendants had an interest.

140. Not a single one of the Loew first-run theatres in the 39 of the 92 largest cities where Loew operates or has an interest in first-run theatres licensed a Warner feature for exhibition in the 1943-44 season. In the same season the Warner theatres regularly exhibited the Loew features in many of the 28 of the 92 largest cities where Warner operated or had an interest in first-run theatres.

141. The dollars paid by Warner to each of the other defendants and by each of the other defendants to Warner show non uniformity of pattern from company to company from year to year.

142. There were marked variances from year to year in the sums paid as rental by the theatres in which Warner had an interest to United Artists, Universal, and Columbia, the non-theatre owning defendants.

143. Between 1937 and 1944 the theatres in which Warner had an interest substantially decreased the amount of film rental paid to the five theatre-owning defendants, and substantially increased film rental paid to the non-theatre-owning defendants.

143(a). During the nine pre-war years of 1933-1941, the average cost of American made Warner features rose from $241,000 in 1933 to $448,000 in 1940. By 1945 the average cost had risen to $1,371,000.

143(c). With the cessation of the war the foreign market for Warner pictures are being severely restricted.

144. Of the total film revenue received by Twentieth Century-Fox in 1944 from all theatres in the United States, 60.8 per cent was paid by exhibitors not defendants in this action; 14.1 per cent was paid by its own theatres; 1.26 per cent by Loew theatres; 5.52 per cent by RKO theatres; 13.46 per cent by theatres in which Paramount had an interest; and 4.82 per cent by Warner theatres.

145. On January 1, 1935, there were 13,386 theatres operating in the United States. In 1945, there were 18,076 theatres operating in the United States.

146. In about 60 per cent of the 92 cities having populations over 100,000, there are independent first-run theatres.

147. In about 91 per cent of the 92 cities with over 100,000 population there are first-run theatres of more than one defendant or of a defendant and independents.

Horizontal Conspiracy

147(a). All the defendants entered into a horizontal conspiracy to fix prices, runs and clearances which was powerfully aided by the system of vertical integration of each of the five major defendants. Such a situation has made the vertical integration an active aid to the conspiracy. Vertical integration has furnished an incentive for such conspiracy.

147(b). There is close relationship between the vertical integrations and the illegal practices. The vertical integrations were a means of carrying out the restraints and conspiracies.

147(c). The interdependency of defendants to obtain pictures for their theatres, on the one hand, and on the other, to obtain theatre outlets for their pictures has lessened competition among defendants and between them and independents.

Monopoly Power

147(d). There is substantial proof that monopoly power existed among the eight distributor-defendants who were all working together. Considering that the vertical integrations aided the horizontal conspiracy mentioned in Finding 147(a) at every point, the defendants must be viewed collectively rather than independently as to the power which they exercised over the market by major defendants' theatre holdings.

147(e). Viewed collectively the major defendants owned in 1945 at least 70 per cent of the first-run theatres in the 92 largest cities.

148. In the aforementioned 92 cities, at least 70 per cent of all of the first-run theatres are affiliated with one or more of the major defendants. In four of said cities there are no affiliated theatres. In 38 of said cities there are no independent first-run theatres. In the remaining 50 cities the degree of first-run competition varies from the most predominantly affiliated first-run situations, such as Boston, Chicago, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, St. Paul, and Washington, D. C., in each of which the independent first-run theatres played less than eleven of the defendants' features on first-run during the 1943-44 season, to the most predominantly independent first-run situations, such as Nashville, Louisville, Indianapolis, and St. Louis, where the affiliated first-run theatres played at least 31 of the defendants' pictures on first-run during that season. In none of the said 50 cities did less than three of the distributor-defendants license their product on first-run to the affiliated. In 19 of said 50 cities less than three defendant-distributors licensed their product on first-run to independent theatres. In a majority of said 50 cities the major share of all of the defendants' features were licensed for first-run exhibition in theatres affiliated with the major defendants.

148(a). Viewed collectively, the major defendants owned 60 per cent of the first-run theatres in cities with populations between 25,000 and 100,000.

148(b). In addition to the proof of monopoly control in cities of more than 25,000, there is substantial proof that in approximately 238 towns involving in all but about 17 cases populations of less than 25,000 but having two or more theatres, some single one of the five major defendants, or in about 18 cases two of the defendants, had all the theatres and therefore possessed a complete local monopoly in exhibition. (See Government Exhibit 488). This Finding is not applicable to Loew's, which had no theatres in the foregoing towns.

148(c). The film distribution in the 1943-44 season shows that one or more of the five major defendants exhibited on first-run substantially all of the feature films distributed by the five major defendants in about 43 of the 92 cities of over 100 thousand, and substantially all of the feature films distributed by the eight defendants in about 143 of the 320 cities of 25,000 to 100,000. (See Government Exhibits 489, 490, 490A).

148(d). As distributors, the five major defendants viewed collectively, received approximately 73 per cent and the three minor defendants 21 per cent of the domestic film rentals from the films, except Westerns, distributed in the 1943-44 season.

148(e). The percentage of first-run theatre ownership and domestic film rentals controlled by the major defendants when coupled with the strategic advantages of vertical integration created a power to exclude competition from the distribution and exhibition markets when desired.

148(f). This power might be exercised either against non-affiliated exhibitors or distributors, for the ownership of what was generally the best first-run theatres coupled with the possession by the defendants of the best pictures, enabled them substantially to control the market in first-run pictures.

148(g). There is substantial proof that the intent to exercise the monopoly power existed among the defendants.

149. Loew's operates first-run theatres in 36 of the 92 cities in the United States with more than 100,000 population; in every one of these 36 cities, there are other "first-run" features exhibiting the features of one or more of the other defendant distributors; in 21 of these 36, one or more of the other first-run theatres are operated by independents.

150. Of the 92 cities in the United States having a population in excess of 100,000, Twentieth Century-Fox is interested in first-run theatres in 16 and licenses its features to them. In four of the remaining cities, none of the defendants has theatre interests. This leaves 72 cities in which there are first-run theatres operated by defendants other than Twentieth Century-Fox. In 23 of the 72 cities, Twentieth Century-Fox licenses its features to independent exhibitors.

151. Except for a very limited number of theatres in the very largest cities, the 18,000 and more theatres in the United States exhibit the product of more than one distributor. Such theatres could not be operated on the product of only one distributor.

152. The major defendants aided each other in attaining a monopoly of exhibition and in restricting competition by refraining from having theatre interests in many areas where one of them had theatres.

Pooling Agreements

153. In cities of less than 100,000 in population, Paramount, Warner, Fox and RKO owned or operated theatres either in largely separate market areas or in pools, without more than trifling competition among themselves or with Loew's. In cities having a population of more than 100,000, there was in general little competition among the major defendants, although considerably more than in towns of under 100,000.

153(a). In cities of less than 100,000, Paramount had complete or partial interests in or pooling agreements* with other defendants affecting 1,236 theatres located in 494 towns. In 13 of these towns containing 31 of the theatres—only 3 per cent—were theatres of another defendant. In 9 per cent of these town competition between Paramount and the only other defendant in the town was substantially lessened or eliminated by means of a pooling agreement affecting some or all of their theatres; and in this 9 per cent were located 10 per cent of Paramount's theatre interests. And in 88 per cent of the towns, containing 87 per cent of Paramount's theatre interests, Paramount was the only defendant operating theatres. Thus it appears that there was little, if any, theatre competition between Paramount and any other defendant in 97 per cent of the towns of under 100,000 and in respect to 97 per cent of the theatres in which Paramount had an interest.

153(b). Fox had similar theatre interests in 428 theatres located in 177 towns. In 13 of these towns containing 29 Fox theatres, or about 7 per cent thereof, there were theatres of another defendant. In about 93 per cent of the towns containing the same percentage of Fox's theatre interests, Fox was the only defendant operating theatres; in 22 of these towns there was but one theatre and a population capable of supporting only one theatre.

153(c). Warner had similar theatre interests in 306 theatres located in 155 towns of less than 100,000. In 17 towns, or 11 per cent containing 30 Warner theatres, or 10 per cent of its holdings, there were theatres of another major defendant. In 3 per cent of the towns, competition between Warner and the only other defendant in the town was substantially lessened or eliminated by means of pooling agreements; and in this 3 per cent were located 4 per cent of Warner's theatre interests. In 86 per cent of the towns containing the same percentage of Warner's theatre interests, Warner was the only defendant operating theatres. Thus, there appears to have been little, if any, theatre competition between Warner and any other defendant in 89 per cent of the towns and in respect to 90 per cent of the theatres in which Warner had an interest. In 33 of these towns there was but one theatre and a population capable of supporting only one theatre.

153(d). Loew had interests in only 17 theatres located in 14 towns. In four towns containing four Loew theatres, there were theatres of another defendant. In two of the towns, competition was substantially lessened or eliminated by means of joint interests; and in these two were located three of Loew's theatre interests. In eight of the towns, containing 10 Loew's theatre interests, Loew was the only defendant operating theatres. Thus, there appears to have been little, if any, theatre competition between Loew and any other defendant in 10 of the towns and in respect to 13 of the theatres in which Loew had an interest.

153(e). RKO had interests in 150 theatres located in 86 towns. In six towns, or 10 per cent, containing six RKO theatres, or 4 per cent, there was competition with another major defendant. In 60 per cent of the towns, competition was substantially lessened or eliminated by means of pooling agreements, and in this 60 per cent were located 73 per cent of RKO's theatre interests. In 30 per cent of the towns, containing 23 per cent of RKO's theatre interests, RKO was the only defendant operating theatres. Thus, there appears to have been little, if any, competition between RKO and any other defendant in 90 per cent of the towns and in respect to 96 per cent of the theatres in which RKO had an interest.

153(f). The major defendants had interests altogether in 2,020 theatres located in 834 towns. In 26 towns, or 3 per cent containing 100 or their theatres, or 5 per cent, there was competition among some of them. In somewhat over 5 per cent of the towns, competition between them was substantially lessened or eliminated by means of pooling agreements, and in this 5 per cent were located 7 per cent of their theatre interests. And in somewhat less than 92 per cent of the towns, containing 88 per cent of their theatre interests, only one of the major defendants owned theatres in the area. Thus, there appears to have been little, if any, competition among the five defendants or any of them in 97 per cent of the towns and in respect to 95 per cent of the theatres in which they had an interest.

153(g). The effect of the geographical distribution in towns having a population of less than 100,000 was largely to eliminate competition among all of the defendants in the areas where any of them had theatres. The statistics upon which these findings are based are contained in the appendix to this Court's opinion of July 25, 1949.

154. In cities of over 100,000 Paramount had complete or partial interests in or pooling agreements with other defendants affecting 352 theatres in 49 cities. In 18 of these cities, or 37 per cent, containing 91 Paramount theatres, or 26 per cent, there were theatres of other defendants. In an additional 10 per cent of the cities, containing 17 per cent of Paramount's theatre holdings, there were other defendants having theatre interests, but those interests were so relatively small as compared with Paramount, both on first and later runs, that competition with Paramount was unsubstantial owing to the dominance which the latter's theatre holdings gave it. In 12 per cent of these cities competition between Paramount and the only other defendants in the city was substantially lessened or eliminated by means of a pooling agreement affecting some or all of their theatres, and in this 12 per cent were located 18 per cent of Paramount's theatre interest. And in 41 per cent of the cities, containing 39 per cent of Paramount's theatre interests, Paramount was the only defendant operating theatres. Thus, it appears that there was little, if any, theatre competition between Paramount and any other defendant in 63 per cent of the cities of over 100,000 and in respect to 74 per cent of the theatres in which Paramount had an interest.

154(a). Fox had similar theatre interests in 211 theatres located in 17 cities. In 5 of these cities, or 29 per cent, containing 54 Fox theatres, or 26 per cent, there were theatres of other defendants. In an additional 18 per cent of the cities, containing 41 per cent of Fox's theatre holdings, there were other defendants having theatre interests, but those interests were so relatively small as compared with Fox, both on first and later runs, that competition with Fox was unsubstantial owing to the dominance which the latter's theatre holdings gave it. In 53 per cent of the cities, containing 33 per cent of Fox's theatre interests, Fox was the only defendant operating theatres. Thus, it appears that there was little, if any, theatre competition between Fox and any other defendant in 71 per cent of the cities and in respect to 74 per cent of the theatres in which Fox had an interest.

154(b). Warner had similar theatre interests in 243 theatres located in 26 cities. In 14 of those cities, or 54 per cent, containing 89 theatres, or 37 per cent, there were theatres of other defendants. In an additional 8 per cent of the cities, containing 5 per cent of Warner's theatre holdings, there were other defendants having theatre interests, but those interests were so relatively small as compared with Warner, both on first and later runs, that competition with Warner was unsubstantial owing to the dominance which the latter's theatre holdings gave it. In 19 per cent of these cities competition between Warner and the only other defendants in the city was substantially lessened or eliminated by means of a pooling agreement affecting some or all of their theatres, and in this 19 per cent were located 51 per cent of Warner's theatre interests. And in 19 per cent of the cities, containing 7 per cent of Warner's theatre interests, Warner was the only defendant operating theatres. Thus, it appears that there was little, if any, competition between Warner and any other defendant in 46 per cent of the cities and in respect to 63 per cent of the theatres in which Warner had an interest.

154(c). Loew had similar theatre interests in 144 theatres located in 37 cities. In 32 of these cities, or 86 per cent, containing 122 Loew theatres, or 85 per cent, there were theatres of other defendants. In 3 per cent of these cities, competition between Loew and the only other defendant in the city was eliminated by means of a pooling agreement affecting all of their theatres, and in this 3 per cent were located 7 per cent of Loew's theatre interest. And in 11 per cent of the cities, containing 8 per cent of Loew's theatre interests, Loew was the only defendant operating theatres. Thus, it appears that there was little, if any, theatre competition between Loew and any other defendant in 14 per cent of the cities and in respect to 15 per cent of the theatres in which Loew had an interest.

154(d). In New York City Loew and RKO divided the neighborhood prior run product of the various defendant distributors under a continuing arrangement so that there was no competition between them in obtaining pictures. On one occasion where Paramount was having a long dispute with Loew's as to rental terms for Paramount films to be shown in Loew's New York neighborhood circuit of theatres, no attempt was made by Paramount to lease its films to RKO for exhibition in the latter's circuit, nor was any effort made by RKO to procure Paramount films as they both evidently preferred to adhere to the existing arrangement, under which Loew's circuit consistently exhibited the films of itself, Paramount, United Artists, Columbia and half of Universal, while RKO exhibited the films of itself, Fox, Warner, and half of Universal. Accordingly, the showing that 85 per cent of Loew's theatres are in competition with theatres of other defendants is misleading and may properly be reduced by the exclusion of its New York neighborhood theatres. If this is done, it would give Loew a percentage of approximately 42 per cent of its theatres in competition with other defendants in cities over 100,000.

154(e). RKO had similar theatre interests in 256 theatres in 31 cities. In 22 of these cities, or 72 per cent, containing 190 theatres, or 74 per cent, there were theatres of other defendants. In an additional 6 per cent of the cities, containing 4 per cent of RKO's theatre holdings, there were other defendants having theatre interests, but those interests were so relatively small as compared with RKO, both on first and later runs, that competition with RKO was unsubstantial owing to the dominance which the latter's theatre holdings gave it. In 16 per cent of these cities, competition between RKO and the only other defendants in the city was substantially lessened or eliminated by means of a pooling agreement affecting some or all of their theatres, and in this 16 per cent were located 15 per cent of RKO's theatre interests. And in 6 per cent of the cities, containing 7 per cent of RKO's theatre interests, RKO was the only defendant operating theatres. Thus, it appears that there was little, if any, theatre competition between RKO and other defendants in 28 per cent of the cities and in respect to 26 per cent of the theatres in which RKO had an interest.

154(f). Approximately 58 per cent of RKO theatre interests were located in New York on neighborhood runs, and the same comments as to distribution of film made in regard to Loew's are applicable to RKO. If its New York neighborhood theatre interests were excluded from the category of theatres in competition with other defendants, the RKO percentage would then be only about 16 per cent in competition with other defendants.

154(g). The major defendants had interests altogether in 1,112 theatres located in 87 cities of more than 100,000. In 46 per cent of these cities, containing 23 per cent of their theatre interests, only one of the major defendants owned theatres in the area. In 11.5 per cent of the cities, competition between them was substantially lessened or eliminated by means of pooling agreements, and in this 11.5 per cent were located 16 per cent of their theatre holdings. In an additional 11.5 per cent of the cities, containing 17 per cent of their theatre interests, there was more than one defendant having theatre interests in the city, but the position of one defendant was so dominant relative to the others that competition between them was unsubstantial. In 31 per cent of the cities, containing 44 per cent of their theatre interests, there was competition among the defendants. But the New York neighborhood theatres of Loew and RKO, which are included in reaching the 44 per cent figure, should properly be excluded because there is no competition between Loew and RKO in obtaining pictures for the reasons we have already given. This would reduce the percentage of defendants' theatres which compete with one another to 27.

154(h). The effect of the geographical distribution in cities having a population of more than 100,000 was substantially to limit competition among the major defendants.

155. Although there was no agreement to divide territory geographically in the original organization of the defendants' theatre circuits, the geographical distribution of theatres among the major defendants became a part of a system in which competition was largely absent and the status of which was intentionally maintained by fixed runs, clearances and prices, by pooling agreements and joint ownerships among the major defendants, and by cross-licensing which made it necessary that they should work together.

156. In the relatively few areas where more than one of the major defendants had theatres, competition for first-run licensing privileges was generally absent because the defendants customarily adhered to a set method in the distribution and playing of their films.

156(a). A study of four seasons between the years 1936 and 1944 shows that during this period the privilege of first-run exhibition of a defendant's films was ordinarily transferred from one defendant to another only as the result of dissolution of a theatre operating pool or an arbitrary division of the product known as a "split."

Divorcement Necessary

156(b). Effective relief from the monopoly power of and its exercise by the major defendants cannot be obtained without divorcement. No adequate competition among the defendants or between defendants and independents can exist in the presence of interdependency among the defendants on the one hand to obtain pictures for their own theatres and on the other to obtain theatre outlets for their own pictures. Divorcement is necessary to prevent the major defendants from being in a state of interdependence which too greatly restricts competition. Divorcement is a necessary remedy to introduce competition into defendants' system of fixed admission prices, clearances and runs, and to remove a major incentive to discriminatory trade practices.

Arbitration Useful

157. The arbitration system and the Appeal Board which has been a part of it have been useful in the past and should be continued upon terms to be settled by the Court.

158. Evidence submitted since the remand of this case has been considered by this Court. Such evidence has been used by the Court in making its findings as to the situation in 1945. The change in status and practices since 1945 revealed by this evidence has been insufficient to warrant a change in the findings and judgment entered herein.

Consent Judgments

159. A consent judgment was entered on March 3, 1949, against Defendants Paramount Pictures Inc. and Paramount Film Distributing Corporation, and neither of these companies nor their counsel appeared or participated in any of the proceedings after the entry of that consent judgment, except that, on April 21, 1949, counsel for these companies presented, and the court made and directed the entry of, an order severing and terminating, as of March 3, 1949, this action as against said defendants.

160. A consent judgment was entered on November 8, 1948, against defendants Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., RKO Proctor Corporation, RKO Midwest Corporation and Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation, and none of these companies nor their counsel appeared or participated in any of the proceedings after the entry of that consent judgment, except that on January 18, 1950, counsel for these companies presented, and the court made and directed the entry of, an order styled United States v. Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, et al. severing and terminating, as of November 8, 1948, this action as against said defendants.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. The Court has jurisdiction of this cause under the provision of the Act of July 2, 1890 entitled "An Act to Protect Trade and Commerce Against Unlawful Restraints and Monopolies," hereinafter referred to as the Sherman Act.

2. Universal Pictures Company, Inc. and Screen Gems, Inc. have not violated the Sherman Act and should be dismissed as defendants herein.

3. None of the defendants herein has violated the Sherman Act by monopolizing or attempting to monopolize or conspiring to monopolize the production of motion picture films.

4. The consent decree entered herein on November 20, 1940 does not foreclose enforcement in this suit at this time of any rights or remedies which the plaintiff may have against any of the defendants by virtue of violations of the Sherman Act by them, except such acts as were in accord with such decree during the period it was in force.

5. None of the defendants herein has violated the Sherman Act by combining, conspiring or contracting to restrain trade in any part of the business of producing motion pictures or by monopolizing, attempting to monopolize, or conspiring to monopolize such business.

6. The defendants, and each of them are entitled to judgment dismissing all claims of the plaintiff based upon their acts as producers, whether as individuals or in conjunction with others.

7. The defendants Loew's, Incorporated; Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.; Warner Bros. Pictures Distributing Corporation, (formerly known as Vitagraph, Inc.); Warner Bros. Circuit Management Corporation; Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation; National Theatres Corporation; Columbia Pictures Corporation; Columbia Pictures of Louisiana, Inc.; Universal Corporation; Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.; Big U Film Exchange, Inc.; and United Artists Corporation have unreasonably restrained trade and commerce in the distribution and exhibition of motion pictures and attempted to monopolize such trade and commerce, both before and after the entry of said consent decree, in violation of the Sherman Act by:

- (a) Acquiescing in the establishment of a price fixing system by conspiring with one another and with Paramount and RKO to maintain theatre admission prices;
- (b) By conspiring with one another and with Paramount and RKO to restrict competition for theatre patronage with each other and with independents through a system of admission price fixing;
- (c) Conspiring with each other and with Paramount and RKO to maintain a nation-wide system of runs and clearances which is substantially uniform in each local competitive area;
- (d) Fixing, together with Paramount and RKO, a system of runs and clearance which prevented effective competition by outsiders and which was designed to protect the theatre holdings of the major defendants and to safeguard the revenue therefrom.

8. The distributor-defendants Loew's, Incorporated; Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.; Warner Bros. Pictures Distributing Corporation (formerly known as Vitagraph, Inc.); Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation; Columbia Pictures Corporation; Columbia Pictures of Louisiana, Inc.; Universal Corporation; Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.; Big U Film Exchange, Inc.; and United Artists Corporation, have unreasonably restrained trade and commerce in the distribution and exhibition of motion pictures and attempted to monopolize such trade and commerce, both before and after the entry of said consent decree, in violation of the Sherman Act, by:

- (a) Conspiring with each other and with Paramount and RKO to maintain a nation-wide system of fixed minimum motion picture theatre admission prices;
- (b) Agreeing individually with their respective licensees to fix minimum motion picture theatre admission prices;

- (c) Conspiring with each other and with Paramount and RKO to maintain a nation-wide system of runs and clearances which is substantially uniform as to each local competitive area;
- (d) Agreeing individually with their respective licensees to grant discriminatory license privileges to theatres affiliated with other defendants and with large circuits as found in Finding 110 above;
- (e) Agreeing individually with such licensees to grant unreasonable clearance against theatres operated by their competitors;
- (f) Making master agreements and franchises with such licensees;
- (g) Individually conditioning the offer of a license for one or more copyrighted films upon the acceptance by the licensee of one or more other copyrighted films, except in the case of the United Artists Corporation;

9. The exhibitor-defendants Loew's, Incorporated; Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.; Warner Bros. Circuit Management Corporation; Twentieth Century-Fox Corporation; and National Theatres Corporation, have unreasonably restrained trade and commerce in the distribution and exhibition of motion pictures both before and after the entry of said consent decree in violation of the Sherman Act by:

- (a) Jointly operating motion picture theatres with each other, with Paramount and RKO, and with independents through operating agreements or profit-sharing leases;
- (b) Jointly owning motion picture theatres with each other, with Paramount and RKO, and with independents through stock interests in theatre buildings;
- (c) Conspiring with each other, with the distributor-defendants named in Paragraph 8 above, and with Paramount and RKO, to fix substantially uniform minimum motion picture theatre admission prices, runs, and clearances;
- (d) Conspiring with the distributor-defendants named in Paragraph 8 above and with Paramount and RKO to discriminate against independent competitors in fixing minimum admission price, run, clearance, and other license terms.

10. The formula deals, master agreements and franchise referred to in Findings 86, 88, and 89 have tended to restrain trade and violate Section 1 of the Sherman Act.

11. Block-booking, as hereinabove defined violates the Sherman Act.

12. As an aid to the conspiracy to fix prices, runs, and clearance hereinabove described, and as a means for carrying out such conspiracy, the maintenance of vertical integration by the major defendants named in Paragraph 7 above has violated the Sherman Act and effected a situation where the creation of competition requires dissolution of these vertical integrations.

13. The collective monopoly power of the defendants named in Paragraph 7 above (taken together with Paramount and RKO) to exclude competitors from first-run coupled with their intent to exercise this power violated Section 2 of the Sherman Act.

14. Their use of this power to actually exclude independents from the first-run market and to restrict the distribution of pictures to independents violated Sections 1 and 2 of the Sherman Act.

15. The power of the defendants named in Paragraph 7 above to fix runs and clearances when exercised by the major defendants named in Paragraph 7 above to exclude independent competitors violated the Sherman Act.

16. Loew's Incorporated, has violated the Sherman Act by conspiring with RKO to monopolize and monopolizing the first neighborhood run in New York City, and by the dividing of that market between itself and RKO.

17. Further conclusions of law are made and embodied in the decree filed herewith.

FINAL DECREE AS TO MAJOR DEFENDANTS

The plaintiff, having filed its petition herein on July 29, 1938, and its amended and supplemental complaint on November 14, 1940; the defendants having filed their answers to such complaint, denying the substantive allegations thereof; the court after trial having entered a decree herein, dated December 31, 1946, as modified by order entered February 11, 1947; the plaintiff and the defendants having appealed from such decree; the Supreme Court of the United States having in part affirmed and in part reversed such decree, and having remanded this case to this court for further proceedings in conformity with its opinion dated May 3, 1948; this court having, on June 25, 1948, by order made the mandate and decree of the Supreme Court the order and judgment of this court; a consent decree having been entered on November 8, 1948, against the defendants Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation; RKO Radio Pictures, Inc.; RKO Proctor Corporation; RKO Midwest Corporation; and Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation; orders having been entered on stipulation against the Fox, Loew, and Warner defendants respectively, and Loew having further stipulated in the record, with respect to certain theatre interests held jointly with orders; and a consent judgment having been entered on March 3, 1949 against defendants Paramount Pictures, Inc. and Paramount Film Distributing Corporation; and an order having been entered on April 21, 1949, severing and terminating, as of March 3, 1949, this action as against defendants Paramount Pictures, Inc. and Paramount Film Distributing Corporation; and an order having been entered on January 18, 1950 severing and terminating as of November 8, 1948 the action as against defendants Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., RKO Proctor Corporation, RKO Midwest Corporation and Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation.

Now, having considered the proposals of the parties, having duly received additional evidence and heard further arguments after entry of the consent decree against the RKO defendants, and having rendered its opinion on July 25, 1949, and having filed its findings of fact and conclusions of law in accordance with said opinion:

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED that the decree heretofore entered by this court on December 31, 1946 is hereby amended to read as follow:

I

1. The findings of fact and conclusions of law heretofore made are superseded by the findings and conclusions now entered in support of this decree.

2. The complaint is dismissed as to all claims made against the defendants herein based upon their acts as producers, whether as individuals or in conjunction with others.

II

Each of the defendant distributors, Loew's, Incorporated; Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.; Warner Bros. Pictures Distributing Corporation (formerly known as Vitagraph, Inc.); Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, and the successors of each of them (including but not limited to companies resulting from divorcement), and any and all individuals who act in behalf of any thereof with respect to the matters enjoined, and each corporation in which said defendants or any of them own a direct or indirect stock interest of more than fifty per cent, is hereby enjoined:

1. From granting any license in which minimum prices for admission to a theatre are fixed by the parties, either in writing or through a committee, or through arbitration, or upon the happening of any event or in any manner or by any means.

2. From agreeing with each other or with any exhibitor or distributors to maintain a system of clearances; the term "clearances" as used herein meaning the period of time stipulated in license contracts which must elapse between runs of the same feature within a particular area or in specified theatres.

3. From granting any clearance between theatres not in substantial competition.

4. From granting or enforcing any clearance against theatres in substantial competition with the theatre receiving the license for exhibition in excess of what is reasonably necessary to protect the licensee in the run granted. Whenever any clearance provision is attacked as not legal under the provisions of this decree, the burden shall be upon the distributor to sustain the legality thereof.

5. From further performing any existing franchise to which it is a party and from making any franchises in the future, except for the purpose of enabling an independent exhibitor to operate a theatre in competition with a theatre affiliated with a defendant or with theatres in new circuits which may be formed as a result of divorcement. The term "franchise" as used herein means a licensing agreement or series of licensing agreements, entered into as a part of the same transaction, in effect for more than one motion picture season and covering the exhibition of pictures released by one distributor during the entire period of agreement.

6. From making or further performing any formula deal or master agreement to which it is a party. The term "formula deal" as used herein means a licensing agreement with a circuit of theatres in which the license fee of a given feature is measured for the theatres covered by the agreement by a specified percentage of the feature's national gross. The term "master agreement" means a licensing agreement, also known as a "blanket deal," covering the exhibition of features in a number of theatres usually comprising a circuit.

7. From performing or entering into any license in which the right to exhibit one feature is conditioned upon the licensee's taking one or more other features. To the extent that any of the features have not been trade shown prior to the granting of the license for more than a single feature, the licensee shall be given by the licensor the right to reject twenty per cent of such features not trade shown prior to the granting of the license, such right of rejection to be exercised in the order of release within ten days after there has been an opportunity afforded to the licensee to inspect the feature.

8. From licensing any feature for exhibition upon any run in any theatre in any other manner than that each license shall be offered and taken theatre by theatre, solely upon the merits and without discrimination in favor of affiliated theatres, circuit theatres or others.

III

Each of the defendant exhibitors, Loew's, Incorporated; Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.; Warner Bros. Circuit Management Corporation; Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation; and National Theatres Corporation; and the successors of each of them (including but not limited to companies resulting from divorcement), and any and all individuals who act in behalf of any thereof with respect to the matters enjoined, and each corporation in which said defendants or any of them own a direct or indirect stock interest of more than fifty per cent, is hereby enjoined and restrained:

1. From performing or enforcing agreements, if any, referred to in Paragraphs 5 and 6 of the foregoing Section II hereof to which it may be a party.

2. From making or continuing to perform pooling agreements whereby given theatres of two or more exhibitors normally in competition are operated as a unit or whereby the business policies of such exhibitors are collectively determined by a joint committee or by one of the exhibitors or whereby profits of the "pooled" theatres are divided among the owners according to prearranged percentages.

3. From making or continuing to perform agreements that the parties may not acquire other theatres in a competitive area where a pool operates without first offering them for inclusion in the pool.

4. From making or continuing leases of theatres under which it leases any of its theatres to another defendant or to an independent operating a theatre in the same competitive area in return for a share in the profits.

5. From continuing to own or acquiring any beneficial interests in any theatre, whether in fee or in shares of stock or otherwise, in conjunction with another defendant, or with any company resulting from divorcements provided for in decrees entered in this cause.

6. From acquiring a beneficial interest in any additional theatre unless the acquiring company shall show to the satisfaction of the court, and the court shall first find, that such acquisition will not unduly restrain competition in the exhibition of feature motion pictures, provided, however, that the acquisition of a theatre as a replacement for a theatre, held or acquired in conformity with this decree, which may be lost through physical destruction, conversion to non-theatrical purposes, disposition (other than the disposition of a theatre in compliance with this decree) or expiration or cancellation of the lease under which such theatre is held, shall not be deemed to be the acquisition of an additional theatre.

7. From operating, booking, or buying features for any of its theatres through any agent who is known by it to be also acting in such manner for any other exhibitor, independent or affiliate.

IV

1. Within six months from the entry of this decree each of the major defendants named in Sections II and III of this decree shall submit a plan for the ultimate separation of its distribution and production business from its exhibition business. Upon the filing of such a plan, the Government shall have three months within which to file objections thereto and propose amended or alternative plans for accomplishing the same result. Such further proceedings with respect to such plans as the court may then order shall then be had. Such plans shall, in any event, provide for the completion of such separation within three years from the date of the entry of this decree.

2. Within one year from the entry of this decree the Government and each of the defendant exhibitors named in Section III of this decree shall submit respectively such plans for divestiture of theatre interests, other than those heretofore ordered to be divested, which they believe to be adequate to satisfy the requirements of the Supreme Court decision herein with respect to such divestiture. Upon the filing of such a plan the Government and the affected defendant shall have six months within which to file objections thereto and propose amended or alternative plans for accomplishing the same result. Such further proceedings with respect to such plans may then be had as the court may then order.

3. No defendant distributor named in Section II of this decree, and no distributor company resulting from the divorce ordered herein, shall engage in the exhibition business; and no defendant exhibitor named in Section III of this decree, and no exhibitor company resulting from the divorce ordered herein, shall engage in the distribution business, except that permission to a distributor company resulting from divorce to engage in the exhibition business or to an exhibitor company resulting from divorce to engage in the distribution business may be granted by the court upon notice to the United States and upon a showing that any such engagement shall not unreasonably restrain competition in the distribution or exhibition of motion pictures.

4. No exhibitor company resulting from the divorce ordered herein shall acquire directly or indirectly any interest in any theatre divested by any other defendant pursuant to any plan ordered under Paragraph 2 of Section IV hereof or pursuant to Paragraph C1 of Section III of the Consent Judgment as to the Paramount defendants entered March 3, 1949.

of each major defendant bound by this decree, during the three years allowed for the completion of the plan of reorganization provided for in Section IV, to license, or in any way to provide for, the exhibition of any or all the motion pictures which it may at anytime distribute, in such manner, and upon such terms, and subject to such conditions as may be satisfactory to it, in any theatre in which such defendant has a proprietary interest, either directly or through subsidiaries.

VI

The defendant distributors named in Section II of this decree and any others who are willing to file with the American Arbitration Association their consent to abide by the rules of arbitration and to perform the awards of arbitrators, are hereby authorized to set up an arbitration system with an accompanying Appeal Board which will become effective as soon as it may be organized, upon terms to be settled by the court upon notice to the parties to this action.

VII

The provisions of the existing consent decree are hereby declared to be of no further force or effect, except in so far as may be necessary to conclude arbitration proceedings now pending and to liquidate in an orderly manner the financial obligations of the defendants and the American Arbitration Association, incurred in the establishment of the consent decree arbitration system. Existing awards and those made pursuant to pending proceedings shall continue to be enforceable.

VIII

1. For the purpose of securing compliance with this decree, and for no other purpose, duly authorized representatives of the Department of Justice shall, on written request of the Attorney General or an Assistant Attorney General, and on notice to any defendant bound by this decree, reasonable as to time and subject matter, made to such defendant at its principal office, and subject to any legally recognized privilege (a) be permitted reasonable access, during the office hours of such defendant, to all books, ledgers, accounts, correspondence, memoranda and other records and documents in the possession or under the control of such defendant, relating to any of the matters contained in this decree, and that during the times that the plaintiff shall desire such access, counsel for such defendant may be present, and (b) subject to the reasonable convenience of such defendant, and without restraint of interference from it, be permitted to interview its officers or employees regarding any such matters, at which interviews counsel for the officer or employee interviewed and counsel for such defendant may be present. For the purpose of securing compliance with this decree any defendant upon the written request of the Attorney General, or an Assistant Attorney General, shall submit such reports with respect to any of the matters contained in this decree as from time to time may be necessary for the purpose of enforcement of this decree.

2. Information obtained pursuant to the provisions of this Section shall not be divulged by any representative of the Department of Justice to any person other than a duly authorized representative of the Department of Justice, except in the course of legal proceedings to which the United States is a party, or as otherwise required by law.

Jurisdiction of this cause is retained for the purpose of enabling any of the parties to this decree, and no others, to apply to the court at any time for such orders or direction as may be necessary or appropriate for the construction, modification, or carrying out of the same, for the enforcement of compliance therewith, and for the punishment of violations thereof, or for other or further relief.

FINAL DECREE AS TO MINOR DEFENDANTS

The plaintiff, having filed its petition hereon on July 20, 1938, and its amended and supplemental complaint on November 14, 1940: the defendants having filed their answers to such complaint, denying the substantive allegations thereof, the court after trial having entered a decree herein, dated December 31, 1946, as modified by order entered February 11, 1947: the plaintiff and the defendants having appealed from such decree: the Supreme Court of the United States having in part affirmed and in part reversed such decree, and having remanded this case to this court for further proceedings in conformity with its opinion dated May 3, 1948: this court having, on June 25, 1948, by order made the mandate and decree of the Supreme Court the order and judgment of this court:

Now, having considered the proposals of the parties, having duly received additional evidence and heard further arguments, and having rendered its opinion on July 25, 1949, and having filed its findings of fact and conclusions of law in accordance with said opinion:

I

1. The findings of fact and conclusions of law heretofore made are superseded by the findings and conclusions now entered in support of this decree.

2. The complaint is dismissed as to the defendants Screen Gems, Inc., and the corporation named as Universal Pictures Company, Inc., merged during the pendency of this case into the defendant Universal Corporation. The complaint is also dismissed as to all claims made against the remaining defendants herein based upon their casts as producers, whether as individuals or in conjunction with others.

II

The defendants Columbia Pictures Corporation, Columbia Pictures of Louisiana, Inc., Universal Corporation, Universal Film Exchanges, Inc., Big U Film Exchange, Inc., and United Artists Corporation, and the successors of each of them, and any and all individuals who act in behalf of any thereof with respect to the matters enjoined, and each corporation in which said defendants or any of them own a direct or indirect stock interest of more than fifty per cent, are hereby enjoined:

1. From granting any license in which minimum prices for admission to a theatre are fixed by the parties, either in writing or through a committee, or through arbitration, or upon the happening of any event or in any manner or by any means.

2. From agreeing with each other or with any exhibitors or distributors to maintain a system of clearances; the term "clearances" as used herein meaning the period of time stipulated in license contracts which must elapse between runs of the same feature within a particular area or in specified theatres.

3. From granting any clearance between theatres not in substantial competition.

4. From granting or enforcing any clearance against theatres in substantial competition with the theatre receiving the license for exhibition in excess of what is reasonably necessary to protect the licensee in the run granted. Whenever any clearance provision is attacked as not legal under the provisions of this decree, the burden shall be upon the distributor to sustain the legality thereof.

5. From further performing any existing franchise to which it is a party and from making any franchises in the future, except for the purpose of enabling an independent exhibitor to operate a theatre in competition with a theatre affiliated with a defendant or with theatres in new circuits which may be formed as a result of divorcement. The term "franchise" as used herein means a licensing agreement or series of licensing agreements, entered into as a part of the same transaction in effect for more than one motion picture season and covering the exhibition of pictures released by one distributor during the entire period of agreement.

6. From making or further performing any formula deal or master agreement to which it is a party. The term "formula deal" as used herein means a licensing agreement with a circuit of theatres in which the license fee of a given feature is measured for the theatres covered by the agreement by a specified percentage of the feature's national gross. The term "master agreement" means a licensing agreement, also known as a "blanket deal," covering the exhibition of features in a number of theatres usually comprising a circuit.

7. From performing or entering into any license in which the right to exhibit one feature is conditioned upon the licensee's taking one or more other features. To the extent that any of the features have not been trade shown prior to the granting of the license for more than a single feature, the licensee shall be given by the licensor the right to reject twenty per cent of such features not trade shown prior to the granting of the license, such right of rejection to be exercised in the order of release within ten days after there has been an opportunity afforded to the licensee to inspect the feature.

8. From licensing any feature for exhibition upon any run in any theatre in any other manner than that each license shall be offered and taken theatre by theatre, solely upon the merits and without discrimination in favor of affiliated theatres, circuit theatres or others.

III

The defendants named in Section II of this decree and any others who are willing to file with the American Arbitration Association their consent to abide by the rules of arbitration and to perform the awards of arbitrators, are hereby authorized to set up or participate in an arbitration system with an accompanying Appeal Board which will become effective as soon as it may be organized, upon terms to be settled by the court upon notice to the parties to this action.

IV

The provisions of the consent decree of November 20, 1940, are hereby declared to be of no further force or effect.

V

1. For the purpose of securing compliance with this decree, and for no other purpose, duly authorized representatives of the Department of Justice, shall, on written request of the Attorney General or an Assistant Attorney General, and no notice to any defendant bound by this decree, reasonable as to time and subject matter, made to such defendant at its principal office, and subject to any legally recognized privilege (a) be permitted reasonable access, during the office hours of such defendant, to all books, ledgers, accounts, correspondence, memoranda and other records and documents in the possession or under the control of such defendant, relating to any of the matters contained in this decree and that during the times that the plaintiff shall desire such access, counsel for such defendant may be present, and (b) subject to the reasonable convenience of such defendant, and without restraint or interference from it, be permitted to interview its officers or employees regarding any such matters, at which interviews counsel for the officer or employee interviewed and counsel for such defendant may be present. For the purpose of securing compliance with this decree any defendant upon the written request of the Attorney General, or an Assistant Attorney General, shall submit such reports with respect to any of the matters contained in this decree as from time to time may be necessary for the purpose of enforcement of this decree.

2. Information obtained pursuant to the provisions of this section shall not be divulged by any representative of the Department of Justice to any person other than a duly authorized representative of the Department of Justice, except in the course of legal proceedings to which the United States is a party, or as otherwise required by law.

CENSOR BOARDS

Addresses and Regulations

STATE CENSOR BOARDS AND RULES

Kansas

State Board of Review, Sixth and Armstrong Streets, Kansas City, Kansas; Mrs. Frances Vaughn, chairman; Hollie Tucker, secretary.

The board "shall approve such films, reels, including subtitles, spoken dialogue, songs, other words or sounds, folders, posters and advertising matter which are moral and proper; and shall disapprove such as are cruel, obscene, indecent, or immoral, or such as tend to debase or corrupt morals."

In addition to the quotation from the statute, this board has adopted the following rules:

A. Pictures should be clean and wholesome and all features that tend to debase morals or influence the mind to improper conduct should be eliminated.

B. Ridicule of any religious sect or peculiar characteristics of any race of people will not be approved.

C. Evil suggestion in the dress of comedy characters will be eliminated.

D. Loose conduct between men and women will be eliminated, and whenever possible, barroom scenes and social drinking.

E. A display of nude human figures will be eliminated.

F. Crimes and criminal methods, such as give instruction in crime through suggestion, will be eliminated or abbreviated.

G. Prolonged and passionate love scenes, when suggestive of immorality will be eliminated.

SUNDAY CLOSING REGULATIONS

Alabama

Legalized by local option. Sunday shows in Anniston, Ensley, Montgomery, Auburn, Demopolis, Dothan, Selma, Troy, Cullman, Jasper, Mobile, Tuscaloosa. Bill passed in 1937 legalizing Sunday shows in Jefferson County (Leeds, Tarrant, Birmingham). Sunday closing in Camden, Greenville, Linden, Livingston, York. Attorney General ruled in 1942. Sunday films not prohibited in towns less than 15,000. Sunday shows closed in Bessemer June 1945—opened by referendum vote Oct. 2, 1945.

Arizona

Arkansas

Legislature of 1931 passed law legalizing Sunday shows by local option. 1939 legislature passed bill legalizing Sunday motion pictures.

California

Colorado

Legalized by local option—law on statute books interpreted as prohibiting Sunday shows, passed in 1871, but some years ago case was appealed to Supreme Court of State and decision rendered that law did not prevent operation of motion picture theaters on Sunday. No towns forbid shows by local ordinance, although some of smaller towns do not have Sunday shows.

Connecticut

Local option throughout the state. Hartford and Danbury do not allow Sunday matinees, but theaters open at five p.m. State passed bill in 1937 permitting theaters to remain open Sunday night until 11 p.m. instead of 10:30, and in 1945 further liberalized law permitting opening at 1 p.m. instead of 2 p.m. and closing at 11:30 p.m.

Delaware

Legislature defeated bill in 1937 for statewide Sunday films instead of local option. 1941—Repealed Blue Laws—provides local option for Sunday movies between noon and 6 p.m. and from 8 p.m. until midnight on Sunday. Newark, by referendum 6-10-42, banned Sunday pictures.

District of Columbia

Florida

Legalized by local option. All large towns have Sunday shows. Key West in December, 1946 enforced a 1913 ordinance calling for Sunday opening after six p.m. and requiring theaters to pay 20 per cent of net proceeds to local charity.

Georgia

Does not permit motion pictures on Sunday. In spite of blue laws, however, Atlanta, Albany, Columbus, and Thomasville do show pictures. Savannah permits Sunday shows between 2 and 6 and after 9:30 p.m. Proceeds to charity; Marietta—Theaters open on Sunday from 1 to 7 p.m. and again at 8:45 p.m. to serve war plant workers and service men. Windsor City council approved Sunday shows April, 1946 under agreement that half of receipts be given city for operation of schools. Blackshear permitted American Legion to show Sunday pictures but city council rescinded ordinance.

Idaho

State law prohibits Sunday shows, but upon signed petition of the majority of voters, presented to City Council, question is submitted to voters of community and popular vote governs action of council. Practically every sizeable town in state operates on Sunday.

Illinois

No state law legalizing or making illegal showing of pictures on Sunday. This is controlled by municipalities. No Sunday shows in Sparta and Waverly.

Indiana

Not legalized, but Sunday motion pictures are shown in every principal city in State. No Sunday shows in Oakland City.

Iowa

Legalized by local option.

Kansas

Has Sunday labor laws which include motion pictures for Sunday showing. Law has never been enforced and all towns operate except White Cloud, Smith Center, Lindsborg, Scott City, Clifton, Baldwin, Greenleaf, Lincoln, Jetmore, Spearville, Oskaloosa.

Kentucky

Bill legalizing Sunday performances passed 1934 State Court of Appeals in 1942 declared Sunday movies permitted by state law and no municipality can prohibit them.

Louisiana

Legalized by local option.

Maine

1939 law permits Sunday movies between 3 and 11 p.m. 1941—Legislature passed local option referendum exercised at regular elections—effective July 26, 1941.

Maryland

Legislature in 1931 enacted law providing referendum for city of Baltimore which was voted on and passed. Theaters open in following counties: Baltimore, Carroll, Montgomery, Prince George, St. Mary's, Howard, Oakland, and Anne Arundel. Incorporated towns in Allegheny County may have Sunday showings provided that they obtain permit from municipal authorities. 1943 legislature passed laws permitting Sunday shows in Aberdeen and Frederick City during certain hours, and in Washington County between 1 and 7 p.m. Cecil County by vote of 1945 Legislature may have Sunday shows by local option from 2 to 11 p.m. Other counties have not passed laws permitting Sunday shows.

Massachusetts

Michigan

Has old blue law statute prohibiting showing of pictures on Sunday but statute is not enforced. Holland is only city which has Sunday closing law by city ordinance.

Minnesota

Sunday closing law of 1905 amended 1909 legalizing outdoor sports. In a decision of 1910 motion pictures classed same as sports and allowed to operate on Sundays.

Mississippi

Not legalized. One town, Shaw, operates—they open on Sunday, pay the fine and continue to operate. In May 1942 city commission of Jackson gave permission for Sunday shows but in October State Circuit Court closed Sunday shows after city police chief had declared theaters might remain open. Jackson, Meridian and other towns operate on Sunday by collecting "free will offerings" instead of admission charge.

Missouri

Have Sunday labor laws which include motion pictures for Sunday showing. Law was never enforced and all towns operate except Marshall, Fairfax, Fulton.

Montana

No state statute prohibiting showing of motion pictures on Sunday and no law legalizing such showing, but all towns run shows on Sunday.

Nebraska

Legalized by local option. Sunday shows forbidden in Stromberg. Town council opened Arnold for Sunday shows Jan. 18, 1937. Beatrice voted for Sunday pictures April 3, 1940.

Nevada

New Hampshire

State passed Sunday sports and entertainment bill in 1931 and individual cities and towns vote on it. 1943 legislature passed law permitting theaters to open Sunday afternoons at 1 p.m. by local option, instead of 6 p.m.

New Jersey

Blue laws repealed in 1933. Towns which have local ordinance prohibiting Sunday shows: Belvedere, Blairstown, Frenchtown, Highbridge, Jamesburg, Metuchen, Ocean Grove, Peapack, Ridgewood, Upper Montclair, Westfield, Nov. 8, 1938—Montclair by referendum vote made Sunday movies legal. State removed ban on Sunday shows in Princeton to provide recreation for men in Army and Navy training camps.

New Mexico

Bill passed 1931 legislature legalizing Sunday showings and prohibiting local option measures from closing theaters.

New York

Home rule law by which towns and cities are legalized to show motion pictures on Sunday after 2 p.m., provided local ordinance is enacted to this effect by local legislative body and ratified by direct vote of people at special election. Under this law leading towns and cities show pictures on Sunday.

North Carolina

Not legalized. State law, city ordinances and public opinion opposed to Sunday pictures. The following towns do have Sunday shows Asheville, Benson, Chapel Hill, Dunn, Durham, Elizabeth City, Henderson, High Point, Louisburg, Plymouth, Raleigh, Robersonville, Scotland Neck, Tarboro, Williamston. Sunday films legalized for Cherokee County in 1937. Numerous towns have Sunday shows and a per cent of the proceeds is given to charity. 1939—Sunday closing law repealed in Johnston and Hyde counties. Law also passed 1939 prohibiting Sunday shows in Yadkin county and Sunday movies in Northampton between 1 and 6 p.m. City Council of Sanford approved Sunday closing in 1940. Sunday movies permitted in Charlotte and Salisbury in 1941.

North Dakota

Ohio

Legalized showing on Sunday. Forbidden in Bayesville and Cambridge. On June 18, 1940 Supreme Court of Ohio upheld rights of municipalities to forbid Sunday shows. Wellsville resumed Sunday pictures September, 1946 after being closed since 1914.

Oklahoma

Legalized by local option.

Oregon

Legalized by local option to run shows on Sunday. No closed situation known.

Pennsylvania

Sunday opening law passed in 1935. Legalized by local option. 1941 legislature changed law providing referendum be held every 4 years instead of 5 on request of 20 per cent of highest vote cast for any candidate (old law 5 per cent).

November, 1945 general election opened 15 municipalities to Sunday shows out of 31 voting on question.

November, 1947 general election opened Sunday films in Harrisburg, Altoona, Baden, Bensalem Township, B'akely, Cheswick, Clarion, Columbia, Harrison Township, Jermy, Jutztown, Laceyville, Lehigh, Marietta, McDonald, Nazareth, Perryville, Phoenixville, Rochester, Tarentum, Tinoesta, Wampum, Wind Gap and York, among others.

Proposal was defeated in some 26 towns. November, 1949, general election opened many more places to Sunday films.

Rhode Island

Legalized by local option. 1943 legislature passed law permitting theaters in Providence and several other communities to open at 1 p.m. instead of 2 on Sunday.

South Carolina

Legislature in 1947 passed bill permitting Sunday films after two p.m., except between seven and nine p.m., in cities of 62,000 or more population.

South Dakota

Has state law prohibiting Sunday pictures. Local option has over-ruled this law, however, and pictures are shown on Sunday in all principal towns.

Tennessee

Governor signed bill repealing blue laws in 1935, permitting Sunday opening by local option. However, not many operate.

Texas

Governor signed bill legalizing Sunday pictures which became effective in 1931, subject to local option. Prior to passage of law, majority of principal towns were open. Most towns now have Sunday shows.

Utah

No law preventing showing of pictures on Sundays. Former state statute made it illegal to operate a theater on Sunday, but this statute was repealed in 1925. Local option bill was subsequently introduced, but failed to pass.

Vermont

Law permitting Sunday movies after 6 p.m. passed in 1939. 1941 legislature eliminated necessity for voting every year on Sunday amusements, except on petition of 5 per cent of voters.

Virginia

Motion pictures are exhibited on Sunday in Richmond, Norfolk, and various other Virginia cities usually after juries and test cases have failed to convict the exhibitor. In Williams v. Commonwealth 179 Va. 741, decided in 1942, the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia approved the operation of Sunday movies where the proceeds were devoted to charity and three members of the Court, in a concurring opinion, held that the defendant was engaged in a "work of necessity," within the meaning of the Virginia Sunday Observance Law. The effect of this concurring opinion has been far reaching in discouraging prosecutions for the exhibition of motion pictures on Sunday.

Washington

Sunday opening not legalized except in Colfax where old statute providing Sunday closing was attempted to be enforced, but was defeated. Theaters close in Pullman on Sunday evenings as result of friendly arrangement with people of Normal School of Pullman. Theaters throughout state operate without interference. There are no Sunday closing ordinances.

West Virginia

Not legalized, but all principal cities show pictures on Sunday which include Charleston, Bluefield, Huntington, Williamson (theaters in last city open after closing of church in morning and close prior to evening service). Forbidden by local ordinance in Lewisburg, Milton, and Ronceverte.

Wisconsin

Blue laws repealed in 1933.

Wyoming

Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corp.

*Holding company; Incorporated July 24, 1939, in Delaware.
General Office, 1270 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y.*

Divided pursuant to a consent judgment in the New York equity suit into RKO Pictures Corp. and RKO Theater Corp.

Formed pursuant to a plan of reorganization of its predecessor, a Maryland corporation of the same name, confirmed by the U. S. District Court for the Southern District of New York by order dated April 11, 1939. A further order dated Jan. 18, 1940 and entered on Jan. 20, directed the consummation of the plan. As a result thereof title to substantially all of the assets and properties of the predecessor was vested in this corporation on Jan. 26 but effective as of the opening of business on Jan. 1, 1940, free and clear of all claims of the stockholders and creditors of its predecessor, except as provided in the plan or organization or in said order, but subject to certain liens and charges. In consideration for such transfer the corporation, among other things, issued certain of its securities for distribution to the holders of securities of and claims against its predecessor. Predecessor company went into receivership in January, 1933.

DOING business without advertising is like winking at a girl in the dark—you know what you are doing—but nobody else does.
